The missing link

More than five years after the 28°E orbital slot was established, we're finally seeing satellite internet services taking advantage of a spot to which at least seven million British homes have aimed a satellite dish.

Satellite internet services have been around for years, but for most people it's no longer convenient to have a second dish aimed at Astra 1 or W3. With services running from 28°E, you just need a multi-output LNB and you can watch Sky while you surf.

Unlike Sky, these services aren't being run by just one big player, either: as well as the Astra-backed AVC, which is using its experience as the country's biggest dish installer to roll out a satellite broadband service on a massive scale, there are smaller providers like Smile Broadband.

Smile uses the cheaper bandwidth on Eurobird's European beam rather than expensive Astra capacity. All this requires is an upgrade to a 60cm dish, and you can still combine your TV with your surfing.

There's limited bandwidth on either Astra or Eurobird for satellite internet, so Eutelsat is getting in on the act with a whole satellite dedicated to internet and file downloads – Ebird, at 33°E. It's just five degrees away from 28°E, so most people in the UK can get 33°E simultaneously with Sky by using a 60cm dish and a special dual feed, multi-output LNB. The BeyonDSL service reviewed last month is the first of many we expect to see on Ebird.

All the installation costs and phone charges mean one-way satellite internet can never be competitive with DSL or cable, but it's not meant to be. Almost a third of UK households can't get terrestrial broadband and – despite BT's claims – probably never will.

But they shouldn't be penalised for where they live. If the government is serious about getting Britain online, it should offer help. Businesses can get a grant against the cost of installing satellite broadband, but residential customers get nothing. A simple VAT exemption on the monthly fees and installation charges for satellite services would make them far more attractive. Ofcom could also get BT to cut the exorbitant cost of getting a second line installed, so people can use the phone and internet just as they do with DSL.

Sky dominates the TV market and makes it politically very hard for the regulators to insist on a fair deal for consumers, but no one dominates the satellite internet market yet, and with some foresight it could be a competitive market benefiting everyone.

Alias must be saved

It's one of the most exciting, addictive, original – not to mention sexy – action dramas on TV, but Alias just hasn't captured the British viewing public's imagination the way everyone expected (though it's doing very well in America – go figure!). Perhaps it's just not kitchen-sink enough for the soapy British palate, or as ploddingly simple as Enterprise and Stargate SG-1, but sadly Sky and Five have both given Alias the elbow. There's only one channel that can save us. Sci-Fi, do the right thing by picking up Alias! ■

HALF OF BRITAIN'S HOMES HAVE MULTI-CHANNEL TV

More than 2.5 million homes have bought Freeview adapters, putting digital TV in more than half of the Britain's living rooms.

Around 500,000 Freeview adapters were sold over the festive period at around 100,000 a week.

There are now more than seven million Sky subscribers, around a million free-to-air satellite viewers, and some 2.2million digital cable viewers.

The 12.7million total means more than half of Britain's 24.9million homes have access to more than the five terrestrial TV channels.

The BBC expects Freeview to reach three million homes by the middle of this year, and four million by the end of 2004.

The launch of Freeview's first seven-day electronic programme guide is expected to give sales a further boost.

The guide will initially be available to users of Fusion's Freeview adapters, but Humax and other major manufacturers are expected to sign up soon after.

A full programme guide will open the doors for Freeview personal video recorders, which can be programmed with a single button-push to record on hard disc drives or recordable DVDs.

However, manufacturers who don't sign up to Fusion's EPG channel will have to wait at least 18 months before Freeview launches an open-standards version based on the MHP advanced interactive TV software.

■ Freeview's joy was slightly dented when BARB revealed Freeview adapter owners still spend most of their viewing time with the five main channels. In November, Freeview homes watched the main five channels for 84.2 per cent of the time, compared with 58.8 per cent for satellite and cable homes.

Freeview on the move

Technisat has launched the first mobile receiver for digital terrestrial TV.

The Digipal LCD has a built-in 6.8in LCD monitor and telescopic antenna, and supports the DVB now-and-next EPG.

Priced at £349, the portable receiver measures just 212 x 167 x 69mm and has an automatic setup to find channels as soon as you start up.

UK users will have to retune when they move between transmitters which carry the digital multiplexes at different frequencies.

The built-in battery will last two hours, but it also comes with a 12V adapter which can be used to power it in a car, truck or boat.

ITV spreads its digital wings

At least three new digital TV channels will be launched by ITV this year in a bid to take on both the BBC and Channel 4.

Afternoon children's strand CiTV will be spun off into its own channel, ITV Kids, in the autumn.

ITV3 will be an upmarket channel aimed at older adults, featuring drama and other highbrow shows, and should be on air by the end of the year.

There's also likely to be an ITV repeats channel – either showing the same shows an hour later, or completely rescheduled like Sky One Mix.

This will allow ITV2 to concentrate on popular spin-off shows like Pop Idol Extra and extended coverage of I'mACelebrity... GetMeOut OfHere.

IN BRIEF

■ Sky has been fined £50,000 over a bogus report during the Gulf War. The ITC imposed the fine over a report which purported to come from a Royal Navy submarine at sea, but was really filmed aboard a submarine in port. Reporter James Forlong, who had worked at Sky News for 10 years, lost his job and later committed suicide over the revelation

■ Audience research group BARB is to start measuring use of interactive TV services and personal video recorders. Viewers watching recorded programmes currently don't figure in BARB's ratings, and BARB will have to develop new software to catch its research panel using the new technologies

■ Sky's interactive TV dating service, Koopid, transmitted more than 3.6million messages from over 45,000 users in its first year. Users can create a profile and send an electronic photo of themselves to be shown on the service, and contacted via messaging through their remote control

■ Disney's digital bonus channels have joined the line-up on Telewest's digital cable services. Disney Channel +1, Playhouse Disney and Toon Disney are now available to anyone who subscribes to the Disney Channel, on channels 725-272

■ Italian Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi has promised to force through a controversial new media bill which the country's President refused to sign. Carlo Ciampi said the bill would overturn a decision of the country's constitutional court and he feared it would unfairly concentrate Mr Berlusconi's power over TV and newspapers

Mac users Eye up Freeview and satellite

Eye TV has launched digital TV adapters for Mac users to watch and record digital terrestrial and digital satellite.

The Eye TV 300 is an external free-to-air satellite tuner, and the Eye TV 400 is a Freeview digital terrestrial adapter.

Both connect to the Mac via USB or Firewire, and have a remote control which gives Mac users a full range of personal video recording functions.

Users can pause, rewind and fast forward live TV, and plan their viewing or schedule recordings through the online TV guide from TVTV.

Recordings can be edited to erase adverts, and create DVDs or VCDs to store them, provided you've got Toast 6 Titanium as well.

Size matters

JVC has joined the soaring LCD TV market, with four flat panel screens from 17in to 32in.

The 17in LT-17C31 (£800), 23in LT-23C31, 26in LT-26C31 and 32in LT-32C31 are high resolution 16:9 WXGA display panels with a resolution of 1280x768 pixels, and can be wall-mounted using an optional bracket.

All four incorporate numerous picture processing technologies including a digital comb filter, super digipure and the latest generation of JVC's image enhancing D.I.S.T technology.

The TVs also have an analogue TV tuner along and two in-built speakers with a total of 20W RMS output.

Connections include component video inputs, and two RGB-capable Scarts. The 17in and 23in models also have a 15-pin PC input.

Fancy sending a message to friends and family anywhere in Europe for next to nothing? That's the idea behind VIC-TV on Hot Bird.

VIC-TV – or Virtual Information Channels – enables you to post a message and photo which will be shown for 15 seconds.

The channel broadcasts on Hot Bird, 13°E, on 12.207GHz/H, SR 27500, FEC 3/4.

To leave your message, go to www.vic-tv.net and open an account, upload a photograph and write a short message, then tell your friends to watch. Stranger things have caught on!

Sky loses exclusive Premiership coverage

Up to eight Premiership football games will be shown live on free-to-air TV after Sky struck a deal with European regulators.

The BBC, ITV and Five are set to bid for a selection of 'high quality' late Saturday afternoon matches for the 2004-2006 seasons.

Sky struck a deal after the European Competition Commission said it was unhappy with last year's auction of Premiership football rights for the three seasons.

The Premiership split the games into Gold, Silver and two Bronze packages in the hope they would be split between Sky and the free-to-air broadcasters.

But the five main broadcasters couldn't afford the top games, and didn't have enough space between them to show the 58 games a year in the Bronze packages.

All four packages ended up with Sky, which paid over £1billion, but will now demand to pay less because its deal isn't exclusive.

The Premiership had feared the commission would force it to re-auction the packages, throwing often-precarious football club finances into confusion mid-season.

It will now have to ensure at least some high-quality games are exclusive to the free-to-air broadcasters when the bidding starts for the 2007-2009 seasons.

Sky One beefs up for spring

Real-time drama 24 is one of three new American dramas added to Sky One's spring line-up at the last minute – and a new teen horror series will launch in the autumn.

Kiefer Sutherland's agent Jack Bauer will be having the third longest day of his life in February, after Sky snatched the hit series from the BBC.

Talks broke down between the BBC and 24's producer Fox (a sister company of Sky) over the BBC's decision to broadcast free-to-air by satellite.

The third series sees disaster-magnet daughter Kim Bauer working at the Counter-Terrorism Unit, with President Palmer in peril yet again. It starts in February.

Also lined up for spring is The Handler, starring Joe Pantoliano (Ralphie in The Sopranos) as Joe Renato, an FBI agent who trains and handles undercover agents.

Joe and his team of four agents walk a fine line between committing crimes and cracking them as they investigate the seedy Los Angeles underworld.

Jake 2.0 stars Christopher Gorham of the short-lived Odyssey 5, as Jake, a lowly NSA computer technician accidentally injected with nanobots. Equipped with superhuman strength and healing, lightning-fast speed, heightened hearing, magnified vision and a telepathic communication with computers, Jake becomes a special operations agent.

Sky One has also ordered Hex, a series three-part miniseries about a 17-year-old girl at a British boarding school who discovers she's been bewitched with magic powers. Sky One hopes Hex, launching in autumn, could be as popular as its biggest-ever series, Buffy The Vampire Slayer.

Sadly, it looks as though Sky One won't be renewing double-agent drama Alias, which despite being popular in America hasn't taken with British audiences.

Jo Pantoliano is The Handler

Latin trio take to Hot Bird

Three Hispanic channels are bringing a taste of Latin America to Europe via Hot Bird at 13°E.

Cubavision, Venevision Continentale, and Mundovision are all broadcasting free-to-air on 11.304GHz/H, SR 27500, FEC 3/4.

Cubavision is the international face of Cuba, bringing news, education, sports coverage, drama, soaps, music, documentaries and travel information from the largest island in the Caribbean.

Venevision Continentale is a channel spanning the Latin American world, with news and current affairs, drama and soaps, music and concerts, and the ever-popular Latino variety shows.

Worldwide Hispanic channel Mundovision has made one of its occasional returns to Hot Bird, with its usual mix of soap operas, talk shows, music, documentary, fashion, cookery, sports, spectacles and news.

Smile, you're on satellite

Smile is the latest satellite broadband service to launch at 28°E, using Eurobird's European beam to reach British homes.

The service can be picked up in most of the UK with a 60cm dish, and can be combined with Sky Digital if you have a quad-output LNB.

Smile offers one-way download and browsing speeds from 512kb/s with a 300MB priority download capacity at £21 a month, to 2Mb/s with a 1.5GB download capacity at £71 a month.

Installation costs £215 with a Technisat Skystar 2 PCI card, or £315 with a Skystar USB external receiver.

Smile also offers special rates for its own ISDN uplink connection, and for hosting web pages and e-mail addresses.

Budget burner from Tosh

The DVD recorder price war continues apace with the latest budget-priced entry level model from Toshiba.

The DR-1 (£300 approx) supports recording on to and playback of DVD-R, DVD-RW and DVD-RAM discs as well as playback of DVD/DVD-R/DVD-RW/DVD-RAM/CD/CD-R and CD-RW discs.

Time slip features lets you pause what you're watching while it's recording to the disc, or watch it from the beginning, and a thumbnail browser lets you can keep track of recordings stored on DVD-RAM discs. An editing function allows you to separate recordings into sections and also create playlists.

Connections comprise component video in and out, two RGB-capable Scarts, a composite video output, plus co-axial and optical digital audio outputs and an S-video output.

IN BRIEF

- Eutelsat is to sponsor the 20th Winter Olympics in Torino in February 2006, supplying 50 video channels for broadcast to 5,000 plasma screens in competition sites, Olympic Villages and Media Villages, including live coverage from each of the 13 competition sites
- An American female skydiver is planning to jump from 25 miles up in 2005. Cheryl Stearns is working with NASA on the 39,640m jump, which will see her reach Mach 1 in just 47 seconds. Her feat should help NASA understand how Space Shuttle crews might bale out at very high altitudes
- Astra and Hispasat will both transmit Spain's Digital Plus digital pay-TV service until at least 2017. The satellite operators - and viewers on the ground – were left in a precarious situation when Canal Satellite Digital (on Astra 1) and Via Digital (on Hispasat) merged in June. Now Digital Plus will not have to realign dishes in millions of homes for free
- NTL has launched a 15-channel broadband TV service for internet users. The £3.99 monthly package includes The Tweenies, MTV, Encyclopedia Britannica, Freeloader, Game.Net, Music Choice, Time Tunnel, Vid Zone and Download 256, all offering video and audio content which can be watched through a PC or Mac
- Virtual Racing channel I-Race has taken to satellite with the iSportsTV channel. The fixed odds betting service uses virtual races, played across a range of tracks with horses that each have their own personality. I-Race plans to add Fantasy Football-style horse ownership to the service

- Astronauts' claims of colourful lights in space are vindicated by images from a new satellite. The Solar Mass Ejection Imager photographed aurorae during 2003's violent solar storms at 800km, far above the orbits of the International Space Station and the Space Shuttle
- The 2006 World Cup in Germany will be the first produced entirely in widescreen. Germany is a big widescreen TV market, and it's possible much of the tournament will also be filmed in hi-def TV for viewers in Europe and the Pacific Rim
- Polish commercial TV station Polsat could be bought by Rupert Murdoch's News Corporation. The channel may sell a 33 per cent share currently owned by a Dutch-registered company to secure further investment, although it is currently denying the rumours
- Granada Plus (soon to be ITV3 or ITV Gold) is to screen its first original series this year. American police drama 10-8 will lead a daily six-hour Crime Plus strand on the channel, alongside British greats like The Sweeney
- Anti-piracy coalition AEPOC is to target satellite TV viewing card cloners in the new European states in 2004. A host of Baltic and East European nations join the EU next year, and they will have to implement anti-piracy laws which AEPOC will act on
- Thomson has advised of a fault in some of its recent single-output LNBs, due to a tool cavity problem in the feedhorn. LNBs with serial numbers of 33425472 my cause a loss of low band channels. Users affected should contact Thomson on 07703 188015 for a replacement

Flexible Philips

Personal video recorders don't have to come in a separate box, thanks to Philips new Flex widescreen TV with a built-in hard disc.

The 32in PW9768 Flex comes with a built-in 40GB hard disc drive and twin analogue TV tuners letting you record one channel while watching another.

There are three recording quality settings – HQ lets you store six hours in broadcast quality, SQ for up to 11 hours of better-than-videotape quality and LP for for up to 28 hours of roughly videotape standard standard recordings. Recordings can be archived to a VCR or DVD recorder, while a live pause mode lets you cache up to three hours of programming and includes a 30-second commercials skip mode.

The PW9768 also features Philip's detail-enhancing Pixel Plus technology.

Sound comes in the form Dolby Pro-Logic, and six speakers are included for use as part a Dolby 5.1 surround system.

Connections include four Scarts (two RGB-capable) and inputs for the surround speakers.

The PW9768 is available now and costs £1,700 (approx).

Dishes you can see through

Metronic has launched a series of transparent dishes which could make it possible to have satellite in the strictest planning areas.

The 60cm and 85cm dishes are made in a synthetic resin compound which uses a fine metal mesh surrounded by a clear resin, which is treated so it doesn't cloud in sunlight. The only metal parts are the mounting pole, aluminium arm and the LNB.

The 60cm dish (priced £99) is claimed to be as good as a 60cm metal mesh dish, and the 85cm (priced £129) is supposed to be as good as an 80cm metal mesh dish. Both come with a 0.5dB LNB.

Classics from ESPN

American sporting giants ESPN is set to launch its Classic Sport Channel on Sky Digital before the middle of this year.

ESPN Classic Sport has been running for two years now in France and Italy, showing classic sporting moments from the country's favourite sports.

The UK version will do the same concentrating on sports like football, rugby, cricket, athletics and tennis to complement the big events of the sporting calendar.

The channel hopes to announce details of an EPG number and launch date later in the spring.

Amateur spacemen break sound barrier

Privately funded spacecraft Spaceship One broke the sound barrier on its first in-flight rocket test, but the test ended in a bumpy landing.

Spaceship One is one of the many entrants to the $10million X-Prize competition, aiming to put three people on a sub-orbital spaceflight in a re-usable craft.

Spaceship One plans to achieve this by launching from the belly of a carrier aircraft at 50,000ft, then firing a hybrid rocket motor to break the 60-mile official boundary of space.

The test flight saw Spaceship One detach from the White Knight aircraft and power into a Mach 1.2 vertical climb with its engine burning for 15 seconds.

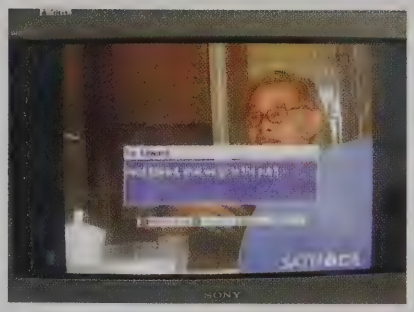
The spaceplane hit 68,000ft and made a turn in near-weightless conditions before gliding to land.

But the landing gear retracted during landing, causing the craft to veer off the runway. The pilot was unhurt and the Spaceship One suffered minor damage.

The constructor, Scaled Composites, is considered one of the most likely candidates to take the prize and start running regular mini-spaceflights for tourists.

Satmode tests a success

Astra has been running tests of its low-cost, two-way satellite service, Satmode, just months after starting the project.



Sponsored by the ESA, the project aims to produce a low-cost two-way LNB and modem which should cost no more than £35 to integrate into satellite receivers.

The transmitter side would use high-frequency Ka-band signals with a bandwidth equivalent to a Ka-band modem, with the receiver using a traditional Ku-band LNB.

Interactive TV users would have an always-on channel instead of needing a phone line, while broadcasters and advertisers would be able to tightly target regions or even individual users.

The demonstration shown to What Satellite & Digital TV at Astra's headquarters in Luxembourg used a simple instant messaging program and the four coloured buttons on a remote control of a modified satellite receiver. The system could be used to forward messages to mobile phones, or even to upload pictures stored on a personal video recorder to a central server, or for always-on TV e-mail.

Satmode will begin extensive field trials in February, and is expected to be ready for broadcasters by the end of this year, although no one has signed up yet.

AVC shows its colours

Internet-through-your-Sky-dish service AVC has announced the prices it will charge when it launches officially this month.

AVC will offer three packages: a 256kb/s average speed, a 512kb/s average speed, and a 768kb/s average speed.

The service will be supplied through a 48cm oval dish aimed at 28°E, with a quad-output LNB, which will be supplied new even if you have Sky already.

The PC connection will be provided through an external USB satellite receiver.

Installation costs £250, or £30 for connection only if you decide to fit your own dish and PC receiver.

Packages start at £27 a month for 256kb/s, £35 for 512kb/s, and £44 for 768kb/s, plus your own dial-up or ISDN connection.

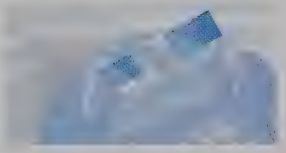
Galileo lines up bidders

Five groups have put themselves forward to build and operate Europe's own global positioning satellite system.

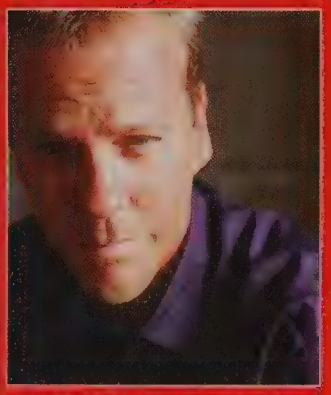


SES Global, parent company of Astra, is working with Inmarsat and satellite builder EADS Space in one consortium, Eutelsat and Hispasat are in another, and Alcatel is in a third.

The Galileo system will provide a positioning system more accurate than America's GPS, and unlike the American system it won't be controlled by the military risk being downgraded in wartime.

The fleet of 30 satellites in medium Earth orbit is expected to be operational by 2008, provided the winning consortium, European governments and other partners can find the £2billion needed to launch it.

Ratings round-up



The recent announcement of Sky One's winter schedule plans brought its share of delights (more Angel, Nip/Tuck (below), a sharp decrease in the number of shows with Celebrity, Sex or Uncovered in the title) and disappointments (the third series of the excellent spy series Alias, whose second season was bounced with little warning from Sky One to Sky One Mix to much confusion last year, was nowhere to be seen). Nonetheless, the overall message seems to be that quality control has returned at last to Isleworth.

Compensating to some extent for the absence of Alias, was the subsequent announcement that the channel has also secured the third series of acclaimed real-time series 24 (star Keifer Sutherland, pictured right) for transmission this month after the BBC's move to Astra 2D had Fox execs in a lather over European distribution rights. The series' move to Sky One would seem to be another guaranteed way to boost the channel's flagging ratings performance in the coming months, assuming most 24 fans have satellite or cable, of course. It would certainly make a change see a few more Sky One programmes cracking the top 20, other than The Simpsons and Malcolm In The Middle.

Away from satellite, interesting research from Barb has revealed that a huge number of Freeview watchers are surprisingly conservative in their choice of viewing.

Of the two million viewers that now have access to Freeview, on average a third of these watch the same amount of non-terrestrial television as other multichannel viewers, with 84.2 percent of them restricting their viewing to the five main channels in November last year. What's more, households with Freeview are continuing to devote more than half their viewing to analogue broadcasts.

Could this be force of habit owing to years of ingrained viewing habits – or unnappealing scheduling by the broadcasters? We suspect it's more a case of the former.

■ Disgraced former Blue Peter presenter Richard Bacon landed in hot water again this month when the ITC failed to see the funny side of a stunt on hip 'n' funky new channel Nation277. A cheeky bit of post-modernist malarkey on the channel's Flipside TV show (in which minor celebs channel surf in the name of cheap and cheerful entertainment) saw Bacon and former Loaded editor James Brown use a can of Red Bull to ape a sketch from Wayne's World in which Mike Myers indulges in some blatant product placement for several well-known brands. The Independent Television Commission failed to see the funny side and slapped a £4,500 fine on the channel.

■ Channel 4's comedy spoof The Pilot Show was a wickedly funny send-up of celebrities' gullibility when it comes to signing up to TV shows even when the ideas behind them are so blatantly rubbish. Rubbish that is, unless you're a Channel 4 executive with an obvious irony bypass, as a bogus idea for a reality show pilot suggested to Gail Hipgrave (née Porter) is now in development to become a fully fledged series.

Women aged between 18 and 30 are currently being sought to compete for the affections of ageing billionaires in a show pitched on The Pilot Show with the chucklesome title 'Where there's a will there's a way'. Let's hope they keep the title, eh?

■ Psychics and astrologists seem to be the in-thing in multichannel TV land at the moment, but it seems some people take this stuff far more seriously than others. Spare a thought for a disappointed Romanian pensioner who recently lodged a complaint against a TV station because a televised horoscope prediction promised she would receive a big sum of money which (quelle surprise!) never arrived after three months of waiting.

■ Having conquered the Christmas schedules and been a, er, goldmine for UK Gold, Ricky Gervais and co are currently taking The Office to America and overseeing the creation of a US version of the hit comedy series. The involvement of King Of The Hill co-creator Greg Daniels bodes well for the New Jersey-set revamp (the original is currently shown on BBC America over there). But, thankfully, rumours of Brad Pitt taking the Brent role have been countered by Gervais, who apparently has a much less well-known actor in mind. But who on Earth will they cast instead of Gareth? ■

So farewell, Solus

BARRY FOX PRIES INTO THE DIGITAL TV INDUSTRY EVERY MONTH IN WHAT SATELLITE & DIGITAL TV

The Editor wanted to know where I had got the December 31 cut-off date for the new Solus cards that I mentioned in my last column.

I'd seen it in a footnote to an e-mail sent by the Duty Office at Five to any viewers who had previously asked about the end of the old Solus scheme. But it was a lucky strike. There was no other publicity for the deadline.

RETRA, the Radio, Electrical & Television Retailers' Association, knew nothing about the cut-off date either. No one had thought to tell the trade body that represents the dealers who sell the hardware that needs the cards.

A spokesman for the Department of Culture Media & Sport said no press release was issued. However, Sports and Tourism Minister Richard Caborn said there was a deal during an adjournment debate in the Commons on October 21that received coverage in the press at the time and added that the December 31 date was publicised on the DCMS website.

The DCMS website (www.digitaltelevision.gov.uk/faqs.html#4) asks the rhetorical question: 'Will I still be able to receive the current free-to-air channels?' and then answers: 'Existing digital satellite customers wishing to view the free-to-air channels via digital satellite without subscription have until December 31, 2003 to purchase a viewing card.'

But farther down the same page of information the DCMS was still giving out-dated and contradictory advice that seemed sure to confuse viewers. Doesn't the department read its own website?

'It will not be possible to acquire a new Solus card... in the longer term it could be that the commercial public service channels may consider alternative arrangements to continue to provide free-to view access to their services by satellite... we hope that this situation can be satisfactorily resolved without the need to use legislation... Tessa Jowell has written to the respective chief executives of ITV, Channel 4, Five and BSkyB seeking clarification... their responses indicate that the broadcasters are holding discussions to try and resolve this matter (and) ensure that consumers continue to receive their free-to-view services on satellite without the need to subscribe. We will publish the results of those discussions....'

MPEG encoders on the BBC regions are causing headaches for recordable DVD owners

I have got a copy of the letter sent out by the DCMS. It contains no mention of a December 31 cut-off. The DCMS letters also promises that 'the broadcasters will advise Solus card holders about the scheme through on-screen messages'. But onscreen messages are still referring viewers to a Sky hotline which exists to sell subscriptions. The messages are still popping up over Sky News (which needs no card at all) saying that 'some channels will soon cease' and advising viewers to call Sky's number 08702 430604.

The correct number for viewers to call for a £23.50 viewing card, if they do not want to buy a Sky subscription, was 0870 054 1800. It's all done by recordings with no humans available.

The Digital Television Group carried news of the Solus deal on its website (www.dtg.org.uk/) but failed to warn about the December 31 cut-off date. I e-mailed the Digital TV Group.

> 'TESSA JOWELL'S DEPARTMENT ESTIMATES THAT 0.15MILLION SOLUS CARD HOLDERS ARE AFFECTED ALONG WITH 0.6MILLION 'CHURNERS' WHO'VE STOPPED SUBSCRIBING TO SKY'

Industry guru Jim Slater answers technical queries for the DTG. Slater knows his way around the broadcast industry better than most people but it took him a full day to dig out the facts from a commercial broadcaster who refused to be named. Although sources inside the BBC have been assuming that the scheme will continue, this is not so.

So now Sky receivers sold to viewers in areas of the country which cannot get Five from terrestrial transmitters will need a Sky pay subscription; so will existing receivers or new receivers sold to viewers who want to get ITV and C4 digitally but are not covered by Freeview DTTV terrestrial transmitters.

Tessa Jowell's DCMS estimates that 0.15million Solus card holders are affected along with 0.6million 'churners' who have stopped subscribing to Sky. So that's 750,000 people affected – and the DCMS couldn't be bothered to try to warn them with a press release.

The DCMS website still says it 'expects to [switch off analogue] as early as 2006-2010'.

In your dreams, Tess.

SLIPPED DISCS

Meanwhile, more than two months after the problem surfaced, the BBC is still trying to get to the bottom of why digital disc recorders sometimes refuse to record some BBC digital TV programmes.

We now know that in autumn 2003 the BBC changed its distribution system so that all the English TV regions can transmit separately by Astra satellite. New equipment had to be installed at all regional centres except London. So London continued with a Philips MPEG coder, while Thomson coders were installed everywhere else.

The widescreen signalling system used by Sky (to switch receivers between 4:3 and 16:9 display) uses digital flags buried in line 23 of the analogue picture. The same system also controls copy protection; additional flags in line 23 tell a digital recorder whether it can record or not.

On some programme material, and Top Of The Pops is just one example, the coding process triggers the copy protection flags in the Thomson encoders. So recorders unpredictably refuse to record some programmes.

This happens in all regions except London. Thomson promised the BBC a software fix, but the first version fix did not work reliably.

The last I heard a new fix was still promised.

If you are plagued by this problem, be sure to keep on complaining to the BBC's Duty Officer. That way you will help keep up the pressure on Thomson. One complaint can be regarded as a nuisance; two an irritation. But when the number racks up to a few dozen, it becomes an issue.

And while you are complaining, you might also want to ask why the digital teletext news pages can highlight the top story to make it nicely visible, but show all the other stories in the menu with such low contrast that they are illegible from across the room with ambient lighting. Bring back analogue teletext? ■

And the nominees are...

ALL THAT'S NEW IN THE SKIES ABOVE THE US AND FROM THE NETWORKS ON THE GROUND IS REPORTED EVERY MONTH BY CHRIS FORRESTER

It's awards season again, when the main US networks get into a frenzy over which film has won this or that gong. The big prize is always Oscar, but leading up to the Oscars and its night of a 1,000 stars (February 29) there are a slew of other cinematic prizes up for grabs.

Currently, the leading American movie trade papers are awash with advertising from the studios with their latest Oscar contenders. Each ad states at the top 'For Your Consideration' because officially the industry does not like to be seen as soliciting for votes. But the ads are there , along with lists of the key performers and behind-the-lens talent, right down to 'best make-up' and 'best sound editing'. Every key category is promoted in readiness for the judges to make their minds up, along with some slam-dunk helpful reviews that appeared when the movie was first released. And the TV crews are present every step of the way.

The first of the season's important nominations will already have been made by the time you read this: the Golden Globe nominations came out on December 18. But the Globes were not alone. Other December sets of nominations emerged from the American Film Institute as well as the Independent Spirit Awards, the Directors' Guild, the Costume Designers Guild, the European Film Awards, the International Documentary Assoc., the Los Angeles Film Critics Assoc. the American Cinema Editors (ACE) awards and the Art Directors Guild were all either announcing their finalists or gathering votes for their various associations.

And on Sunday January 4, the New York Critics Circle gala was due to take place, and this is always regarded as an important guide to February's Oscars night. Two days later the British Academy of Film & Television Arts close their on-line voting system for its 'Top 12' nominations (and three days later BAFTA votes again for its 'Top 5' choices).

Indeed, during January there is almost a day-by-day set of nominations announced, or need for votes to be cast leading up to January 25 and the Golden Globe Awards. On January 27 there's the actual Oscars nominee announcements. There's no let-up during February; on the fourth the Oscar final ballots are sent out to those eligible to vote. On February 7 the Directors' Guild has its awards dinner, and February 8 is when the American Society of Cinematographers (ASC) has its bash. By now the various AMPAS (the official name of the Oscar organising group is The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences Association) guilds are closing their own voting lists. AMPAS has its own high-profile lunch on February 9, when the final nominations are featured at a star-studded lunch. On February 14 AMPAS has its 'junior' Oscars night for the various craft and technology awards. The following day, on the 15th, the UK gets its BAFTA night with its slew of celebrities, again perhaps, giving some clues as to how the industry is thinking. And the TV cameras will be around for all these events. Besides the news channels, take a peek at E! Entertainment for top-notch coverage during its assorted 'Red Carpet' nights.

> 'DURING JANUARY THERE IS ALMOST A DAY-BY-DAY SET OF NOMINATIONS ANNOUNCED, OR NEED FOR VOTES TO BE CAST LEADING UP TO JANUARY 25 AND THE GOLDEN GLOBE AWARDS'

Then on February 22 the Screen Actors Guild presents its awards, seven days before Oscars night – when the judges can then relax! The AMPAS night is well-known for its parties, its excess, its longer-than-needed speeches that thank everyone, and the tension. But this year's event should be a little more upbeat than the 2003 ceremony, which because the Iraq War had started just a week before, meant a much lower-key evening. Michael Moore, you may remember, was both praised and vilified for his 'Columbine' speech berating President Bush for 'taking us to war for fictitious reasons'. Some at the time called Moore a loudmouth. Now, even movie-trade paper Daily Variety describes him as something of a prophet. It is spontaneous happenings like this that make Oscars night, and its rivals, such good TV.

And the contests are tougher than ever. Three-time nominee – but never a winner – Tom Cruise is hoping that The Last Samurai will be a winner (although Paul Newman had to sit through seven nominations before he got his first Oscar). Martin Scorcese still hasn't won one; he thinks it's because everyone thinks he has.

In fact, some might argue that some of the screen's best acting talent were perpetually ignored by Oscar (Cary Grant, Steve McQueen, Peter O'Toole and even Alfred Hitchcock never won a 'competitive' Oscar). And Oscar is (notoriously fickle. Consider this: Raging Bull and Goodfellas both lost respectively to Ordinary People and Dances With Wolves. And Peter Weir (director of highly favoured Master & Commander) missed out with Dead Poets' Society, Witness and 1998's The Truman Show. Perhaps his ship will come in this year. But on the other hand maybe Pirates Of The Caribbean will steal the gold from under his nose.

Another favourite is Seabiscuit, but it seems Jeff Bridges could miss out because some votes may be cast for him as 'Best Actor', or should he be in 'Best Supporting Actor' category? Bridges is Hollywood's good boy, highly regarded both on screen and off. That's not the case with Sean Penn, who has something of a difficult reputation. Will that go against him, and Clint Eastwood's Mystic River? Or will Penn also suffer from a split vote for his work in 21 Grams? Other high-profile entrants will almost certainly be Ron Howard's superb The Missing, starring Tommy Lee Jones, and Sofia Coppola's Lost In Translation, starring Bill Murray.

Whichever wins, the result will generate headlines around the world ■

Who will get lucky at this year's Oscars?

Fixing faults

With the best will in the world, a satellite TV system can still go wrong. At least some of the problems can be sorted with this Back to Basics lesson in fault-finding with a fixed dish system

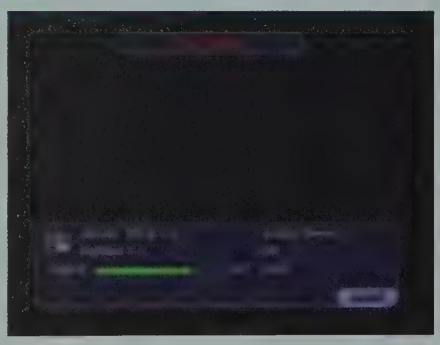
Problems with satellite TV reception usually fall into three broad categories: nothing working at all, missing channels, or poor pictures or sound. Although it may seem impossible to work out what's wrong without expensive test equipment and years of experience, often you can at least narrow down the source of the problem.

With all fault-finding, it's worth thinking about the problem first. Assuming that your system worked properly before, either something has broken of its own accord, or (more likely) something has been done to it by an outside force – quite possibly you!

What was going on when the problems first appeared? Even apparently irrelevant acts can sometimes affect your satellite system. Had you just got a new microwave oven? Have the neighbours built a new extension? Have you just fitted a new LNB? Thinking first may give you a clue as to what's happened to your system.

Nothing working

If your receiver produces no picture or menus, or even a light on at the front (and the mains supply is working), you can be pretty sure that it is a problem with the receiver itself. Switch it off at the mains and try again after a few (or many) minutes. If the mains plug fuse and the receiver's internal fuse are still sound, but there's no sign of life, it's likely the power supply has gone (a relatively common problem with satellite receivers) and you should take it for professional repair.



The 'no signal' message can cover many problems

If the front panel light comes on but there's no picture or menus (on any output), the TV is working and the connections are good, it could still be the power supply or some other receiver internal problem that needs a proper repair. If the receiver acts as normal but doesn't produce a picture or sound, then the problem comes into the category of missing channels, and there's a host of possible problems.

Most receivers display some kind of 'No signal' message when they're working but not receiving any transmission at all. No signal could be as simple as the LNB cable pulled out of its F-connector at the back of the receiver (don't simply shove it back in – you or an installer should make the connection again properly from scratch), or it's been cut (accidentally or deliberately) along its run to the dish. Substitute a length of good cable long enough to reach directly from LNB to receiver if you think the existing cable is damaged to see if it needs a proper replacement.

Make sure your LNB cable is securely connected at both ends, and isn't damaged or slightly kinked

The same symptoms occur if your dish has been obstructed or knocked off alignment. It's not unusual for dishes on house fronts to be clonked by lorries (remember where your dish is pointed when it works correctly, so you can spot if it has moved) and the new high-rise block built opposite or new streetlamp or even a tree that's grown and come into leaf can block the dish's 'view' of the satellite.

There's also the possibility that the fault is still with the receiver, or that the LNB has simply failed (unlikely, but possible). Try your receiver on another (working) system to see if it works there, and try the working receiver on your system to confirm that the LNB/dish/cable are to blame.

Missing channels

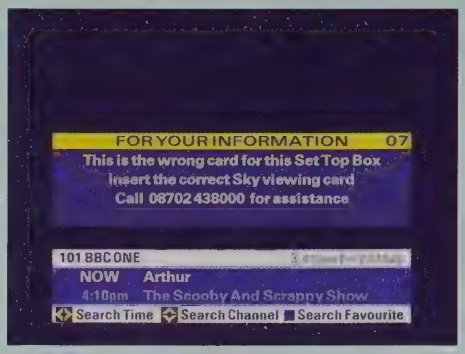
If you get some channels but not others, the chances are that the receiver is working but – to be sure that it can be eliminated from the suspect list – try substituting a working model. And do check that you have any viewing card required by the 'missing' channels, and it is correctly inserted.

Missing channels are also unlikely to be due to a dish obstruction or its alignment – unless you have lost all the channels from one satellite in a co-located group (say, Astra 2D is missing while Astra 2A, 2B and Eurobird 1 are fine) – if your dish is slightly misaligned or partially obstructed you could lose the weaker channels only.

The loss of channels of one polarity, or in one frequency band is a good indication that either the LNB has partly failed (water ingress is a common cause) or that the cable is dodgy (again, water is often the culprit). If a substitute length of cable doesn't then solve it, the problem is with the LNB and this should be replaced (a simple enough job as long as you can access the dish safely).

When you are missing channels from one or two adjacent transponders (and your receiver is tuned in correctly – it can pick them up on another system) it may be another source of microwaves at the same frequency, swamping the satellite signals.

Point-to-point microwave links (used to send business data) and mobile phone transmitters can be responsible, and the only solution is to move the dish so it can still see the satellite but is shielded from the microwave beam. because the source of the interference can be miles away, this usually involves a lot of trial and error.



(right) A dish mounted high up may (rarely) be affected by terrestrial microwave sources

Useful Equipment

- Multimeter – checks voltage on LNB cable (should be 13V or 18V at receiver end and a bit less at the LNB)
- Signal Meter – simple analogue type will tell you if the dish is receiving any satellite signal and help realignment
- Cable and F-connectors – a substitute cable from LNB to receiver will check if a problem is down to the existing cable
- Friend or neighbour with a similar system – by trying items of equipment in each other's systems, you can work out what's faulty
- Self-amalgamating (waterproofing) tape or waterproof connector 'boots' – to re-proof the LNB connection when you've finished fault-finding.

'YOU WILL SOMETIMES BE ABLE TO FIX THE SYSTEM YOURSELF, OFTEN YOU WILL IDENTIFY A FAULTY ITEM FOR SOMEONE ELSE TO REPAIR, AND MOST OF THE TIME YOU WILL AT LEAST NARROW THE SEARCH AND MINIMISE THE CALL-OUT COSTS'

Wireless networking can interfere with TV signals in your home

Poor quality

The final category of problem is poor quality pictures or sound.

Digital TV does not suffer from the picture degradation that analogue can and so, if you get a particularly grainy or fuzzy picture, the problem is likely to be with the TV or the connections to it, rather than the signal.

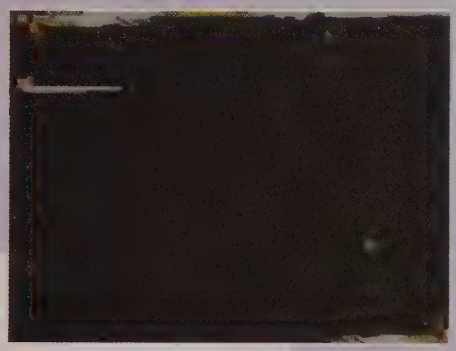
The exception is blocking or 'pixellation' of the picture. If this happens to a previously good channel, your dish may have become misaligned or has a partial obstruction. If a channel has always suffered from this problem, replacing cable or the LNB or fiddling with the receiver won't help – you need a bigger or a better-aligned dish.

If the effect comes and goes, it may be down to a temporary obstruction – trees blowing in the wind in front of the dish, or even birds landing on the feed arm!

Diagonal lines of interference moving across the screen are often caused by mains interference – try moving the mains cables away from the Scart or UHF cables around the back of the TV. Fuzzy pictures can be caused by poor connections or other electronic equipment – a cheap DVD player (or even a satellite receiver) can produce radio signals that interfere with the TV itself. Try moving the boxes from under the TV.

You may find you get sporadic interference in the form of brief picture break-up, flashes on the screen or bursts of 'static' in the audio. This can come from many sources, including mobile or DECT phones, a wireless home network, a microwave oven, some street lights and fluorescent lights, taxi radios, car radar detectors, thermostats in heating systems or fridges and freezers, and power tools.

Some will only occur once in a blue moon for a few seconds and you can probably live with it. Others will be a frequent problem.



Pixellation is a sure sign of poor alignment or an obstruction to your line of sight

Using better-shielded cables (behind the TV and to the dish and aerial) can sometimes solve the problem as can moving your equipment away from the source of the interference. Otherwise, you should track down the source and, if possible, simply switch it off.

It will not always be possible for you to cure any problem with your satellite system, and you will occasionally have to call in the experts.

However, by thinking about the causes and eliminating items of equipment from the suspect list, you will sometimes be able to fix the system yourself, often you will identify a faulty item for someone else to repair, and most of the time you will at least narrow the search and minimise the call-out costs.

ZINWELL ZDX-410HD

THE FUTURE OF BROADCASTING IS HIGH DEFINITION TV, SO, WITH EUROPE'S FIRST HI-DEF CHANNEL LAUNCHING ON ASTRA 1 THIS MONTH, ALEX LANE TEST DRIVES THE FIRST HI-DEF RECEIVER IN THE UK

It's less than a year since Euro1080 announced that it would launch Europe's first high definition TV service, but the excitement has been mounting ever since.

Euro1080 started broadcasting a hi-def showreel on Astra 1 for the IBC broadcasting show in September, and it's been on ever since. The showreel demonstrates some of the hi-def events filmed in Europe by Euro1080's owner, Belgian outside broadcast expert Alfacam. You can see excerpts from rock, pop, and classical music concerts, Blue Peter, The Last Night Of The Proms, football, showjumping, motor racing, athletics and more.

Euro1080 plans to broadcast two channels on 19.2°E from January 1 – a Main Channel for anyone to watch, and an Event Channel for cinemas and clubs. The encrypted Event Channel will carry live material like concerts and sports, at commercial pay-per-view rates running into thousands of pounds.

The Main Channel will also be encrypted from May 2004. The viewing cards will have a one-off cost of around £100, or about £70. This is mainly to satisfy the people whose events Euro1080 will be showing, that there's some control over the distribution.

It launched on January 1 with live coverage of the New Year's Concert in Vienna. Euro1080 promises four hours of hi-def programming a night, with new events regularly added to the schedule, which will gradually expand from the initial four hours.

In common with most TV launches, January 1 is actually a so-called soft launch, and Euro1080 isn't going to be making a fuss about the main channel until around March. But we know you don't want to wait until everyone knows about it!

Unfortunately, there's been no way for the ordinary punter to watch the showreel or the main channel, except through a well-equipped and very fast PC. That's about to change, with the launch of the first consumer satellite receiver for hi-def, Zinwell's ZDX-410HD. Zinwell has got to market first, but it won't have the advantage for long; other receivers are on the way from the likes of Humax and Panasonic this spring.

The ZDX-410HD is actually a free-to-air receiver, but there's a marginally more expensive version with a built-in Irdeto CAM, which we'd encourage you to buy for the day Euro1080 encrypts the Main Channel (Euro1080 has signed up to use Irdeto 2 encryption).

You can set it up with both standard definition composite video and hi-def component video outputs, just in case you get hold of the receiver before you get a suitable hi-def monitor. That's right, your ordinary TV won't show the full beauty of hi-def pictures – you'll need a plasma screen, LCD or CRT capable of 1100-line resolution. These are actually a lot cheaper than they used to be – plasma screens available for as little as £2,500 from the right places.

It's larger than most satellite receivers, on account of the extra signal output electronics inside, but the simple fascia and silver paint job mean it won't stick out amongst your other home cinema equipment. The remote control is unexciting, but functional and equipped with several useful special feature buttons, such as video format, aspect ratio and picture-in-picture.

Setup & navigation

The ZDX-410HD comes preset for watching Euro1080 on Astra 1, and it's not a very complex receiver to use. Up to eight satellite locations are available, although you're limited to DiSEqC 1.0, so you can only switch between four of them automatically, although a full range of LNBs and manual LO frequency settings are available.

There's also a very limited selection of satellites – of the eight listed, the only ones you'll recognise are Astra 1, Astra 3A at 23.5°E, and PAS 1R at 45°W, which only a few lucky large dish owners with a good view will be able to pick up

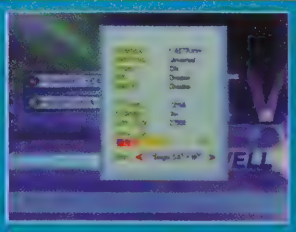
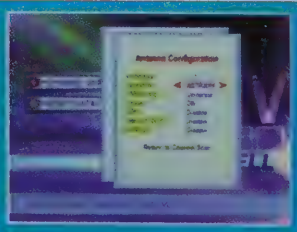
Lock channels or make them your favourites



Scan a whole satellite or just single transponders



There are only eight satellite locations available in the UK. This is something Zinwell will address in a software update, although it's not going to affect your hi-def viewing.

Adjust the picture aspect to suit your TV

You can search whole satellites, using the Network Information Table if you want to expand the transponder list, or just select or manually program a single transponder (which can also be used with the NIT).

A full scan of Astra was surprisingly slow, but thorough, and there's memory on board for several thousand channels. Channels are placed in a main list, which can't be edited in any way, and there's a single favourites list. Again, it won't affect your hi-def viewing, but it needs improvement.

DVB EPG information is available in now-and-next format on an attractive onscreen banner, which also shows the time, programme format (HD or SD), audio format (MPEG or Dolby) and teletext availability. There's also a full-screen EPG display, showing the day's schedules for a selected channel.

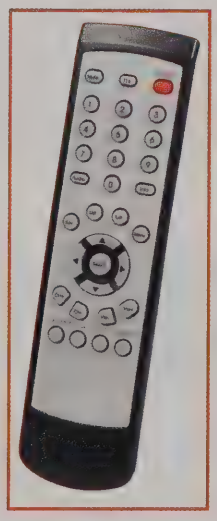
Performance

Viewed on our NEC Plasmasync 42in display, the ZDX-410HD really shows the difference between the lowest quality analogue display format – composite video – and the highest – component video. Even good quality standard definition channels like Prosieben look blurry and unstable, and there's an instant improvement in picture stability and colour definition with component video. The S-video output is some improvement, but only a little.

If you think component video standard definition pictures look nice, there's still no comparison when you switch to Euro1080's hi-def signal. Euro1080 broadcasts at around 18Mbit/s, which is more than four times the bandwidth of even the most generous standard def channels, so the pictures look good in composite video, with no pixellation when there's a busy foreground like a sea of flags at the Proms.

Turn to component video and you're in a new world. The images are hypnotically lifelike, stunning in their richness. No drop of water dissolves into pixels; you can see every drop of sweat on performers faces – every line is sharp and skin tones are entirely lifelike.

These will be the clichés of the hi-def age, and perhaps the most apt analogy is the increase in quality going from VHS to a well-mastered DVD.



The only way you could probably improve it would be to use a DVI output so the signal is never converted from digital to analogue. Only very high-end plasma screens have these so far, so that can be forgiven for 12 months. In coming years, you may find other HD standards testing as well as 1080i, and if you do the ZDX-410HD can handle all of the formats around, from 480p to 1080i.

All of Euro1080's prime time broadcasts are in Dolby Digital, and sound as good as they look; rich,deep and textured.

Hi-def TV will be the future, and it will probably be mainstream within five years. This receiver is the only way to get there now, although we'd recommend you get the Irdeto version so you don't end up with a blank screen later this year ■

NEC Plasmasync PX-42XM2G/S

Hi-def TV demands a monitor that can do it justice, so we used one of NEC's 42in Plasmasync monitors, a 16:9 screen which has a resolution of 1024x768 pixels and 16million colours.

It's blessed with several composite, S-video and component inputs, an SVGA input and a DVI (digital RGB input), plus more features than we can list here. The monitor includes software to slightly enhance SD pictures, but you'll only be happy watching DVDs or hi-def TV through the component inputs, or playing high-resolution PC games. It can cope with the full range of HD standards and PC resolutions up to 1600x1200 supported using built-in re-formatting. There are also several features designed to reduce screen burn from persistent images like onscreen channel logos, and it's pretty much plug-and-play.

Dimensions: 30in x 24in x 3.5in. Cost: £4,695

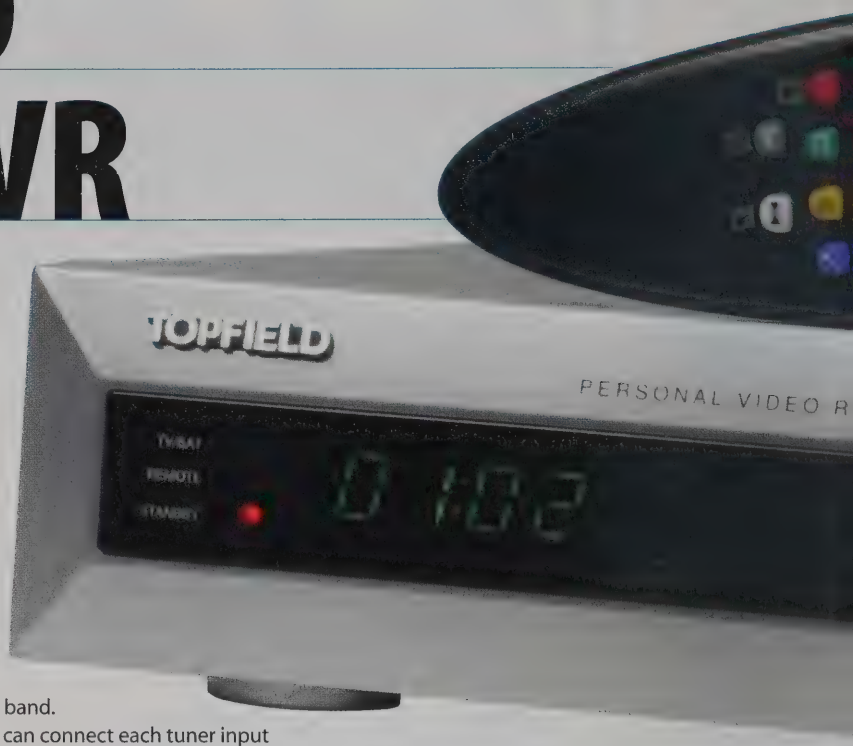
TOPFIELD TF5000PVR

MALCOLM BROWN RECORDS TWO CHANNELS AT ONCE AND EDITS YESTERDAY'S TV, ALL FROM ONE SILVER BOX



Imagine a keen fan of the Sky Plus receiver sitting down to produce a version suitable for multi-satellite, and both free-to-air and (non-Sky) encrypted channels. It's likely they would come up with something very similar to the Topfield TF5000PVR.

This is a free-to-air satellite receiver with two common interface slots for CAMs, DiSEqC motorised mount drive, two tuners and an 80GB hard drive to record programmes. If ever the Echostar DVR7000 was looking for some competition, here it is.

The TF5000PVR looks pretty good, too. It's remarkably small but solid in construction and is finished in the currently trendy silver with the ever-so-up-to-date chrome dome buttons. Even its remote handset is a step above most of the throng from the Far East – nicely shaped and sensibly laid out for reasonably intuitive use.

The two tuners are key. Like the Sky Plus, this enables the TF5000PVR to record one programme while you're watching another, or record two different programmes while you watch a previously recorded show.

However, unlike the Sky Plus, the two tuner inputs do not have to be connected to LNBs 'watching' the same satellite. Each of the TF5000PVR's two tuner inputs has a loopthrough output to feed to another satellite receiver (but only for following the same polarity and frequency band) or to feed to the other input. So you can connect up each tuner input to one output of a twin LNB (or two LNBs pointed at the same satellite) and you'll get the Sky Plus situation – transparent recording and watching of two channels at once.

Or you can connect up one input to a single LNB and loop it through to the second input – and you'll be able to record one channel while watching another of the same polarity and frequency band.

Or you can connect each tuner input to LNBs pointing at different satellites – then you can record a channel on one satellite while watching one on the other.

Or you can get really complicated and connect each input up to a DiSEqC switch fed from one output of up to four twin LNBs. That way, you can record and watch different channels from four satellites.

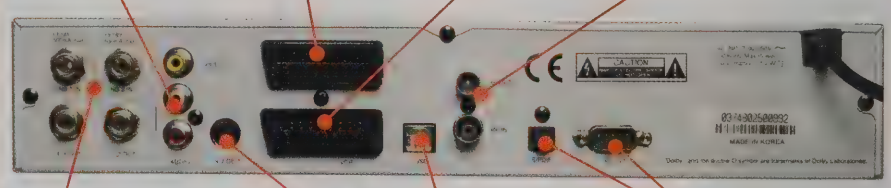
As if that wasn't enough, you can also connect either tuner input to a DiSEqC motorised dish for accessing pretty much as many satellites as you'd ever want (57, in fact). And as the TF5000PVR supports the USALS extension to DiSEqC that calculates the position of satellites according to your longitude and latitude, finding all these satellites is not too hard either.

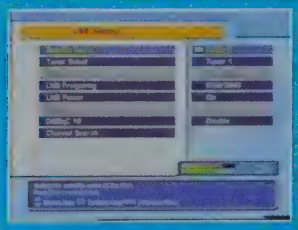
Overall, it's an incredibly versatile system that makes the most of having two tuners, both for PVR use and everyday TV watching.

Once your complex (or simple) antenna system is connected up, searching for the channels is simple enough – and much like any other digital receiver. The receiver holds a database of transponder details for each satellite and scans through this looking for channels.

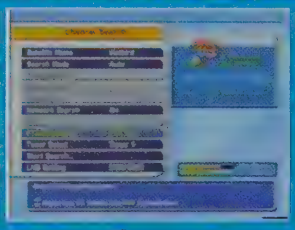
You can elect to search for just FTA or

BACK TO BACK

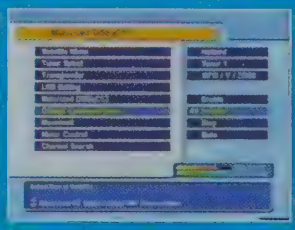




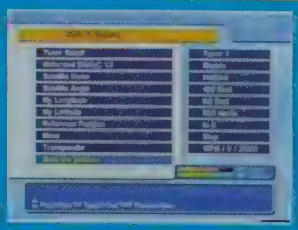
Your tuners can be looped on one LNB or operated individually



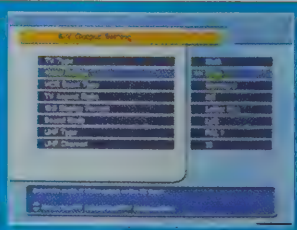
Search for FTA channels, scrambled, or both



Use a DiSEqC motor to access up to 57 satellites



And use USALS to set it up easily



Choose RGB and 16:9 for the best pictures

encrypted channels, or both, and you can search just one transponder from the database, and search with PIDs defined too. You can specify your own transponder parameters (for new or changed broadcasts) but these are not added to the database. To change the parameters stored there, new data must be downloaded over the air or from a PC.

You can search for channels using either tuner, as appropriate, and then a simple menu will copy from one to the other, if you have a twin LNB system. During setup, the TF5000PVR is 'told' whether the tuner inputs are separated or looped through so it knows what it can and cannot record.

+ TWO TUNERS AND UNRIVALLED PVR FUNCTIONALITY

– CHANNEL SEARCH DATABASE IS NOT USER-UPDATEABLE. COULD BE CHEAPER

Accessing the channels found is also straightforward. You can enter the channel number, or select from the onscreen list (which usefully can be set to display the broadcaster too). Channels in the list can be reordered, renamed, sorted (alphabetically, by transponder frequency, provider, satellite, or encryption), and 'skipped' so they can only be selected by number. The TF5000PVR also provides up to 30 favourite channel lists that can be easily named and populated with any channels in the receiver's memory. Four are already named News, Sport, Movies and Music.

In use, the TF5000PVR displays an information banner on channel change that not only provides the channel name and now-and-next programme details but details of satellite and transponder and the signal level too.

The EPG can be displayed in two formats – the currently selected channel only with six programmes time and titles displayed, or with four channels and a grid of programme titles. The detailed programme synopsis is available in either mode.

This receiver supports subtitles and teletext (both re-inserted in the signal for display with a teletext TV, and decoded onscreen by the receiver), it has a sleep timer, and to cap it all has picture-in-picture so you can keep an eye of what's being broadcast when watching the other tuner or a recording. You can independently select a channel for viewing in the main or PIP window and switch between them.

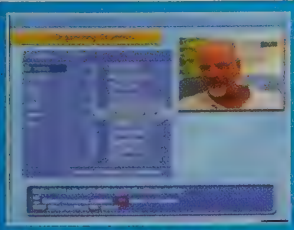
There are even three games available (variations on Pac-man, Breakout and a sort of picture dominos Tetris) to keep you occupied if you have any non-TV time left.

But the TF5000PVR's real claim to fame is its sophisticated PVR functions. Like the Sky Plus, it is constantly buffering the live reception so you can instantly pause a programme and rewind it. Rewound programmes can also be saved to the hard drive as recordings.

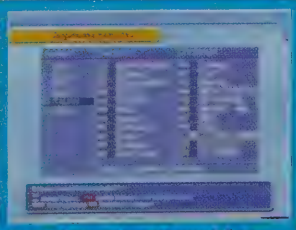
Recordings are made instantly with the Record button or with an event timer, or using the EPG.

Encrypted channels can be recorded unencrypted (with the right CAM and card, of course) or encrypted and converted to unencrypted later – again, providing you have the right CAM and viewing card.

A menu of recorded programmes is displayed with the press of a button. These can be arranged in Groups (folders), sorted, re-ordered

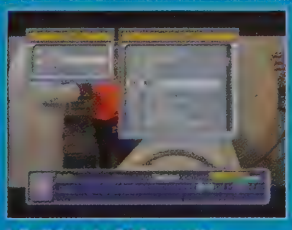


Edit, sort and delete your channel list



Four favourites channel lists are pre-named

Call up onscreen tuning and programme details



Build up to 30 favourite channels lists

No need to use your TV's teletext decoder – it's built-in

manually, deleted, locked against deletion, and renamed (a particularly useful function – the default name is the EPG programme name, if available, or the channel name). You can even play a sequence of any of the recordings, in any order, like a Windows playlist.

Of course, during playback you can fast forward through the show at 2x, 4x, and 6x normal speed and rewind at 1x, 2x or 3x speed. No really fast speeds there, but you can also move more or less straight to a point in the recording by pressing the Play button while the recording is playing. This displays a bar representing the entire recording with a line showing the current position and the percentage and time through the whole. Now the left and right keys move the position line through the bar and playback changes to that point when the buttons are released. Alternatively, you can enter the percentage point required with the number keys.

You can, of course, pause a recording, play it in slow motion (1/2, 1/4 and 1/8 speed) and repeat a section. However, unlike Sky Plus, with the TF5000PVR you cannot stop playback and return later to the point you left – a very useful feature in practice and sadly missing.

However, an excellent feature not seen on Sky Plus is copying recordings. When playing a recording you can duplicate just a section of it to the hard drive. Or you can cut out sections of a recording, saving the rest – great for removing adverts.

All this helps to conserve hard drive space, but that's not at too much of a premium. Hard drive capacity is used up at a rate of about 35MB a minute – so you'll get around 40 hours' recording on the whole 80GB drive.

Radio, of course takes up much less space and MP3 files can also be downloaded via the USB port from a PC, stored on the hard drive and the TF5000PVR used as a audio server.

It's a fantastically well thought-out package. There's little that it cannot do and the quality of sound and pictures it produces – live or recorded – will not disappoint. Using the TF5000PVR is simple; it's easy to get to grips with and intuitive in use. It's stylish, it's fast, it's a reasonable price for such a comprehensive package. Definitely the best… so far ■

HAUPPAUGE DEC3000-S

A SATELLITE RECEIVER FOR THE PC AND THE TV MAKES HAUPPAUGE'S LATEST PRODUCT STAND OUT, BUT ALEX LANE SEES SCOPE FOR IMPROVEMENT

Hauppauge recently found success with the DEC2000-t, a compact digital terrestrial TV adapter which could be used with a TV or a PC. The DEC3000-s is a digital satellite version, which draws on the company's years of experience with digital satellite receiver PCI cards.

The UK version is intended for people who want to watch the free-to-air channels on 28°E, and it comes pre-loaded with a list of channels for a quick start. You can get the BBC's six channels (and numerous regional variations of BBC One) and a host of shopping, religious and special interest channels, plus a huge selection of high-quality satellite radio channels. Unfortunately, the continuing lack of a Videoguard CAM means you can't get ITV, Channel 4 and Five, or subscribe to Sky.

However, it's also perfectly happy with any other satellite your dish might be aimed at, and the PC software, which originates in Germany, is preset for Astra 1 and Hot Bird, rather than Astra 2/Eurobird 1.

It's a very compact, slim unit, with just a couple of red and green power LEDs on the front and a single common interface slot for pay-TV CAM units. The silver and black design is quite attractive, even if it seems to have been modelled on a pair of Y-fronts. The remote control is sturdy and simple, with just a few extra buttons for accessing special menus.

The standalone receiver and PC adapter modes of the DEC3000-s are completely separate, with independent channel lists and setup menus, although the Scart socket can be used to display live pictures on a TV.

Going solo

In standalone mode, there are just seven simple menus – user setup, LNB setup, channel scan, channel info, channel list edit, parental control and firmware update.

You can receive up to four satellites, switched with DiSEqC 1.0, from a list of 30 locations, plus one spare slot for a new location.

Universal LNBs are assumed, but you can set your own LO frequencies and control power to the LNB.

The channel scan gives you a signal strength and quality readout, and allows you to scan the whole satellite, individual transponders, or input your own frequency, symbol rate and polarisation for a new transponder.

The scan is fast, and dumps all the channels it finds in the single main channel list. This is a problem if you've got several satellites active, because they're all just listed alphabetically and can't be sorted by satellite. You can move channels around the main list to create a defacto separation, but it's fairly impractical. There's a single favourites list, which is pre-selected with all the free channels from 28°E.

Even though many people will only occasionally use the DEC3000-s as a standalone satellite receiver, we expect more than this from the most basic free-to-air receiver; channels should be sorted by satellite and there should be several favourites lists to narrow down the thousands of channels into a manageable list.

Picture quality is as sharp and clear as you'd expect on the best channels, but suffers in the usual way on channels with low bandwidth (although sometimes this can be the BBC, not Friendly TV). Audio output is quite acceptable, especially via the digital audio output, though again it's a hostage to the broadcast quality.

+ SIMPLE TO USE, GOOD PICTURES

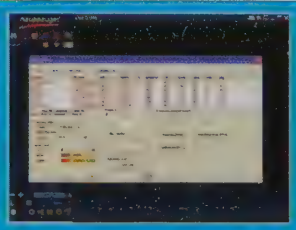
– JUST ONE TIMER, POOR CHANNEL ORGANISATION

Teamed up

The DEC3000-s should really come alive when it's linked to the greater processing power and memory of a PC. Supplied with Intervideo hard disc recording and timeshifting software, it becomes a personal video recorder and a far more dynamic receiver.

It's easy to set up, with again up to four LNBs, although as with Hauppauge's PCI cards, there are likely to be enterprising users who will produce a DiSEqC 1.2 upgrade of their own and post it on the web. The satellite list here is absolutely comprehensive, and stored in a text file which you can edit at your leisure.

The scan process is more complex, and can be set to scan for either TV or radio, just look for new channels, or just update the existing list. It's a good deal slower as well, partly because it goes through several potential symbol rate, polarisa-



The scan options are very thorough

... and the TV interface is very simple

tion and frequency combinations, slicing the Ku-band into 5kHz sections so no new transponders are missed.

Advanced users can scan a single transponder, or set the frequency range and scanning intervals to meet their own needs. Enthusiasts will find this a powerful way to search for unusual signals.

Channel organisation is much better, with separate lists for each satellite and individual alphabetical sections. However, there's still only one favourites list; there's no reason with a PC why you can't have as many as you like.

Hauppauge has kept its standard display design, with a channel list to the left of the main vide window and above that, icons for sub-menus for channel scan, common interface, channel list edit, setup and help. Below the channel list are volume, language selection and recording/timeshift controls. Above the video display is the current channel's name, and below it is a now-and-next EPG window.

Recording or time-shifting is very simple; just press the relevant button, and on a fast PC the process will start almost immediately. Annoyingly, while the record function tells you how long it's been running, the time-shift pop-up window just gives a file size, so you don't know how long you've paused for. You can choose whether to keep the time-shift file or have it automatically deleted.

There's only a single timer for recordings, along with a sleep timer of up to 120 minutes, which is a bit lacking in a system where you'll really want to make timed recordings. You can choose to have the display and sound on while you record, and have audio-only recordings, which are much smaller than the 4Mbit/s video recordings.

Picture quality is very good for a PC receiver, even running at full screen on a 17in monitor, and although it looks pixellated it's acceptable (and you can watch on a TV if you want). Audio is very good and, of course, your PC can supply digital surround sound if suitably equipped.

Other features include Hauppauge's excellent web-style Teletext browser and a full EPG, which downloads from selected channels so you can print it out – it's a shame you can't use it to programme the EPG.

It's fully compatible with MAC addressing, so it can also be used with satellite internet services and with offline services like push file delivery and MPEG4 TV channels.

The DEC3000-s is a typically good Hauppauge product at a competitive price for a USB device, but the lack of a timer and poor channel organisation are shortcomings that a brand like Hauppauge should have overcome after so many generations of software ■

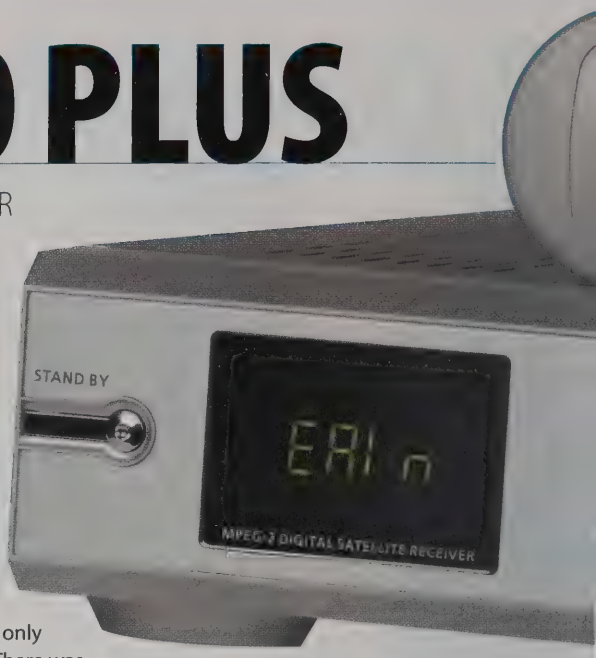
@SAT ECI9500 PLUS

MARTIN PIPE CHECKS OUT THE @SAT ECI9500 PLUS – A RECEIVER WITH SOME INTERESTING TRICKS UNDER ITS BELT



There are many good free-to-air satellite receivers out there, many of which sell for very reasonable sums of money. This one may not be the cheapest, but it's one of the first that can be converted into a personal video recorder (PVR) by adding the hard disc of your choice.

If the PVR functionality isn't required, you might be interested in the otherwise-identical ECI9500s version. But as it's only £20 cheaper, we would recommend investing in the Plus. Also noteworthy is the embedded UCAS (Universal Condition Access System) CAM, which as supplied simulates SECA/Mediaguard. If you subscribe to a service that uses this encryption system, you can just pop in your viewing card into the slot and start viewing. Mediaguard CAMs usually sell for around £80 on their own. Theoretically, UCAS could be re-programmed to simulate other CAMs if you have the relevant tools and know-how. Indeed, we've seen some UCAS CAMs support no fewer than six different encryption systems! In addition, there are also two standard common interface slots that will accept any hardware CAMs you may have.

'THE PLUS DIFFERS FROM THE STANDARD 9500S INSOFAR THAT IT HAS THE EXTRA COMPONENTS ON THE MAIN CIRCUIT BOARD FOR THE IDE HARD-DISK INTERFACE'

The Plus is a compact little receiver with some pleasant touches. In the centre of the front panel is a symmetrical group of menu controls, based around a central 'joypad' device. These controls will select channels and configure many aspects of the receiver (except PIN-protected functions and ones that require numbers to be entered). But what a pity that there's no record button, for those with PVR aspirations. For this, and swapping between radio and TV, you'll need the rather nondescript remote.

To the left of the front panel is a green four-digit LED display that indicates the current channel number, as well as other functions like recording. To the right is a hinged flap that lowers to reveal the UCAS and button-release CI slots. The average CAM – with viewing card – recesses nicely so the flap will close, preserving the receiver's neat appearance.

On the Plus's rear panel are Scarts for TV and VCR, plus phono sockets for composite/stereo audio output, 12V switch output, a serial port for firmware upgrading via a PC, TV RF in/out and Dolby Digital (but alas, not DTS) compatible optical digital audio out. At the time of writing the TV Scart only supported RGB and composite video. There was an S-video mini-DIN output on the review model, but it wasn't wired up internally. The standard 9500s doesn't have this connector at all (in other respects, bar the PVR upgradability, the receivers are identical). By the time you read this, importer Viking Satellite Supplies reckons that the aforementioned connector will be connected – there will be a S-video option in the 'user settings' menu. Hopefully, a future firmware upgrade will add S-video to existing models – if only via Scart. Still on the subject of video, the Plus is capable of delivering PAL NTSC or Secam output. Finally, we have a single LNB input, and a loopthrough output for a 'slave' receiver. This is not, as the somewhat poor manual suggests, an RF output for your TV. Video output options, UHF modulator settings, digital audio output mode, language and CAM options can be changed from the PIN-protected 'system setting' menu. You can also change the clock settings from here – unfortunately, the Plus can't get the time and date 'over the air'. This is a pity, especially as far as the optional PVR is concerned, because you're at the mercy of the internal clock's accuracy.

But for the most part we're fairly happy with the @Sat menu system, which is reasonably logically organised and relies heavily on the remote's four colour buttons. Amazingly, it even offers some games (including Tetris). But most will want to use the @Sat as a satellite receiver. Initial configuration here involves the 'channel search' menu. From here, you can specify LNB type (C or Ku band), local oscillator frequencies, 12V output, LNB power and DiSEqC variation for each satellite. Setting up the Plus is a doddle, especially if you have a DiSEqC motorised mount. This is because the receiver supports USALS. Enter your latitude and longitude, and a compatible mount will find the satellites for you automatically. We tried the receiver with an affordable new Eastern-European USALS mount and 95cm offset dish from Viking and were able to get it going quickly. Standard DiSEqC mounts (the receiver supports version 1.2, with up to 60 satellite positions) are also catered for, as are fixed dishes. Several of the latter could be used, provided you were to use a DiSEqC switchbox. If you have only two such dishes, though, you may be better off using the 12V output to trigger a simple LNB switch. On which subject, the 12V output takes the form of a phono output. Unfortunately, it's grouped with the analogue audio and composite video outputs, so be careful when connecting up your gear.

FAIR VALUE, DECENT PERFORMER, UPGRADABILITY

TIMER AND CLOCK NEED WORK

Finding channels is very easy, especially if you've a USALS mount. Up to 8,058 radio and TV channels can be stored, which is more than enough for anybody. Turn to the 'channel search' menu, highlight one or more satellites and you can search for available services – all, free-to-air only, or by network – that they may carry. The signal strength and quality are shown on a pair of tri-colour bargraphs at the base of the menu screen. A standard search relies on the transponders stored in its memory. Transponder details can, however, be edited to reflect any line-up changes or personal preferences before a search. To do this, press of the handset's green button and the transponder list is displayed. Press the red button, and transponder details can entered directly. These include the usual polarity, frequency, symbol rate and FEC in addition to more advanced search parameters like video, audio and PCR PIDs. Just the thing for feedhunters (as well as anybody who wants to watch or listen to the BBC's FTA TV and radio services!). Viking places a lot of emphasis on its support for the @Sat range, and it has been putting new channel/transponder databases (and firmware) on its website for downloading to your PC. There's also a channel editor available. To make the most of these items, you will, as with most other receivers, need to connect your PC to the receiver via a 'null-modem' serial cable.

Toggling between radio and TV reception is done by pressing a button on the remote. Channels can be accessed directly via the up and down keys (you can also scroll through pages). Pressing the green ('sort') button gives you a bit more flexibility; the channel database can be organised by satellite, genre, scrambling system, network or alphabetical order. An 'edit channel list' function located in the main menu, meanwhile, will let you define up to eight favourite channel lists. From here, you can also set up the genres (up to 15) that the aforementioned sort function relies on. Channels can be renamed or deleted from the channel list. All quite flexible. So too is the EPG, which supports seven-day listings in addition to the usual 'now-and-next'. Unfortunately, you cannot use the EPG to program the eight-event timer. Instead, you have to manually specify the start time/date, duration and channel (the 'sort' facility is a Godsend here). The timer is provided for the benefit of VCR owners, but will instead save programmes to the hard disc if one of these has been fitted. Which brings us to the Plus's PVR features.

The Plus differs from the standard 9500s insofar that it has the extra components on the main circuit board for the IDE hard-disk interface. In addition, the power supply is a bit beefier. It's supplied with a mounting kit and short ribbon cable that allows a standard 3.5in IDE hard disc to be fitted. Doing this is easy and affordable because hard drive prices have plummeted in recent years. Viking reckons that the Plus will accommodate drives of up to 120GB in capacity, which can be purchased for less than £70.

We tried a 15GB Quantum drive, freshly-unformatted with Maxtor's Maxblast utility, and found that it was recognised. The drive then has to be formatted by the receiver itself (the relevant option is in the 'system setting' menu). This resulted in a usable capacity of just under 11GB. Most users will be opting for drives of at least 40GB. Note that the disc format is, however, not the same PC FAT32 type as found in other satellite PVRs. We removed the hard disc from the receiver, plugged it into a PC and found that its format wasn't recognised by Windows. In other words, you won't easily be able to use your PC to get recordings on to DVDs or CDs.

A useful thumbnail helps you to identify video recordings

'THERE IS – AS WITH OTHER SATELLITE PVRS – NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE RECORDING AND THE ORIGINAL BROADCAST'

So what can you do with that hard drive fitted? For a start, there's a 'timeshift' function, although you must remember to turn it on (another visit to 'system setting'). Here, you can 'pause' live TV so that you don't miss anything while you answer the phone. Pressing pause again starts playback from that point – you can also cue, review or engage one of five slow-motion. There's also a 10-second skip, which works in either direction. Unfortunately, it's not possible to 'save' a timeshifting to the hard disc.

Then, of course, there's the timer. If the channel you want is on a different satellite, the Plus will move to it before recording (your start time should reflect that it might take a couple of minutes to move the dish to the correct position). Manual recording is also a possibility; if desired, you can specify a stop time (a bit like a VCR's OTR feature). Interestingly, the datastream recorded to the hard disc is decrypted. In other words, you'll be able to view your recordings even when your viewing card is no longer valid. Finally, we're pleased to report that radio channels can also be recorded.

Audic visually, things are up to scratch. Studio shots reveal that the pictures aren't the crispest we've seen – even with a RGB connection – but then again most satellite channels don't give you fine detail in abundance to begin with. But colours are handled well, with little misregistration or noise. Sonically, the Plus is occasionally spoilt by sibilance – notably on female voices – that disappears when the optical digital output is used. More positively, there is – as with other satellite PVRs – no difference between the recording and the original broadcast. Hardly surprising, though, when you consider that the unit is merely recording and replaying the MPEG datastream. And the Plus appears to be pretty sensitive. With that 95cm dish and a rather elderly 0.7dB universal LNB, we were picking up all kinds of fascinating services – even some of the weaker ones from Thor and Sirius broke through. But there are bugs that need attention.

Most notably, the timer is unreliable as far as hard disc recordings are concerned; it can only be truly relied on if the channel you want to record is carried on the satellite your dish is currently aimed at. If it's on a different satellite the recording either cannot be accessed, or there's something else wrong with it (no sound, for example). @Sat and Viking, to their credit, are taking customer service seriously and plan to support this range of receivers via its website. As bugs like these are discovered, they will be fixed through firmware. You could argue that the product should have been completely bug-free before release, but life is seldom that easy. But the 9500s and Plus are interesting little receivers with a lot to offer both European pay-TV addicts and true enthusiasts ■

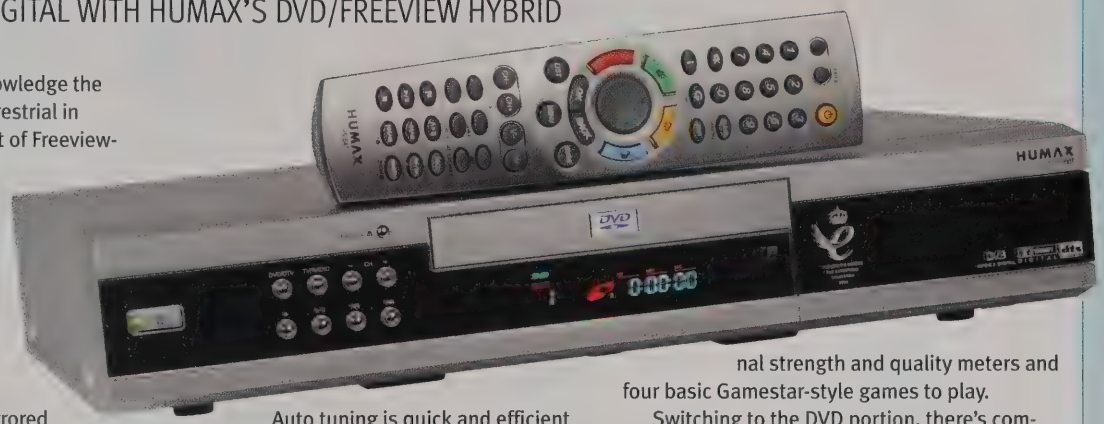
BUYING A COMBINATION RECEIVERS CAN SAVE YOU BOTH MONEY AND SPACE. GRANT RENNELL GETS DOUBLY DIGITAL WITH HUMAX'S DVD/FREEVIEW HYBRID



Humax has begun to acknowledge the rapid take-up of digital terrestrial in thus UK by producing a raft of Freeview-ready products. These range from basic plug-and-play adapters, to hard disc equipped PVRs, to the DV-1000T – a combined Freeview adapter and DVD player.

The DV-1000T has a sizeable casing, even considering what's inside, being roughly a third larger than Thomson's DVD/Freeview combi, the DVT1100. It sports a slick-looking mirrored front panel with eight small, round operating buttons covering the essential functions of both portions sat alongside the DVD tray. A healthy set of connectors on the rear comprises twin Scarts (one RGB, both S-video and composite), component video, S-video and composite video outputs and a UHF loopthrough (a modulator is included if your TV doesn't have a Scart connection). Audio is equally well-catered for with stereo phonos and an optical digital audio output.

The impressive styling extends to the metallic-grey wand-style remote which is comfortable to hold and bristling with well-labelled and responsive buttons.

One slight area of disappointment with the DV-1000T is that, while it fulfils its role as a space saving two-in-one product, both portions co-exist in relative isolation. Toggling between them (using the DVD/DTV button) means the receiver effectively has to reboot itself. The DTT portion takes around 10 seconds to load, which isn't too annoying in itself, but the price you pay for this separation of the two is that you cannot record a digital channel and watch a DVD at the same time.

Auto tuning is quick and efficient and the DV-1000T had no trouble finding all available multiplexes. Pressing the 'I' button brings up a blue quarter-screen programme information banner (with variable timeout and transparency settings) which includes now-and-next programme info and a row of icons indicating, for example, whether MHEG 5 interactive services are available. Pressing 'I' again brings up a half-screen page showing now-and-next synopses.

Prodding the Guide button brings up a full screen, seven day-ready EPG which incorporates a number of search functions liable to become particularly useful once more extensive programme information is broadcast on Freeview.

An onscreen keyboard lets you search for programmes by name, or you can search by programme genre. Up to five favourites lists can be created and there's a 20-event timer option accompanied by an onscreen reminder. Other notable features include a choice of aspect ratios, 4:3, 16:9 or 16:9 letterbox, viewable signal strength and quality meters and four basic Gamestar-style games to play.

Switching to the DVD portion, there's comprehensive playback support for CDs, VCDs, CD-RWs (including MP3 files), SVCDs and the major recordable DVD formats: DVD-R, DVD-RW, DVD+R and DVD+RW. Decoders for both DTS and Dolby 5.1 are also included, along with trick-play features including zoom and slow motion.

Picture quality is sharp and colourful from the DTT tuner and the DVD portion is no slouch either. Tested with The Lord Of the Rings: The Two Towers, images were crisply rendered, revealing plenty of detail and excellent contrast made the most of potentially murky scenes such as the battle at Helm's Deep.

Although it would have been nice to see closer integration between the DVD player and DTT portions, few will find cause to grumble with the slick presentation, easy-to-use operating system, and excellent overall AV performance. It's not quite a marriage made in heaven, but the DV-1000T is an inexpensive way to introduce the digital delights of both Freeview and DVD to your living room ■

ARCHSAT VIDEO LINK

VIDEOSENDERS OFFER AN EASY WAY TO SPREAD TV THROUGHOUT THE HOUSE. GRANT RENNELL ENJOYS SKY UPSTAIRS AND DOWNSTAIRS WITH ARCHSAT'S VIDEO LINK

If current industry trends are to be believed the TV watching home of the future is a wireless one where mum, dad and their 2.4 children can happily watch TV or a DVD in different rooms without having to fork out for extra receivers or DVD players, or going down the messy route of drilling holes in the walls to lay cabling from a receiver to a second TV.

The easiest way to distribute TV signals wirelessly around the house is to use a videosender. These comprise two units – a receiver which connects to the second TV, and a transmitter which connects to the source. Videosenders typically use the 2.4GHz microwave transmission system, which is capable of sending composite video and stereo audio signals through walls (providing there isn't a lot of metal in-between) at a distance of up to 50m.

As the basic specifications rarely differ between videosenders, manufacturers are constantly coming up with quirky designs to make their products stand out from the crowd. The Video Link is no exception; the endearing blue and grey plastic stylings of both units resembles space-themed children's toys – making them particularly suitable for children's bedrooms.

Each unit is powered by a 12V adapter and features a flip-up rotating aerial plate for sending the video and audio signals, together with a foldable radio aerial used for conveying remote commands to the transmitter. A switch on the bottom of each can be used to flick between radio channels to avoid interference.

The rear of the transmitter unit features a connection for an infrared emitter lead which can be used to control up to three separate boxes using the supplied lead, plus composite video and stereo audio outputs.

The receiver unit also has composite video and stereo audio outputs, together with a UHF output (useful if you have an older portable TV as a second set). An RCA/Scart-to-Scart adapter is also supplied to ease connectivity headaches.

The Video Link was tested across two floors of a house beaming signals from our Sky Plus to a portable TV. Picture and sound quality were very acceptable for a composite signal and only minor adjustment of the aerial was required at the receiver end to get a good result.

We also had little problem in getting our Sky Plus to recognise remote commands sent by the receiver unit in another room. But if you need extra reassurance (or your existing videosender is not equipped for sending remote control signals), Archsat also sells a separate infrared Remote Blaster unit for £35.

There's little here to fault the Videolink. It's easy to set up, fun to look at and does the job admirably ■

ECHOSTAR T-101 FTA

MALCOLM BROWN GOES TO A SATELLITE OLD TIMER FOR A FREEVIEW DIGITAL TERRESTRIAL RECEIVER

Echostar has been making satellite receivers for longer than almost anyone else. Now the company has turned its attention to digital terrestrial TV and produced the T-101 FTA for Freeview free-to-air channels in the UK.

Housed in a light grey plastic case, it isn't too elegant, but the remote control handset is a typical up-to-date Echostar model – black and heavily contoured.

Once it's connected up and turned on, the T-101 tunes in the Freeview channels automatically, taking about four minutes. The tuner is more sensitive than most and locks the channels on the test site's weakest multiplex, which sometimes foils other receivers.

The pictures received are clear and crisp and the sound quality is well up to standard. Unfortunately, there are no volume control keys on the handset, nor even a mute key. The only volume control is deep in the menu system, and then it offers only three settings.

The T-101 can be set up for 4:3 or widescreen TVs and, if a 4:3 TV is used, then widescreen broadcasts can be displayed letterbox, cropped or stretched to fill the frame.

Changing channels is fast and the T-101 displays digital text pages quickly too (it has the necessary MHEG-5 software). While a channel is being watched, the 'i' key displays the name and number of the channel, the time, the current programme, and flags for digital text or subtitles. You can also display the following programme and the shows on other channels. Another press of the 'i' key displays a synopsis of the show.

The Guide key displays a similar EPG for 10 channels at once. From here you can set an onscreen programme reminder against any show on next (up to 10 of them).

A conventional four-event timer is provided for unattended recordings.

The T-101's biggest failings are in its connectivity. Two Scart sockets are provided (for TV and VCR) but the UHF loopthrough is only for passing on the aerial signal to other devices. There's no modulator so you cannot watch the T-101 on a TV without a Scart connector or on secondary TVs fed from a distribution amp. And there are no outputs for S-video, digital audio or even stereo audio.

However, the T-101 does have its programme reminders, simple menu system and a sensitive tuner. It may not be the most exciting Freeview box available, but it is a solid performer ■

SONY KD-28DX50U

AS SONY CONTINUES TO SHOW STRONG SUPPORT FOR DIGITAL TV IN THE UK, GRANT RENNELL GIVES A THUMBS-UP TO ITS LATEST INTEGRATED TV

As one of the biggest name brands in the consumer electronics market, Sony's commitment to support the take-up of digital terrestrial TV in this country can only be applauded. The KD-28DX50U forms part of its latest range of CRT integrated digital TVs (a 32in version is also available) and we can look forward to LCD and (unusually) plasma TVs with a digital tuner this year. This mid-range TV doesn't have the bells and whistles of other more high-end sets in the range such as the recently reviewed KD32-DX150 with 100Hz flicker reduction. The question is, does it still offer good value for money?

Chicago on Sky Movies © Miramax Films

Build

Visually, the KD-28DX50U bears the same bold angular hallmarks and silvery colouring of the KD32-DX150. A jutting, attention-grabbing frame surrounds the screen, while a small, black pop-down panel underneath the tapering fascia is host to the front AV sockets and operating buttons. It's a bold if slightly too blocky-looking design which looks best sitting on the matching two-shelf stand. The remote control is the familiar, intelligently organised wand-style Sony button pusher with multi-brand support for DVD players or VCRs produced by Sony and other major brand names.

Features

Front AV comprises a headphone socket, S-video input, composite video input and stereo audio phonos. The rear panel has two Scarts (one RGB-capable the other S-video) stereo phono outputs, a CI slot for use with future pay-TV services and three UHF connectors.

The TV prompts you to tune in analogue and digital channels automatically during the first switch-on, and the DTT menu software reveals itself to be a pleasantly pastel-shaded variation on that found on Sony's VTX-D800U Freeview adapter.

Hitting 'OK' brings up the Channel Index menu, telling you what's currently showing on up to six channels at a time. This channel list can be re-organised into categories such as Favourites, Choice (those you watch the most), Recent Prog (the last five channels watched), All Categories and News.

The three-quarter screen EPG is a seven day-ready affair, with the current channel displayed on the top right and now-and-next info for up to five channels at a time displayed underneath.

Pressing info while watching a channel brings up the programme info bar again displaying now-and-next information. Timer options includes support for Smartlink-equipped VCRs and DVD recorders and other noteworthy features are MHEG-5 software for interactive services, manual tuning and a PIN lock option.

Pictures

Despite not having 100Hz processing or Sony's detail-enhancing Digital Reality Creation technology to its credit, the KD-28DX50U copes well with pretty much everything you throw at it.

Colours are rich and well-contained – even dealing with the Day-Glo kaleidoscope of children's TV.

Although analogue feeds are predictably slightly pale but only in comparison with those digital tuner which display sharp edges, plenty of detail and little in the way of distracting blockiness.

What's more, despite the lack of a 100Hz mode, flickering is not too bothersome when using the menus. It's certainly better than some other IDTVs we could mention.

Sound

A Virtual Dolby setting will never be as convincing as a real 5.1 speaker system but if buying the latter is out of the question, it does give a reasonable sense of spaciness to proceedings though it helps to be watching something more audibly exciting than the news. Plain old Nicam stereo, on the other hand, is satisfying beefy from the 7W speakers.

Conclusion

With its easy-to-master operating system and generally excellent AV performance, the KD-28DX50U is a recommended mid-range buy for those wanting both a new TV and Freeview at the same time. Let's hope that the manufacturer's imminent flat-panel IDTVs continue the good work ■

Red Hot Dutch... not!

AS EVER MORE EUROPEAN FREE-TO-AIR BROADCASTERS DROP SOFTCORE SEX TV, PAY-FOR SERVICES ARE MAKING HARDCORE A STAPLE. WHEN WILL THE UK FOLLOW? BY DAVE TAYLOR

I usually concentrate on hardcore news, but it's always interesting to note how mainstream broadcasters use sex-based programming.

This month sees the announcement that the Dutch commercial TV service RTL 5 will abandon its erotica programmes. This completes the trend of Netherlands free-to-air broadcasters giving up their softcore.

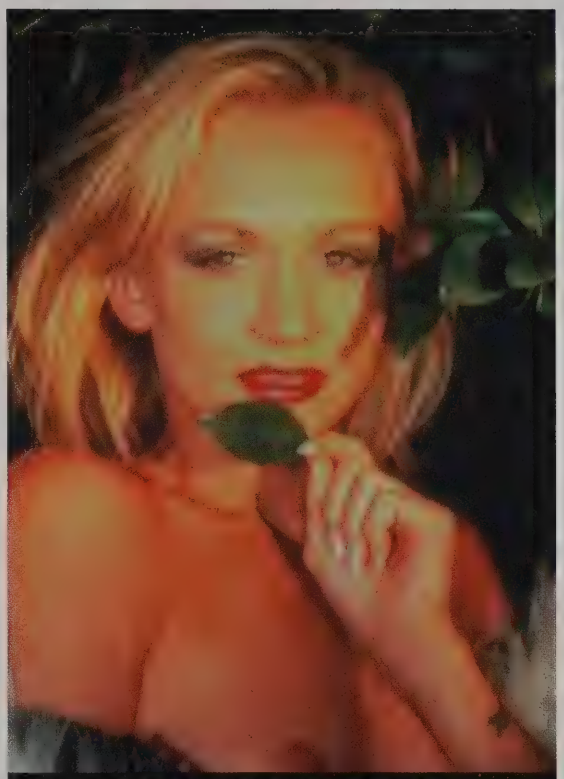
The demise of softcore started after Veronica and SBS merged their operations and quickly purged their adult fare. This seems to follow a regularly occurring cycle in Europe. Channels soon realise that in a competitive world sex on TV proves a popular draw. However, TV owners seem ill at ease with this method of boosting ratings and as soon as their service becomes established they look to drop their regular adult programming.

Five is a prime UK example of this, but I also remember a purge on similar late-night programmes a few years ago in Germany on Sat 1 and the German variant of RTL.

Perhaps the demise of erotica is due to its being considered morally undesirable. Or perhaps a reputation for sex on TV limits audience growth or advertising potential. However, I guess that it is concern about reputation rather than a desire to occupy moral high ground. Even after dumping regular softcore programming, channels seem happy to schedule worthy or one-off, sex-related shows.

Of course, giving up softcore on free-to-air channels doesn't mean that the Dutch are giving up on sex TV. When it comes to subscription channels, the viewer's cash counts over and above the ethical dimension. Hardcore remains firmly entrenched on the major packages of Canal+ Digitaal, the Dutch equivalent to Sky.

This profit-enhancing hardcore has yet to see the light of day on UK satellite, but at least the debate is being noticed by the mainstream press.



Playboy TV's Adult Stars Up Close is new for Friday nights from February 6

'PERHAPS THE DEMISE OF EROTICA IS DUE TO ITS BEING CONSIDERED MORALLY UNDESIRABLE'

The Guardian briefly reported that Kip Meek, senior partner at regulator Ofcom, has been having an intense correspondence over whether the Communications Act's looser approach to standards should allow so-called R18 films to be shown on the box. Meek's response? No change yet, but it's an indication of the likely debate to come. I have a feeling that some of those in 'intense correspondence' are readers of this column.

Last month I reported on the British Board of Film Classification's advice about importing DVDs, suggesting that Customs retains the right to seize any imported DVD without a UK certificate. Following debate about the legality of possible Customs seizures, the BBFC consulted Customs, the government, and the Video Standards Council and has now changed its advice to the following: 'It is legal to import foreign DVDs for the sole use of the importer, provided that (i) those DVDs are not to be re-supplied in the UK and (ii) those DVDs contain nothing in breach of the Obscene Publications Act or other relevant laws.'

In fact, the UK version of Amazon (www.amazon.co.uk) now allows British customers the option to import region 1 DVDs directly from the US. Perhaps it has been reading this column.

If anyone is need of a little advice about which DVDs to import, then this year's Adult Video News nominations for best DVD may help. The AVN awards are the Oscars of the hardcore world.

America XXX (Hustler)
Asia Noir 2 (Video Team)
Barbara Broadcast Too! (VCA)
Hercules (Wicked)
The Fashionistas (Evil Angel)
I Dream of Jenna (Vivid)
Magic Sex (Simon Wolf)
No Limits (Digital Playground)
Paradise Lost (Sin City)
Perfect (Private)
Rawhide (Adam & Eve)
Rush (Digital Playground)
Space Nuts (Wicked)
Sunset Stripped (VCA)

These films should also turn up on several of the hardcore satellite channels, but somehow I don't suppose that you will see any of them on Dutch free-to-air services ■

In the mood

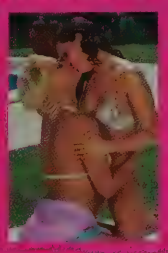
Sandy Babe Abroad premieres February 12 at 11:35pm. Erotic superstar Sandy comes to the channel in a series that documents her eye-opening run-ins with sexy locals as she works her way around Europe.

Another premiere is Sex Wives & Videotape (February 6 at 10pm), starring Angie Scott & Mia. It's a sexual journey for a couple bent on reviving their love life. Their adventures have them experimenting with threesomes, girl-on-girl, orgies and all manner of voyeuristic activity.



And from February 6, Friday nights (10pm) on Playboy TV feature full-on back-to-back sex action, with boy/girl and threesomes.

February 26 is Fetish Night on Spice, as the weirdest films bring tales of a transvestite with a dominatrix, lesbian grannies, and the undead brought back to life.

Free television keeps on growing

EUTELSAT ROUNDS UP OF SOME OF THE UK'S BEST FREE TV CHANNELS ON SATELLITE TODAY

The popularity of satellite TV continues to grow and today Eutelsat broadcasts more than 1,300 television and 700 radio stations – hundreds of which are free-to-air.

If you like to keep an eye on current events and breaking news Sky News (Astra 2B) is worth viewing. If you prefer to gain a business perspective on international events – then Bloomberg TV is for you (Hot Bird 6).

If you are musically minded, you will find plenty to entertain you on satellite TV. For the latest pop sounds, you can tune into Channel U, Chart Show TV or Pop (Eurobird 1) – all featuring new video releases and interviews. If you prefer classical music look no further than Classic FM TV or Performance (Eurobird 1). Classic FM TV is a presenter-free show featuring a variety of music videos from popular classical tracks to chill-out classics, cross-over music and film soundtracks. Performance is a unique TV channel, dedicated to the performing arts. It mixes a variety of programmes ranging from easy listening and jazz music to dance and theatre.

The Community Channel (Astra 2B) is the UK's only national digital TV channel dedicated to inspiring people to do more with their lives. It is available 24 hours a day and features films from national charities alongside videos submitted by viewers.

Those with children should tune into two BBC channels. Toddlers will be entertained by CBeebies (Astra 2D) for the under-fives (daily from 7am-7pm). Children can watch all their favourite characters, including the Teletubbies and Bob The Builder. Pre-teens will enjoy the mix of drama, entertainment, news and factual programmes on CBBC. This channel has recently added an interactive element.

Sports fans can be challenged by the Extreme Sports Channel (Eurobird 1), the first channel dedicated to extreme sports. This channel captures the lifestyle, music and fashion that define the extreme sports field.

The car is the star on Motors TV (Eurobird 1). It broadcasts a mix of documentaries, road tests, features and motor sports coverage. If you prefer more genteel sports – then The Golf Channel or The Sailing Channel (Eurobird 1) could be for you. The Golf Channel's programming schedule includes live golf coverage of all the major tournaments, instruction with world renowned teaching professionals, news programmes and Golf Talk Live, a show featuring interviews with famous golf personalities. The Sailing Channel (Hot Bird 6) covers all international sporting events, including the Americas Cup.

If the New Year has got you looking for a new challenge, then TV Jobshop could help you find the perfect career move. It is an interactive service, which allows you to get careers advice, view opportunities and apply for positions – all at the touch of your remote control.

If you can't wait for the next series of Big Brother, reality TV buffs can get their fill of fly-on-the-wall docs and real-life dramas on Reality TV (Astra 2B).

Finally, there's a free-to-air movie channel – TCM (Astra 2B). TCM draws on an extensive back catalogue of classic movies and interviews with film stars and directors ■

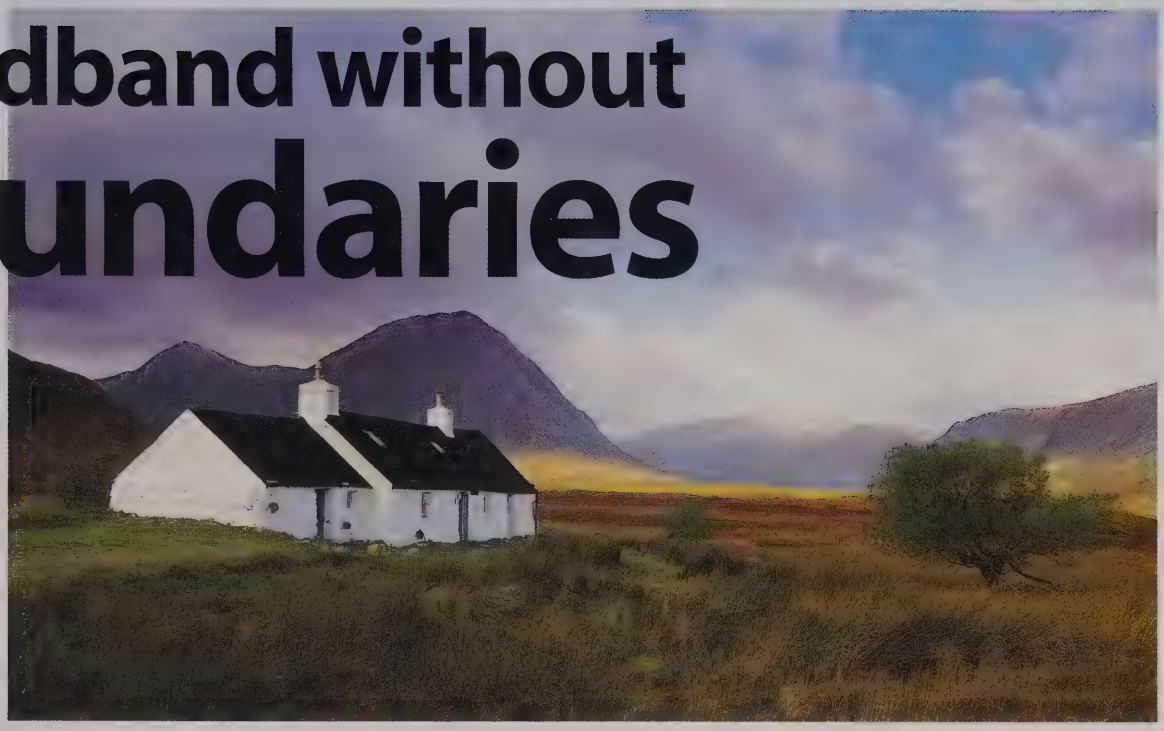
Broadband without boundaries



IF YOU ARE UNLUCKY ENOUGH TO LIVE IN AN AREA THAT IS NOT COVERED BY ADSL OR CABLE SERVICES, YOU DO NOT HAVE TO MISS OUT ON BROADBAND, SAYS ASTRA

Terrestrial broadband will never be available to many living in remote areas. For rural dwellers, the most likely solution now, and for the foreseeable future is satellite broadband.

This is a reality for almost a third of UK households, and the regional figures are astonishing. Figures for October 2003 show that in south-west England 46.8 per cent of homes, 40.9 per cent of schools and 53.4 per cent of public libraries don't have access to terrestrial broadband, in Northern Ireland 52.6 per cent of homes, 44.1 per cent of schools and 49.4 per cent of public libraries don't have access, and for Scotland the figures rise to 60.3 per cent of homes, 59.1 per cent of schools and 71.1 per cent of public libraries.

But it is Wales that is easily the worst affected region – 65.4 per cent of homes, 74.7 per cent of schools and 80.8 per cent of public libraries do not have terrestrial broadband access.

THE SATELLITE SOLUTION

Two types of system exist, one-way and two way satellite. The two-way satellite configuration transmits and receives signals directly via the satellite without a phone line to support the connection for the upstream piece of the broadband service. However, the higher costs for installation and monthly service charges is often prohibitive for consumers. One-way service requires the user to have an ISP (dial-up or ISDN) for the uplink, while the downlink is delivered by satellite. The satellite data downlink is just like the usual terrestrial link, except the satellite transmits data to the computer via a satellite dish at the user's home/office.

'A GREAT BENEFIT OF CHOOSING A BROADBAND VIA SATELLITE SERVICE USING THE ASTRA SATELLITE CAPACITY AT 28.2°E IS ACCESS TO 34 FREE-TO-VIEW TELEVISION CHANNELS'

Of course, the system requires a satellite dish; typically, the required dish size is 70cm-90cm. However, ISPs using Astra satellite capacity at 28.2°E, the same orbital position as Sky, can receive broadband via the same dish – that can be as small as 48cm.

THE NEED FOR SPEED

The choice of speed offered by one-way broadband-via-satellite ISPs compares with terrestrial broadband offerings, often there is an entry level or light 256k service, a standard 512k service and a high-speed 768k available. Beyond 768k users migrate up to two-way broadband services that can deliver up to 2Mb/s. The one-way services are perfect for downloading files, watching video and general web browsing.

A great benefit of choosing a broadband via satellite service using the Astra satellite capacity at 28.2°E is access to 34 free-to-view television channels of national, regional, news, music, children and specialist interest stations, a movie channel, and over 90 radio stations – which a subscriber can not only watch on his PC, but also record on its hard disc.

For more information on broadband using the Astra satellite system, call 0845 769 7760 ■

Readers' poll

It's that time of the year again when you, the viewer, get a chance to vote on which satellite TV programmes, channels and personalities you really enjoyed and appreciated in the past 12 months.

Many quality shows bloomed over the past year – dramas such as Six Feet Under, 24, The Sopranos and The West Wing have provided quality entertainment, genre shows like Smallville, Enterprise, Angel and Andromeda have continued to pull in the viewers. New shows included the short-lived but well-loved Firefly and the quirky Dead Like Me, The Dead Zone, and John Doe.

The year also saw the end of many popular shows, notably Buffy and Farscape.

Comedies like Scrubs, Malcolm In The Middle have consistently amused, while hilarious British shows like Little Britain and Monkey Dust have been premiered on digital and satellite. Curb Your Enthusiasm on BBC Four and Kath And Kim on FTN have been shown exclusively on non-terrestrial TV and The Rich Hall Fishing Show proved that comedy, fishing, chat and information can be combined. The Mark Steel Lectures (BBC Four) also crossed the boundary between documentary and comedy.

Tell us your thoughts and answer the question at the end of the poll, and you could win a widescreen Sony IDTV ■

WIN A SONY 28IN INTEGRATED DIGITAL TELEVISION

The 28in KD-28DX50U features both analogue and digital terrestrial TV tuners (for Freeview reception) and also comes with an elegant two-tier stand for sliding your remaining equipment underneath.

If the thought of endless boxes, excessive wiring, and monthly subscriptions are putting you off, Sony has the perfect solution with its cutting-edge range of integrated digital televisions (idTV). Built to suit those looking for a streamlined cinematic experience at home, from entry level to high-end picture enhancement products, a Sony idTV is the most stylish route to digital TV.

With Freeview, anyone can watch the five main TV channels and up to 30 free digital TV channels and 16 radio stations, all through your aerial. The stunning digital quality pictures are delivered to the screen in true widescreen, exactly as the director intended it.

A remarkably easy-to-use operating system includes a seven day-ready EPG with easily accessible programme information. Favourite channels lists can be set up and there's quick loading support for using red button interactive services. A Virtual Dolby setting is included for getting surround sound-like effects from your viewing and useful timer options include Smartlink support for easy recording on to compatible VCRs and DVD recorders. Socketry includes two Scart sockets and stereo audio outputs for your hi-fi system.

To be in with a chance of winning this great prize, put your thinking caps on. There have been many rollicking historical adventures in the past few years on film and TV – Master And Commander, Pirates Of The Caribbean, Hornblower, Sharpe – we want you to come up with an idea for a new historical series. Only the most amusing or inventive stand a chance of winning. To enter simply fill in your form, answer the question and send it to: Readers' Poll, What Satellite & Digital TV, 53-79 Highgate Road, London NW5 1TW. Your forms should reach us no later than February 20, 2004. Winners will be announced in June's edition.

YOUNG BUCK

Battlestar Galactica, the mini-series, comes to Sky Movies this month. Elise Harris talked to the new woman Starbuck – Katee Sackhoff

Back in the late 1970s and early 1980s, the original Battlestar Galactica appeared. It was a glossy, cheesy show, a bit of a Star Wars rip-off, but well-loved and fondly remembered.

Over the years there have been a number of attempts to remake the series – Brian Singer was linked with the project at one time, and Richard Hatch, the original Apollo, even sank his own money into two 'trailers' to try to persuade people to put money into his vision of a sequel starring many of the original cast members.

It has taken 20 years to get the show back on TV – and Sky Movies is showing the result this month.

The new show is not the Richard Hatch version and has none of the original cast. It is slicker and more serious in tone than the original, but it's still great fun. It's a little like Top Gun this time around, only with more sex.

Many of the original characters have stayed – but in a cunning twist some of them are now played by women, notably Starbuck – originally Dirk Benedict and now Katee Sackhoff, and Boomer – in the 1970s series a gruff black man, now a tough Asian woman, played by Grace Park.

Katee thinks that there are a few differences between the original Starbuck and the new – apart from the obvious.

'I think if you used the exact same script and put a guy in that character it still works. My character is really masculine and confident in what she does – but there are subtle differences in that the original Starbuck was more of a slapstick character. He had a great comeback for every situation; he was more like the goofy guy, but he was also a romantic guy, a womaniser whose attempts to be the womaniser were funny. He'd get into scrapes and situations all the time.'

Starbuck in this series is strong and pumped-up – she looks a little like rock chick Pink. She can throw a punch without breaking any fingers (or indeed nails). The new Starbuck still smokes a cigar and is if anything tougher than the original. Certainly a lot more aggressive.

'My character is very strong and really angry. That's the difference between this and the original series – it's a lot more dark. She's in her twenties and she's a girl – she's all sorts of confused.'

She has a past with Apollo – they were childhood friends – and she was engaged to his brother before he died. So is there any sexual tension between Starbuck and Apollo (Jamie Bamber) in this series? (Was there in the original?)

'Have you seen Jamie Bamber? He's gorgeous. They are still buddy-buddy pilots and I think that's the base of our friendship. We grew up together, I've got his back, he's got mine – we fly together, we're just great friends.

'At the beginning of the mini-series. we haven't seen each other for two years. You sort of see Starbuck's guard come down – and you can see how, if we do go to series, there will be a romantic thing there. But I don't know where the writers and the producers want to go with that.

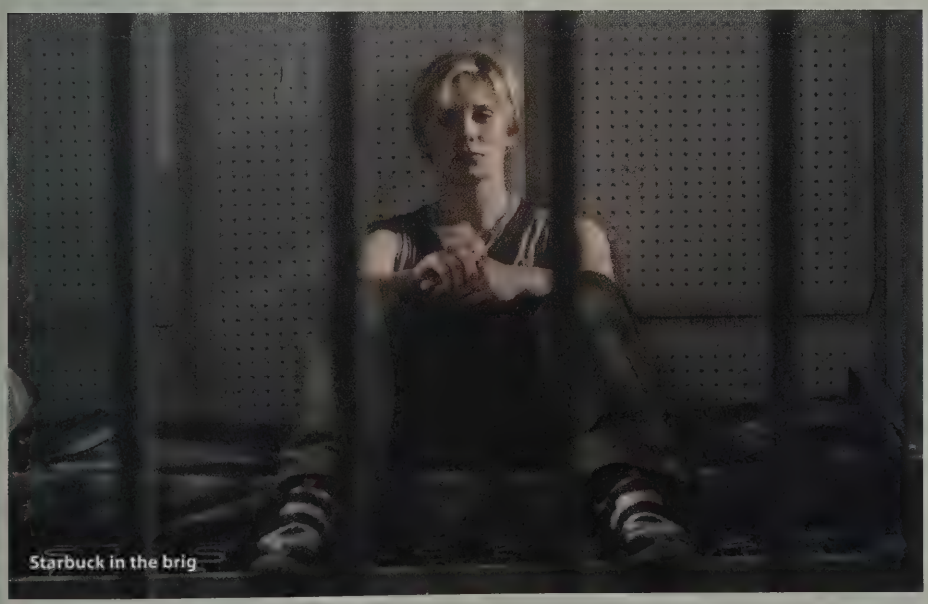
Maybe it would be better unresolved – there would be more time to play it out: 'I can see it as that whole X-Files thing five years down the road.'

Katee has met Dirk Benedict, the original Starbuck, and there were no hard feelings.

'There was a little special that aired – Battlestar Galactica The Lowdown, which was an hour behind the scenes, interviews with the new cast and some of the old cast – Richard Hatch was there.

'I had never met Dirk and he had never met me and I was a little freaked out. I had seen The A Team when I was, like,10 – so I was all "Ooh, it's Face". We were hysterical together – I laughed harder in that hour than I have ever laughed in my life – he and I were just back and forth. It was really cute – we had a great time. We talked a little about the character and stuff like that, but mostly banter – it was really light-hearted. It's good for the fans to see that.'

'WE'RE PROBABLY GOING TO HAVE A COMPLETELY DIFFERENT FAN-BASE, AND I'M JUST GOING TO TRY AND FOCUS ON THAT RIGHT NOW – THE NEW FANS LOVE IT'



Starbuck in the brig

Katee says the new series was well received when it was shown in the US in December 2003.

'I think that the fans really like it. I think some of the purists – the fans of the original show – are just going to be really hard to please. I think that even if it was the best thing ever put on television, they would still hate it.

'I think we are just going to have to say this is the old show, this is the new show – we're probably going to have a completely different fan-base, and I'm just going to try and focus on that right now – the new fans love it.'

The new series has the usual array of shiny special effects, but Katee thinks they are 'just icing'.

'I watched a rough-cut without the effects. The Character Guide

COMMANDER WILLIAM ADAMA
Played in the original by Lorne Greene – in the new series by Edward James Olmos. Adama is an old-school military man, the father of Apollo. He unexpectedly becomes the highest-ranking officer alive after the Cylons attack the 12 colonies.

CAPTAIN LEE 'APOLLO' ADAMA
Played by Richard Hatch in the original and Jamie Bamber this time round. Apollo is estranged from his father, as he blames him for the death of his brother. He and Starbuck are old friends.

LIEUTENANT KARA 'STARBUCK' THRACE
Male in the original series, and played by Dirk Benedict. In this series she's a woman, played by Katee Sackhoff. Cruder than the original, and always ready to rumble. There is a possibility of sparks between her and Apollo. She was engaged to Apollo's brother, so that could get in the way of a romance. Has a reputation as the best fighter pilot – and the most disruptive.

NUMBER 6
The Cylon siren is played by Tricia Helfer. She's sexy, manipulative, and cannot die – if her body is destroyed her mind will be sent to another identical model.

DR GAIUS BALTAR
Duped by Number 6 into revealing the secrets of the colonies' defences, Dr Gaius becomes an unwilling pawn in the Cylons' plans. James Callis plays him here – in the original he was Count Balthar, played by John Colicos, and was far more culpable.

LAURA ROSLIN
Mary McDonnell plays the unprepared new president.

LT SHARON 'BOOMER' VALERII

beauty of this show is that even without the special effects it was still amazing. Ron Moore, the writer, did such a great job writing the characters and making the characters and the script. So even though there are just as many special effects they are almost not needed. It's such a rare thing to find it's not relying on the special effects. The base of the show is the human condition, and the character interaction. It's beautiful.'

'ALTHOUGH THE TWO-PART MINI-SERIES HAS A COMPLETE STORYLINE IT PAVES THE WAY FOR A POSSIBLE SERIES'

The Cylons, the baddies from the original, still have an important part to play in this series.

Katee thinks they are, if anything, more important now.

'The new Cylons are a cross between Predator and The Terminator, metal-wise. Terrifying, they really are. They're so cool.

'I think what's interesting about the Cylons because they look like humans now – very realistic – is that you're second-guessing everybody's motives all around you. You're looking at everybody and wondering if they're Cylons – with really no proof behind it. It's very interesting to see how people turn against other people when they're scared.'

The 'traditional 'metal Cylons don't appear for long – but they are effectively used in several key scenes, notably in the introductory sequence.

'They still have the little light things. From what I understand it's actually the exact same timing as the ones in the original. So every time someone says, "but Starbuck's a woman", I'm, like, "but the light – they move!" you've got something.'

Although the two-part mini-series has a complete storyline it paves the way for a possible series.

'There is such an opening at the end that you think there's another two-hour mini-series. It leaves you on the edge of your seat with your mouth open going "Oh, come on", so I think we're going to have to do at least one season just to appease the fans – or appease the actors, because we're all going, "what's next, what's next".'

Katee can see her character progressing if it goes to a series. She says: 'I keep hoping I get some of the cute guys around set. I'm going "that guy – I want him in the next episode".

'I think the thing about my character is that she's so all over the board and she's such a loose cannon it can go anywhere and that's really exciting because it leaves every door open. For the series as well there are so many different places it can go. I mean, if you can invent a planet you can do anything. I really hope it goes to a series. I think the fans will be happy and the cast will be happy. We'll see' ■

History today

Throughout 2004, UK History is celebrating 1,000 Years of British history– Michael Wood presents the season. Elise Harris talked to him

UK History has trawled the archives to bring a host of programmes celebrating the the past millennium to your screens. The season starts this month with the 11th century – 1000 – 1100 AD (or BCE) and continues until December – bringing us all the way up to the 20th century.

Historian Michael Wood is the face of the season – he will be providing an overview to the events and programmes, with commentary on some on the significance of different eras – and some of his own classic shows are being shown too.

'We're even going back to antediluvian films like mine about William the Conqueror, which was actually shot on film,' he says.

The earlier part of the season, showing this month, covers a period close to Michael's heart. Although he has covered subjects as far afield as Alexander the Great, the Conquistadors and Troy, he is an Anglo-Saxonist by origin.

'My academic area is Anglo-Saxons and, of course, I was incredibly miffed when the Great Britons decided not to choose Alfred the Great for the top 10 – because obviously he's The Great Briton – as his name tells you.'

There are also films that cover the years leading up to the year 1000, giving viewers more of a historical context.

'Most people would be quite surprised if you said that the English State had already been created before 1066 and the English language, the vernacular was already the language of literature and law,' he says.

'We had a coinage that they could withdraw every five or six years and re-coin to adjust the silver content in response to inflation – the English system of local government comes before the Norman Conquest. In the Domesday Book in 1087, they're using a system of Anglo-Saxon government. So our roots lie deep – just as the roots of the Welsh and the Scots, within the UK, their kingdoms lie deep.'

UK History is showing The Blood Of The Vikings, as well as Michael's early film on Aethelred the Unready – 'which bring us back into the 10th century .'

Michael will be introducing each strand with a 'mini-talk', putting events into context.

'Why do we still see things in this way – why, even when you go to the cinema to see Kevin Costner's Robin Hood, are the Saxons still the goodies, and the Normans still the baddies?'

'They are the key moments in our history, and it's a nice luxury to be able to take an overview.'

As well as the 11th century, Michael is excited about the Tudor Period (shown in May) and the Victorian era (September).

'I find the Tudor period very exciting. In May you've you got this wonderful episode of Simon Schama on the Reformation – one of the best episodes in the series –it's fabulous.

'I always look on it as the cultural revolution for British history. A thousand years of what it meant to be English was rejected. Henry VIII was not only one of the most unappealing, repellent rulers in English history but a revolutionary – turning away from a thousand years of English Christianity and what it had meant to be English.'

By the time Elizabeth came to the throne 'Nobody knew what to think anymore – nobody knew what the government was going to tell them to believe next week – Catholics persecuted under Edward, Protestants burned on the stake under Mary. Elizabeth comes to the throne after this horrendous childhood, a damaged, wounded person, but a brilliant person – possibly one of the most brilliant monarch who has ever ruled these islands.'

The Victorians, he says, made us what we are.

'There was a period when the word 'Victorian' was used as a sort of pejorative and, of course, now you look at it and realise with the passage of a 100 years that this was a time of amazing creativity and profound revolution – social and economic and political. It's an absolutely wonderful era of staggering plenitude of creation and invention.'

There are programmes from Simon Schama, David Starkey, Julian Richards, Terry Jones, and even Jeremy Clarkson (on Brunel) showing during the year.

'We are showing Millennium, History of Britain,

'MOST PEOPLE WOULD BE QUITE SURPRISED IF YOU SAID THAT THE ENGLISH STATE HAD ALREADY BEEN CREATED BEFORE 1066'

Great Britons, some of the What If... series, on these crucial moments like the reformation and the Armada,' Michael says. 'It's a wonderfully rich assembly of terrific programmes.'

He is happy to be associated with UK History, and thinks it's wonderful how quickly the channel has established itself.

'I've been working on history programmes now for 24 years, and what's been very exciting is that in the last seven or eight years history's got a tremendous hold on TV audiences.

'It's not that there weren't good history programmes made before; it's just there are lots more now – there are commissioners in charge who are trained in history and are commissioning it. So all that's fairly exciting' ■

Dark journey

After a short break from our TV screens, Vic Reeves and Bob Mortimer return with a new comedy-drama – Catterick. Elise Harris talked to Jim Moir (AKA Vic) about it Catterick is not a sitcom – Vic Reeves is adamant about that. It is, he says, very dark. Vic and Bob Mortimer play long-lost brothers. Bob's been in the Army – or at least he says he's been in the Army – for 20 years.

'I've been at home with our mother, who then died, and I'm living in the house on my own. He comes back and I want him to move in and live there because I want my brother back,' Vic says.

'You get the feeling he's been sitting there since the mother died – watching telly in the dark, eating tomatoes and drinking milk.'

Bob's character wants to find his son, who he hasn't seen for 20 years: 'We go on a journey to find him. We get pursued by a murderer – we meet people along the way.'

The series has many guest stars including Tim Healy, Mark Benton, Morwenna Banks, Reece Shearsmith, Julie T Wallace and regular collaborator Matt Lucas.

'It's six people's journeys, which are metaphysical and physical. They are all looking for love in some way.'

Lucas plays an 'egocentric, pompous hotel manager. He loses parts of his body – which is the thing he really loves – himself. His girlfriend is sick of him and she wants to get away from him.'

Vic's character pretends to be a hard man, but is actually quite childlike. During the series he undergoes many changes.

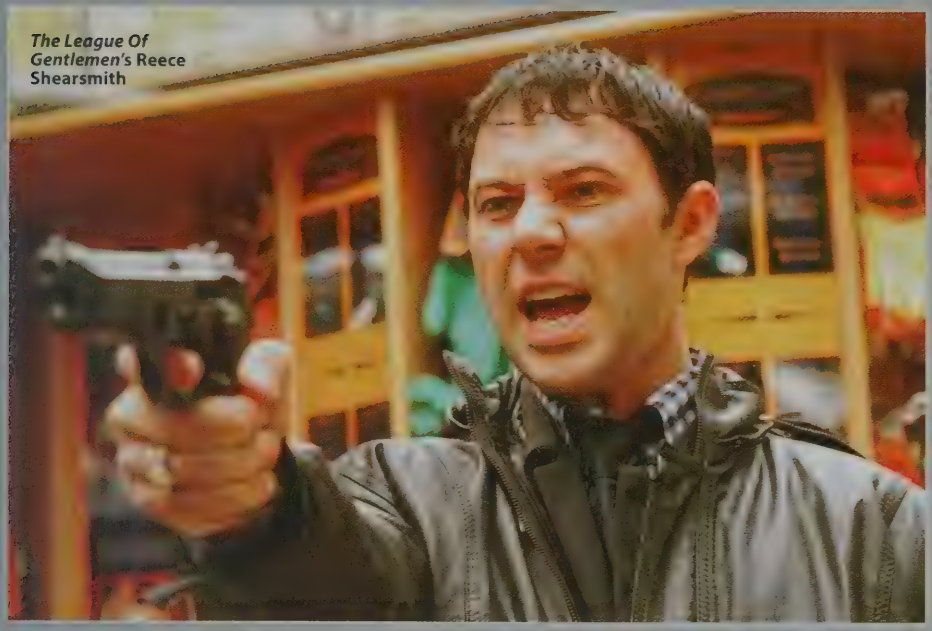
'He ends up at the end the kind of boss. He takes charge of the thing.' He also plays a detective who 'may be gay'.

Catterick was originally conceived as a film, and still has that feel about it. Regular viewers will be rewarded – but it's not geared towards the casual TV watcher.

'You get drawn into this world. It's quite intense. You can't dip into it in episode three and watch it and know what's going on. You have to watch it all – the whole thing. If you talk you'll miss a vital bit.

'You can watch it over and over again and see something new every time, because there's lots of twists and little turns in it from start to finish. Some big twists in it as well.'

'YOU CAN WATCH IT OVER AND OVER AGAIN AND SEE SOMETHING NEW EVERY TIME, BECAUSE THERE'S LOTS OF TWISTS AND LITTLE TURNS IN IT FROM START TO FINISH'



The League Of Gentlemen's Reece Shearsmith

The series has a bit of a Stephen King vibe about it – comedy notwithstanding.

'We had that long hot summer it took ages for the leaves to fall off the trees – we've got all these fantastic colours everywhere – we've got six weeks of perfect weather with all these beautiful leaves and it gives it a kind of American feel.'

YORKSHIRE DELIVERANCE

This has influenced the incidental music.

'It's got banjos on it and jug band sort of music, but not in a light way. We wanted it to be a bit dirty and threatening and have an edge to it.'

It also has Tibetan bells and horns and a contribution from world-renowned guitarist Jeff Beck, a friend of Vic's.

'Oh, and we've got songs in every week – bit like Pennies From Heaven that the characters mime to.'

He says the songs will not be familiar, but you might have heard some of them. Joni Mitchell, Chris Rea, and Flanagan and Allen feature.

Vic and Bob's first foray into serious acting was Randall And Hopkirk: Deceased. Although it was a big hit, the BBC has not commissioned any more. Vic thinks it may be because of the costs involved in producing drama series.

'It was good fun doing them. I thought they were good stories – but I don't know, maybe you get more figures watching somebody having their house cleaned. And it's cheap.'

He doesn't rule out the possibility of another series, though.

'Maybe one day – you never know. Or maybe we'll do The Champions or something like that.'

Whatever future projects he has, they are almost certain to feature Bob Mortimer.

'We're best mates so it's great getting to work with your best mate. We just get in and stick rigidly to our plan for the day. We write and then we go off and film together. But we've never had an argument or anything. It's great.'

Vic and Bob's production company is also collaborating with Steve Coogan's Baby Cow Productions to work on a new project, The All-Star Comedy Show.

'We've got anyone who's ever been involved in comedy doing sketches – Ronnie Corbett, Harry Hill, everyone right across the board.

'One of the ideas we've had is to get people like The Goodies back together for one little sketch in one week – or Little and Large maybe – get a couple of Pythons back together. Everyone has said yes up until now. There's no pressure and it's a nice easy thing to do. Hopefully, it'll be great for Saturday night TV.'

That's likely to be on the screens around Easter – but in the meantime, comedy lovers and aficionados of the absurd can sate themselves with Catterick.

The feedback from the BBC has been very positive, Vic says. 'I think it's the best thing we've ever done – it's a great story. It's actually very straight, and when it's funny it makes it stand out more - it's like a Mike Leigh film, in that respect.'

Only a lot darker ■

Catterick is on BBC Three from February 15 at 9pm

Sky Digital

EVERYTHING YOU EVER WANTED TO KNOW ABOUT RECEIVING AND SUBSCRIBING

How to get Sky Digital

The easiest way to get Sky Digital is to call Sky on 08702 404040, pick your package using the table opposite, and book an installation. You must have a Digibox to get Sky Digital. The Sky Digibox receiver and mini-dish are free, although non-subscribers must pay a £120 installation charge. Otherwise, installation costs £50 if you take the top Sky World package, or £70 if you take any other package.

If you'd prefer to see a demo before you buy, see an independent satellite dealer or high street electrical shop. The likes of Dixons just pass on your details to Sky's installers, but if you visit an independent, you'll also be able to assess the people who'll fit the system.

It's possible to buy the mini-dish and Digibox outright for about £299 to avoid any contractual obligations to Sky, but you'll have to do this through an independent dealer.

Sky prefers to be paid by direct debit or a standing credit card order. If you choose to pay by cheque, there's a monthly surcharge of £4.

Watching the BBC, ITV, Channel 4, and Five by satellite

All BBC channels, including regional variations, are free-to-air and can be picked up by anyone in the UK with any digital satellite receiver and a 60cm-plus dish in diameter pointed at Astra 2D. Obtaining a free Digibox and mini-dish from Sky and paying the £120 installation fee for non-subscribers can get you all of the BBC channels as well as many other FTA channels. ITV1, Channel 4, and Five remain encrypted and currently only available to those with a subscription viewing card (including lapsed subscribers) or those with a free-to-air card (no longer obtainable).
ITV2 is only available to Sky subscribers.

The Sky Digital small print

The Sky Digital contract you sign contains rules you must adhere to. Remember the following:
CONNECTION: You must keep your Digibox connected to your dish, mains power and a working phone line in the UK or Irish Republic for the first 12 months of your contract. If you don't, Sky could block your viewing card or demand you pay the value of their subsidies, currently £220.
CHANGING CHANNELS: You can alter your subscription package at any time, but you must take it for at least a month before changing again.
CANCELLATION: Sky requires a month's notice for cancellation, but since you can't cancel until the end of the first year, you'll actually pay for a minimum of 13 months.

Box Office films and pay-per-view events

These are ordered using the Box Office button on your Sky Digital remote. You'll need to give your PIN number (the last four digits of the customer number on your viewing card). All films are now Multiplay – you can watch them as many times as you like for a day after your purchase, though in Sky's case this day ends at 6am.

Sky Plus – the premium choice

Sky Plus is a next-generation Sky Digibox, with two tuners and a PC-style hard disc drive. It can record the satellite signal direct to the hard disc with no loss of quality, and holds 20 hours of material on average. The twin tuners allow you to record on one channel while watching another, and you can also pause live TV, and fast forward or reverse at up to 30 times normal speed.
Sky Plus costs £199 and requires a £10 monthly subscription to use its extra features (waived if you subscribe to two or more Premium channels), along with £50 to install a quad output LNB on your dish.

Sky in more than one room

Every Sky Digibox has two UHF outputs, and a second TV in another room can be connected to one of these, along with a Remote Link (£10) which allows you to change channels from the second room. Also natively, you can buy a wireless Videosender for £69-£100, which will send a high-quality picture and stereo audio up to 30m indoors and relay remote commands back to the Digibox. But if you want to watch two different channels in different rooms you'll have to buy a second Digibox for £99 (direct from Sky, or shop around for less), plus £50 to upgrade to a quad output LNB. The second Digibox can be watched with a second subscription card costing £15/month.

Choosing your Digibox

The only way to choose which model of Digibox you use is to buy through an independent dealer or secondhand. Dixons allows you to state a preference, and Sky In-Home Services won't offer a choice of receivers.

Extra and secret channels

There are no secret channels hidden by Sky as a treat for those in the know. However, subscribers can add extra ITV regions using the Add New Channels feature in the Services menu on 10.832GHz/H, 10.892GHz/H, and 10.905GHz/V (all SR 22000, FEC 5/6). New channels usually test for some time before joining the EPG, but if you find out the frequencies you can tune them in manually. There are also a dozen or so foreign channels on Eurobird that are too weak to be picked up with the mini-dish and which use odd symbol rates the Digibox cannot read.

Foreign channels

The old Sky analogue service shared the Astra 1 satellites at 19.2°E with dozens of German channels. Sky Digital broadcasts from Astra 2, 28.2°E and Eurobird, 28.5°E, which were developed to give the UK a very large digital satellite capacity. There are no mainland European channels available through the basic Sky Digital system, but there are several Asian and Arabic services.

Sky Digital in Europe

Sky can't officially sell subscriptions to anyone living outside the UK or Irish Republic, and it is technically fraud to claim you're living in the UK or the Irish Republic to obtain a viewing card. Legalities aside, thousands abroad use their friends/relatives addresses, and there's a profitable industry using real and bogus UK addresses to get viewing cards which are sold round Europe at a premium. Reception is a problem outside the UK, particularly for BBC channels. You'll need a far larger dish to get reliable reception, but reportedly, people as far away as Egypt and Morocco pick up Sky Digital.

Free-to-air channels from abroad

There are dozens of broadcast TV satellites orbiting over Europe, beaming thousands of free and encrypted channels, although only Astra 2 and Eurobird (at the 28.2°E/28.5°E position) can be picked up with the Sky Digital mini-dish and Digibox.

Two of the most important positions are Astra 1 at 19.2°E and Hot Bird at 13°E.

A 60cm dish can be used to pick up more than 60 free TV channels from Astra, while a 70cm dish will bag well over a hundred free signals from Hot Bird. The Sky Digibox has a limited symbol rate range (just 22000 or 27500), so we recommend buying a dedicated free-to-air receiver if you enjoy what you find.

The Digibox is also useless for watching encrypted channels from any foreign broadcaster, which will require a specialised receiver.

You'll find full tuning details for these channels in the blue Channel Check pages at the back of the magazine, but this month we'd like to focus on:

2M MAROC

LOCATION: Astra 19°E
FREQUENCY: 11.568GHz/V, 22000, FEC 5/6
PROFILE: A French channel offering a broad schedule encompassing both highbrow entertainment including documentaries, magazine programmes and news items, to sport and kid-friendly Japanese cartoons. It's not all French language fare, as there are also a fair few programmes aimed at the Arabic community.

Sky prices and packages

There are six Sky Entertainment packages to meet different tastes and budgets, but the most common is the Family pack, which contains everything except the Sky Premium channels and the stand-alone Premium channels, and costs £14.50 a month.

- The Value Pack (£13.50/month) contains Sky One, Sky News, Discovery Home & Leisure, Bloomberg, and 10 Music Choice audio channels. For viewers interested in the Irish Republic, it also contains RTE One, Network 2 and TG4.
- The Popular Mix pack (£16.50/month) provides Discovery, Nickelodeon, Cartoon Network, Fox Kids, Paramount, UK Gold, National Geographic, Living and the Value Pack channels.
- The Knowledge Pack (£16.50/month) provides Discovery, National Geographic, History, CNBC, UK Horizons, Animal Planet and the Value Pack channels.
- The Kids And Music Pack (£16.50/month) provides The Box, Cartoon Network, Fox Kids, MTV, MTV2, MTV Base, MTV Hits, Nickelodeon, Trouble, VH-1, VH-1 Classic, and the Value Pack channels.
- The Lifestyle Pack (£16.50/month) provides Bravo, Challenge, Men & Motors, Granada Plus, UK Drama, UK Style, Trouble and the Value Pack channels.

Note: Several channels have one-hour timeshift channels which we have not listed for reasons of space.

Sky premium channels

You can add the Sky premium channels Sky Sports 1 and 2 (together known as Sky Sports World), Sky Movies Premier and Sky Movies Max (together Sky Movie World) to any of the Entertainment packs. All four Sky premium channels are known as Sky World. With the Family Pack, these cost:

- Sky Movie World, £34
- Sky Sports 1 or 2, £27.50
- Sky Sports World, £33
- Sky World, £40
- Sky Movies (screens 2, 4, 6, 8), £27
- Sky Movies (screens 1, 3, 5, 7, 9), £29
- Sky Sports 1, Sky Movies (screens 1-9), £36
- Sky Sports 1 and 2, Sky Movies (screens 1, 3, 5, 7, 9), £38.50
- Sky Sports 2, Sky Movies (screens 1-9), £33
- Sky Sports 1 and 2, Sky Movies (screens 2, 4, 6, 8), £33
- Sky Sports 1, Sky Movies (screens 1, 3, 5, 7, 9), £33
- Sky Sports 2, Sky Movies (screens 1, 3, 5, 7, 9), £33
- Sky Sports 1, Sky Movies (screens 2, 4, 6, 8), £29
- Sky Sports 2, Sky Movies (screens 2, 4, 6, 8), £29

Bonus channels

Subscribers to Sky Sports World get Sky Sports 3 and Sky Sports Xtra free. Subscribers to Sky Movie World get Sky Cinema and the Disney mini-package free.

Stand-alone premium channels

You can add several extra channels to your Sky channel selection at the monthly rates below:

- Adult & Playboy TV, £7.99
- Artsworld, £6
- Chelsea TV, £6
- Disney (Disney Channel, Playhouse Disney & Toon Disney), £5
- Film Four, £7
- MUTV, £6
- Music Choice Extra, £5
- Star TV (Star Plus & Star News), £12
- Television X, £7.99
- Sky Sports Xtra, £6

Free channels

All BBC channels are free-to-air on Astra 2D, including regional variations. If you subscribe to Sky, any ITV region can be added using the Add New Channels dialogue box in the Digibox's Services menu. There are currently over 40 FTA digital TV channels and more than 50 radio channels from Astra 2 and Eurobird which can be picked up using a Sky Digital system without a viewing card. For frequencies see Channel Check on page 58.

Meet Charlie Kaufman (Nicolas Cage), a balding LA screenwriter with a severe case of writer's block. Charlie is overwhelmed by fears of inadequacy, both sexual and artistic – and what makes his frustration worse is that his identical twin, Donald (also Cage) – a dim, freeloading, wannabe screenwriter – is getting laid and doing well with his first attempt, a trashy psycho-thriller.

Charlie is struggling to adapt The Orchid Thief, an abstruse book by New Yorker journalist Susan Orlean (Meryl Streep) about obsessive orchid poacher John Laroche (Chris Cooper). And falling in love with her in the process. His life veers from pathetic to bizarre as the lives of the twins, Orlean and Laroche become entangled.

The clever-clogs screenplay is by the (real) Charlie Kaufman and (fictional) Donald Kaufman and directed by Spike Jonze. Kaufman and Jonze were behind the inventive Being John Malkovich, and this has much of the same surreal vibe.

Cage is more watchable than he's been for a long time as the bickering twins, and the one-liners fairly zing across the screen, as when Charlie buttonholes Hollywood script guru Robert McKee (Brian Cox) after a lecture:
Charlie : Mr McKee? I'm Charlie Kaufman. You yelled at me this morning.
McKee: I need more.

At 53, Streep looks a real babe as the cool, sophisticated Orlean, and Cooper – always good value – deservedly carried off the Best Supporting Actor Oscar last year for his role.

This riotously colourful FX fix is in effect a fiction about real people; Orlean, Laroche and McKee exist, as does Charlie Kaufman and, of course, there really is a quite unfilmable book called The Orchid Thief.

An audacious post-modern treat that will either enthrall or enrage. – Deborah Shrewsbury

TV Choices

ANIMAL DEVIL

National Geographic Channel, 8pm
Bats, wolves, ravens and snakes have been demonised over the years, with whole mythologies springing up about their evil magical powers. This looks at the reasons behind mankind's irrational fears of essentially harmless creatures.

STARGATE SG-1

Sky One, 8pm
An important two-part episode – especially for the stalwart Dr Janet Fraiser (Teryl Rothery). She never really showed what she was capable of – which is a pity because she's not going to get the chance now.

TV Choices

THE TWO TOWERS

Sky Box Office, every 30 minutes
The middle section of Peter Jackson's epic. It's the theatrical version, much shorter than the (arguably) better extended cut, but it's still worth three hours of your time. Elijah Wood and Viggo Mortensen star.

CASTLE

Discovery, 8.30pm
The history of the medieval castle, featuring Threave and Borthwick castles, among others. Young, go-getting historian Marc Morris is the presenter. He definitely knows his wattle from his daub.

FRIENDS

E4, 9pm

Start of a new series. It's moments after Joey and Rachel kiss – what will they do now? The chances of love ever after are slim – but there's always a possibility. Meanwhile, Monica (Courteney Cox) has a new hairstyle.

SKY NEWS 15TH BIRTHDAY

Sky News, all day

The lovely Kay Burley was the Wotsat Most Fanciable Female for four years on the go. She lost her crown two years ago – can she get it back this year? Even if not, she's still the most distinctive face on Sky News.

TV Choices

JUDGE JOHN DEED

UK Drama, 9pm

Martin Shaw leaves his Professionals image far behind as he substitutes Doyle's brash machismo for reserved respectability. He'll still be the tight-trouser-wearing 'Angelfish' to most fans forever, though.

Treading the thin line between invention and pretension, this surreal story just about manages to stay balanced. Nicolas Cage plays Charlie Kaufmann and his 'twin' Donald. Meryl Streep is author Susan Orlean.

GENIUS OF THE VIKINGS

National Geographic, 10pm
Were Vikings bloodthirsty oafs, or were they, as this programme claims, the first 'corporate raiders'? Whatever the truth, their myths and culture had a lasting impact. And they were undoubtedly excellent sailors.

INSIDE CLYDE

Disney, 5.30pm
Tony Hawks stars as an ingenious professor who sends a team of 'Bionauts' into the body of assistant Clyde (Jim Campbell). The team explores Clyde's insides. A cross between The Crystal Maze and Fantastic Voyage.

TV Choices

Plus, 8pm

Ernie Hudson and Danny Nucci star in this LA-set detective series. Nucci is street-smart Rico Amonte, Hudson is his tough-talking superior and partner. The 'mismatched' pair solve crimes and get on each other's nerves.

SMALLVILLE

E4, 9pm

Lana's snooping leads Clark to a bit of a mystery from many years before. Surely Chloe (Allison Mack) should be the one doing investigative reporting? Tom Welling and Kristin Kreuk star alongside Michael Rosenbaum.

TV Choices

ANGEL

Sky One, 9pm

Lorne (Andy Hallett) decides to throw the ultimate Halloween party at Wolfram and Hart. As is usual with this sort of thing, the guests begin to behave strangely. Angel (David Boreanaz) and the gang investigate.

JARMAN SEASON

Artsworld, 8pm

The late Derek Jarman's films are all incredibly beautiful, but strangely superficial. Don't let that stop you watching. Highlights include Caravaggio (pictured) starring Dexter Fletcher and Sean Bean, plus Wittgenstein, and Jubilee.

TV Choices

STAR TREK: NEMESIS

Sky Box Office, every 60 minutes
The latest installment of the Trek saga sees Picard (Patrick Stewart) and the crew of the Enterprise involved in a convoluted plot involving cloning. Better than Insurrection. Tom Hardy co-stars as bald baddie Shinzon.

MISS MATCH

Living TV, 10pm
Blonde cutie Alicia Silverstone came to fame with her role in Clueless, the loose Emma adaptation. This is an astonishingly similar premise, although based on a real-life woman. Ryan O'Neal co-stars.

TV Choices

CATTERICK

BBC Three, 9pm
Vic and Bob's new series is 'not a sitcom', but it is a darkly comical, slightly Greek odyssey. Matt Lucas and The League Of Gentlemen's Reece Shearsmith are just some of the many guest stars.

SCRUBS

Sky One, 7.30pm
The return of the hospital comedy. It keeps getting better and is a great example of how to create a memorable and watchable sitcom. Zach Braff, Donald Faison, Sarah Chalke and John C McGinley star.

NIP/TUCK

Sky One, 10pm

More gore with the plastic surgeons. Christian's possessions are vandalised, and he's fairly sure one of his past conquests is responsible – but which one? Sean hits it off with a new patient who is trying to reassemble her life.

THE MOST EXTREME

Animal Planet, 9pm

Taking a look at the most extreme eaters in the animal world, and measuring their achievements with human endeavours in the most graphic ways possible. Nature's gluttons can certainly pack it away.

TV Choices

PHONE BOOTH

Sky Box Office, every 15 minutes
The ubiquitous Colin Farrell stars as the man trapped in a phone booth with a gun trained at his head by an unseen Kiefer Sutherland. A tense and gripping thriller, proving that maybe Farrell isn't all just mouth and trousers.

THE AGENCY

Hallmark, 11pm
The Agency is the first TV series to have been allowed to film inside the CIA headquarters. Beau Bridges stars as Senator Tom Gage – war hero, presidential hopeful and new head of the Central Intelligence Agency.

TV Choices

HULK

Front Row, every 45 minutes
There's a lot going on in Ang Lee's adaptation of the comic books, but it may all be a little bit too much. Eric Bana is an effectively moody David Banner – Nick Nolte is his troubled dad Bruce. Ang Lee himself doubled for the Hulk.

BRINGING DOWN THE HOUSE

Box Office, every 30 minutes, Front Row, every 60 minutes
If you're a very big fan of Steve Martin, Queen Latifah, Eugene Levy or Michael Rosenbaum you might be able to just about sit through this. It's offensive on many levels, and not in a good way.

TV Choices

OSCAR MONTH

TCM, 9pm

TCM's Oscar Month runs all through February, but this is arguably the best day to watch. Stephen Fry introduces Singin' In The Rain at 9pm and The Wizard Of Oz at 11.05pm. How can you resist?

SCREEN ACTORS' GUILD AWARDS

Living TV and E! Entertainment, from 9pm

One of the key awards ceremonies in the build-up to the Oscars. E! focuses on the red carpet interviews, while Living goes for the ceremony itself. Expect a wide mix of bizarre frocks.

TV Choices

LAW AND ORDER

Hallmark, 9pm

It's Benjamin Bratt's last season as Detective Rey Curtis. Jerry Orbach and Sam Waterston head the team as they investigate more unusual deaths and unlikely crimes. Angie Harmon and S Epatha Merkerson co-star.

QUEER EYE FOR THE STRAIGHT GUY

Living TV, 9pm

There's a military bent to this week's show; the fab five try to persuade an ex-army man to let go of his regimental ways. A strangely appealing show – one wonders if the UK version will measure up.

TV Choices

CAMBRIDGE SPIES

UK Drama, 11.50pm
Dramatisation of the real-life exploits of Guy Burgess, Anthony Blunt, Kim Philby and Donald Maclean. Starring Tom Hollander, Samuel West (above), and Rupert Penry-Jones. Plenty of sex and intrigue here, but it's all a bit vague.

NICHOLAS NICKLEBY

Sky Box Office, every 60 minutes
Charlie Hunnam (from Queer As Folk) stars in this starry adaptation of the Dickens classic. Jamie Bell (Billy Elliot) is Smike. Kevin McKidd, Jim Broadbent, Alan Cumming and Nathan Lane feature.

STUART LITTLE

Disney, 4pm

Geena Davies and Hugh Laurie adopt a mouse, much to the dismay of their son George (Jonathan Lipnicki) and cat Snowbell (Nathan Lane). The mouse soon wins them over. Michael J Fox provides Stuart's voice.

DAVID NIVEN DAY

Plus, from 1.30pm

Curse Of The Pink Panther and Trail Of The Pink Panther are little more than clipshows, but Niven and Peter Sellers appear in flashback. Niven can be seen in context in Escape To Athena, with Telly Savalas and Roger Moore.

DOES YOUR AV SYSTEM

NEED

Long distance?
Component video?
Digital audio?

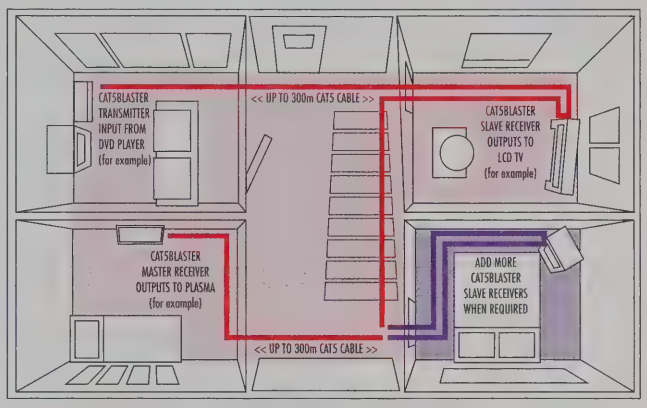
CAT5BLASTER

The easy way to distribute video and audio over long distances and to multiple locations, Keene Electronics new modular CAT5BLASTER system uses clever electronics to send high resolution video and audio over low cost CAT5 network cable.



The CAT5BLASTER
- Uses low cost CAT5 cable (unshielded 4 twisted pair)
- Has three independent video channels – can be configured for component video, s-video plus composite video, 3 x composite video or RGsB* video
- Can be configured for analogue stereo or digital audio
- Provides IR feedback to the transmitter from every receiver
- Can send stunning quality images up to 300 metres
- Consists of a Transmitter and Master receiver (for 1:1 distribution). Additional Slave receivers may be added as required for multi-room distribution.

*Use an RGB2C or SyncBlaster Black Box to convert set top box RGB to correct format for use with Cat5Blaster.

CAT5BLASTER: Transmitter module with power supply, Master receiver module, standard IR receiver, standard IR emitter wand [C5B] £259.99
CAT5BLASTER slave receiver with power supply [C5BSR] £129.99
CAT5BLASTER master receiver power supply (for extending range to 300m+) [KT5] £5.99
CAT5 network cable [KBL23] 10m+ £0.47/m; 305m reel £80.00 (£0.27/m)

- What if I don't need multiple locations or three video channels?

Then we have the CAT5BLASTER QC for quick and easy 1:1 distribution via CAT5 cable of s- or composite video plus stereo audio.The CAT5BLASTER QC will accept and distribute one or two composite video channels, or one s-video channel, and L & R audio. Requires no power supply, provides a good output signal at distances up to 100m cable run from the input.

CAT5BLASTER QC transmitter/receiver

CAT5BLASTER QC: 2 x QC Transmitter/Receiver modules + 2 x phono/s-video adaptors [C5QC] £99.99

Digital Satellite TV

Evolved from the famous Ku-band Satellite TV series of books, this 486-page tome is crammed full of background information, and technical details on all aspects of satellite TV – both digital and analogue – with pretty much everything you need in the way of theory, installation and troubleshooting of satellite systems. An indispensable guide to satellite TV technology.

UK £36 • Rest of Europe £42 • Worldwide £47

Classic Black Book

The 'bible' of the black art of signal security, European Scrambling Systems is principally concerned with analogue scrambling systems, but is still of interest today to anyone interested in how scrambling and encryption systems are set up and knocked down by illicit 'hackers'. This 576-page book is packed with technical data, circuit diagrams, software listings, tables and photos with details on hacks of scrambling systems for PAL, Mac and the DirecTV DSS American digital network.

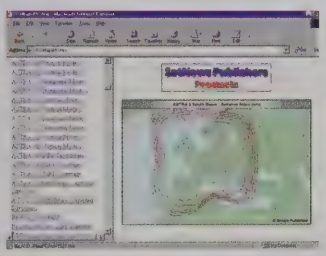
SatMaps Footprints CD-Rom



On CD-Rom for both PC and Mac, SatMaps is a simple collection of satellite footprints – essential to work out which signals you can receive with your dish. Place the disc in your computer, double-click on an icon and away you go. Each footprint can be viewed, printed or downloaded for use in other software. From Afristar to Turksat, over 600 footprints of broadcast satellites around the world are here. SatMaps requires either Microsoft Explorer or Netscape Communicator installed as the default internet application in your computer.

The last boat: One of British Airways' Concorde airliners takes a less-than-supersonic trip by barge to its final resting place at a floating aviation museum on the Hudson River

Iraq steps up war on GIs

ROGER BUNNEY SEARCHES THE SKIES EVERY MONTH FOR SIGHTINGS AND NEWS SNIPPETS FOR MOTORISED DISH ENTHUSIASTS

November 15 made for depressing news feed viewing. At 5pm Eutelsat 1 at 10°E carried live pictures from an Italian airbase as a Hercules aircraft returned from Iraq, carrying 15 dead military personnel. They had been killed in a suicide bombing at their base near Baghdad. A large gathering of military, representatives from religious denominations and relations gathered in sombre mood as each coffin was brought from the plane and carried in procession to waiting hearses. The images were carried without commentary at 10.961GHz/V (SR 4167, FEC 5/6), with a second parallel feed on Telecom 2D, 8°W (12.614GHz/H (4885, 3/4) via SKY ITALIA SAT NET 1.

Unfortunately, other tragic events in the St Nazaire shipyard unfolded that day. The Alstom-owned shipyard won the contract to build and launch the Queen Mary 2 and the company had invited senior members of the construction crew with their families for a social visit and view the QM2's staterooms. While they were boarding the ship a gangway collapsed, plunging the pedestrians to the hard floor of the empty dry dock some 17m below, and 13 died. That evening the French uplink truck F3.OEST/6MBT transmitted live reports and interviews with Alstom officials into the regional news (Nantes) and the national TV networks, the QM2 standing silently by. Coverage continued the next day and the afternoon/early evening TV coverage was more of a production, with the QM2 being lit internally and externally with more TV crews on site. President Chirac visited the scene during the day and met Alstom staff and the bereaved. On both days Telecom 2D downlinked at 12.733GHz/H (4214, 7/8).

November 15, however, was not all sadness, as 10°E transmitted the all-important Scotland vs Netherlands match from Hampden Park over GI GLOBECAST UK – and in the clear. This was but a prelude to the equally exciting action on November 19, when Netherlands vs Scotland (Amsterdam Arena) and Wales vs Russia (Millennium Stadium) were both carried FTA over Eutelsat W1. Globecast was responsible for the satellite linking operation, using the '+ntl UKI 590' sat-truck from the Millennium Stadium.

While the footballers were playing for team and country, back at Buckingham Palace, President Bush had arrived for B&B on his official visit and the evening outside broadcast news links were active. Sky News, using 12.563GHz/H (5632, 3/4) over Eutelsat W2 16°E, was running major reports into its news programming, while BT TES-10, also on the London pavements, offered more live news reports on W1, 10°E (10.967GHz/V, 4167, 3/4).

Under starter's orders: Camera crews on the ground and in the sky get ready for the World Rally Championships to arrive in Wales. Test cards don't have to be dull: ENEX and Eritrean TV demonstrate that there is still a place for art in the world of on-air idents

The wet pavements of London by night provided an atmospheric feel, with the Palace of Westminster as a traditional backdrop while a female reporter presented several news reports into FOX NEWS N from the FOX NEWS LONDON bureau. Running in NTSC on 16°E at 11.153GHz/H (5632, 3/4) mid-November, the sat truck company idented on colour bars as 'LINKS n TH!NGS' – a new operator to me, although it was seen once more in late November linking a UK regional football match.

W2 at 16°E is a main carrier for CBS News output from Baghdad. In late November a wide wheelbase Humvee hit a landmine and the driver suffered serious leg injuries. CBS MAIN carried NTSC footage of the medical evacuation helicopter arrival protected by two gunships. There was considerable shooting towards the nearby foothills. A senior GI appeared and advised the CBS crew not to film the casualty, which more or less ended coverage. But there we saw an old friend, Geraldo Rivera, a Fox News reporter always in the midst of the action, accompanied by a female CBS colleague. Readers may recall that Geraldo was the Fox News embedded reporter when the coalition went into Iraq earlier in 2003 and he was always with the GIs as things happened. (Feed at 11.190GHz/H (5632, 3/4).

Last month we reported on the last passenger flights into Heathrow by the redundant Concordes. Roy Carman noted that a final flight by one Concorde was to Filton, Bristol, where the aircraft had been constructed. But a final trip by one Concorde was different. On W2, 16°E he found CBS images of a Concorde having been dumped on to a barge in New York harbour. Apparently, this was en route by sea to a floating museum in New York, where it will quietly retire and receive much TLC! (via 11.190GHz again).

On a November midweek evening I made a quick scan over Ku-band horizontal on Eutelsat W3, 7°E just to see if there was any activity other than EBU news exchanges and distribution offerings in the invisible MPEG-4:2:2. I very was surprised. Apart from the Eutelsat 'Open Sky' internet promo at 11.264GHz/H (27500. 3/4), I found Italian sports on 11.192, car-rally driving from Finland on both 10.998 and 11.183, indoor football at 11.521, and a Norway vs Denmark match identing as 'OB-TEAM 3' – I forgot to note down the frequency!

November saw civil unrest in the Russian state of Georgia, when the people – upset over the antics of the old regime – demonstrated in Tbilisi and ran amok in the parliament building. Alan Richards (Nottingham) found pictures over 7°E, showing the crowds and the anti-government demo being carried in clear MPEG 4:2:0 on several frequencies. These feeds appeared as 'CHEVC-2' (11.090GHz; TRBBA-Ebu 12D' 11.084GHz), the latter also in parallel with 11.078GHz (all vertical running 4433, 7/8). Footage was mainly crowds and to-camera reports.

Docks tragedy: French TV crews report from St Nazaire, where 13 people died in an accident boarding the Queen Mary 2 (via Telecom 2D at 5°W)

On Thanksgiving Day in the US, President Bush visited the troops in Baghdad, flying in for an informal and unadvertised trip. CNN NEWSFORCE over on NSS-7, 21°W carried his speech to the folks back home in one of their feed compilations (11.563GHz/H, 6111, 3/4). Meanwhile, back in the US, the traditional Macy's Grand Parade was in progress for the Thanksgiving celebrations (Macy's run large departmental stores with branches in both New York and Chicago).

Test cards are usually boring old colour bars with an inlaid identification, perhaps the Philips PM5534 electronic offering with a clock – the art in test cards has generally disappeared. So it was with some pleasure I found that Arabsat at 26°E is carrying programming from Eritrea (for many years a war-torn state in north-east Africa). Check out 11.747GHz/V, (27500, 3/4) and you'll see that art in test cards still lives. 'The State of Eritrea' is featured with a camel on the test pattern!

A report from September's International Broadcasting Convention in Amsterdam says there is considerable over-capacity in satellite throughput linking other than perhaps the main 'trunk routes' over the Atlantic and DTH into Europe. Nigel Gibson of New Skies Satellite said: 'Europe is saturated so broadcasters are looking elsewhere.' And they are looking to use fibre optic for global communication. Much of the fall-off in satellite downlinking results from the move to digital. Telenor had 37 analogue services two years ago; it now has two. The US market is 'flat'. One move by satellite operators is as service providers – it now being possible to access Australia/NZ as a one-hop link from European broadcasters into small dishes at the receive end. Growth is anticipated for DTH into Africa, parts of Asia and the Middle East.

A general re-organisation of in-orbit hardware will offer cheaper SNG linking – fibre optic doesn't reach every – yet! Intelsat is moving to an inclined orbit satellite mode at 20°W as a budget 'entry-level' for SNG operators. But one problem remains – security. Encryption will be necessary and hackers are very clever folk.

Way out East is Eutelsat's Sesat bird; it is rather quiet at 36°E now the Fox News Jerusalem feeder has departed to the 60°E slot. Sometimes 'NON CAT THAILAND' appears with feeds of PTV News, often at, or around, 11.512GHz/H (6111, 3/4). Recently, the PTV backhaul frequency featured a caption 'NONTHABURI EARTH STATION BANGKOK', which is about 100°E – a real DX catch. Perhaps one day soon will see a Western Australian teleport appear on Europestar or another satellite farther to the East. But apart from the occasional PTV backhaul and other random traffic, Sesat slumbers for much of the time. But not during the UK's November Great Britain Rally, when at least four downlinks were operational on Sesat. Roy Carman (Dorking) found cameras being rigged at several locations during the Welsh rally section, which were all linked into network on four frequencies: 11.088GHz and 11.079GHz – 'RALLY GB CLUSTER' 11.097 'AUTO 13.5 MHz', and 11.106GHz 'ntl: UKI-589 Enc' (all horizontal, running SR 5632, FEC 3/4).

The Astra-3A slot at 23°E has been carrying German Sat Eins regional programming from 4.30pm onwards. German expats may be interested in these channels. All are from the northern region and are listed: 12.522GHz Nord Rhein, 12.528GHz Mainz, 12.534GHz Hanover, and 12.540GHz Schleswig-Holstein. All are vertical running 4200, 3/4. Regional studio programmes are carried from 30 minutes upwards.

Astra 3A also carries the Fevatel Alpine Weather for Tourists during the morning at 12.540GHz/V (4650, 7/8). Elsewhere on 3A at 11.571GHz/V (with a very low SR 1447, 5/6) is the RAZE-TV feeder from a Hamburg studio which carries horse racing during the daytime but after 11pm carries more adult content (transmits in parallel with 10.832GHz/H, 22000, 5/6 on the Astra 1, 19°E slot). German regionals also pop up on the Eurobird 1 28°E slot within the12.595-12.656GHz/V slot usually at 6111, 3/4. Examples are NBC GIGA (12.630-V, 6055, 3/4), Bayernfenster 12.657GHz/V (6000, 3/4), not forgetting the Deutsche Welle offerings over on Hot Bird – 11.144GHz/V, 5500, 7/8.

The US government plan to transmit a pan-Middle Eastern satellite channel of news and entertainment has been delayed. It was due to start in November, but the Arabic Television Network will now open in February from a production studio at Fairfax, Virginia. The channel will be funded alongside the Voice Of America and Radio/TV Marti operations.

One of my favourite slots is the Globecast bouquet on Atlantic Bird-1 at 12°W but there is other action carried on the bird most days. Sadly, Globecast activity at 12.740GHz seems to have dropped recently (early December) but Stefan Hagedorn says both 11.188 and 12.694GHz/H (5632, 3/4) have carried news feeds in recent times. Another interesting sighting has been 'Iceland Live" programming on Atlantic Bird-3 (Telecom-2C) at 5°W, 12.543GHz/H (27500, 3/4) ■

ROGER BUNNEY is pleased to hear from readers with reports of interesting, rare or unlikely satellite sightings. WRITE with details (photos/video recordings gratefully accepted), where, when and with what equipment, to: Satellite Search, What Satellite & Digital TV, Highbury-WV, 53-79 Highgate Road, London NW5 1TW

Is this thing on! Feed-hunters got an unusual view of an OB truck when the cameraman took a breather while the feed was running

COMPLETE GUIDE TO EURO DIGITAL CHANNELS

There are hundreds of satellite channels up there. Tune in with our monthly updated guide

Although the Astra craft at 19.2°E and 28.2°E are the highest profile satellites in the skies above the UK, there are many more providing TV channels. More than 40 provide thousands of digital stations, plus newsfeeds across Europe. This guide gives you all the details needed in order to tune in to them using fixed dish, dual-feed or multi-satellite systems.

For each satellite we have displayed the regular TV channels transmitted, plus the more dependable sources of news feeds. For each transponder (broadcasting frequency) we list the bouquet name, frequency and polarity, transponder number, encryption type, symbol rate and forward error correction (FEC) rate. These tuning details can either be manually entered into your receiver or are automatically found using some systems.

We also list two approximate minimum dish sizes for the South (London) and North (Edinburgh) to give you an idea of the strength of the signal. Remember that your own particular location, LNB type and even weather may also affect your ability to receive the channel. For each channel we show its name, a description, and main language.

■ All listings believed correct at the time of going to press. If you have a correction, e-mail it to us marked Channel Check or post it to us at the usual address.

Easy Rider

EVERY MONTH, DR MATTHEW HOLBROOK KEEPS AN EAR TO THE SKIES FOR NEWS OF SATELLITE RADIO

This has been a much busier month for Sky Digital's radio listeners. Mean Country 1035 AM has become Easy Radio London (www.easy1035.com), following its purchase by Sunrise Radio. The service remains in EPG slot 923, broadcasting from 12.344H, SR 27500, FEC 2/3, A-PID 2347. Country music fans continue to be dismayed at the minimal representation of their favourite music in Europe but Easy Radio London will still broadcast music from the genre. Panjabi community channel Desi Radio (www.desiradio.org.uk) is new on channel 919, using 11.585GHz/H, SR 27500, FEC 2/3, A-PID 2326. Previously it was only available terrestrially in the London area.

Entertainment station Apple FM (www.applefm.co.uk) has begun on the same transponder as Desi Radio under A-PID 2328. It appears on the EPG on channel 913 and claims to be devoid of playlists and news. At the time of writing three of Emap's radio stations had finally begun testing on Sky Digital using 12.324GHz/V, SR 27500, FEC 2/3. These are Kiss 100 (www.kiss100.com) on A-PID 0668, Smash! Hits Radio (www.smashhits.net) on A-PID 0669 and Kerrang! Radio (www.kerrangradio.co.uk) on A-PID 0670.

Over at 19.2°E three Deutsche Welle (www.dw-world.de) radio channels have started on Astra 1E using 11.597GHz/V, SR 22000, FEC 5/6. These are DW Radio 1 (A-PID 2010), DW Radio 3 (A-PID 0037) and DW Radio 4 (A-PID 2040). Radio Maryja has left Astra 1F's 12.460GHz/H, but it can still be found on 10.832GHz/H, SR 22000, FEC 5/6, A-PID 0073. And on Astra 1H, three channels on 12.633GHz/H, SR 22000, FEC 5/6 have changed their A-PIDs. These are Hit Radio FFH Rhein Main (from 0702 to 1024), Planet Radio (from 0703 to 1030) and Harmony FM (from 0704 to 1036).

It's Easy: Mean Country becomes Easy Radio London

Moving to 16°E and Eutelsat W2, Top Albania Radio (www.topalbaniaradio.com) is new on 11.449GHz/H, SR 14000, FEC 3/4, A-PID 0531. And Radio Tunis International and Radio Tunis National have stopped their analogue transmissions on 11.599GHz/V, subcarrier 7.20MHz. They're now only available in digital from 12.683GHz/H, SR 2894, FEC 3/4, A-PID 0801. There are also lots of changes on the Hot Bird satellites at 13°E. Hit West (www.hitwest.com) is new on 10.873GHz/V, SR 27500, FEC 3/4, A-PID 3141. And Radio Orient (www.radioorient.com) has begun on 12.245GHz/H, SR 27500, FEC 3/4, A-PID 0297.

The Overcomer (www.overcomerministry.com) is new on 12.207GHz/H, SR 27500, FEC 3/4, A-PID 1025. It has been joined on this transponder by a group of channels relocating from 12.220GHz/H, SR 6161, FEC 3/4. These are Voice of Vietnam (A-PID 1059), Israel Radio International (A-PID 1060), Reshet Aleph (A-PID 1060), Swiss Music Radio (A-PID 2081), STN Radio (A-PID 2097) and Hit Mix FM (A-PID 2113). Radio Familia has taken over the MTI Radio spot on 11.200GHz/V, SR 27500, FEC 5/6, A-PID 0418. And Tamil Allai's A-PID has changed from 0092 to 7327 on 11.938GHz/H, SR 27500, FEC 2/3 ■

GUIDE TO RADIO CHANNELS

The radio channels guide is compiled by Dr Matthew Holbrook. If you have any additions or comments to make, contact him at: webmaster@satellite-evolution.com

Satellite receivers spend most of their time tuned to TV but there is also an abundance of radio stations transmitted from the same satellites and receivable using the same equipment. There are three broadcasting formats for satellite radio – digital, analogue and Astra Digital Radio (ADR). Digital and analogue radio are receivable on digital and analogue (respectively) TV receivers, and ADR requires a special receiver and these are not widely available in the UK. ADR is only available on the Astra 1 satellites (please note that due to pressure on space ADR listings may not be included) ■

Choosing a satellite TV system is a confusing business. Here are a few guidelines to help out the first-time buyer Buying a satellite TV system will involve you in a whole lot of choices, but you've made the right choice so far – to go for the wealth of entertainment available on satellite TV.

WHAT SYSTEM?

The first choice you must make is which type of satellite system to go for. It all depends on what you want to receive. Take a look in the Channel Check section of this magazine for an idea of which channels are broadcast from which satellites.

The cheapest and simplest satellite system uses a fixed dish to receive just the free channels from the Astra 1 satellites. This is what most people plump for – the ubiquitous 60cm dish (although an 80cm dish is needed in the north of England, the South-West, Scotland and Ireland). A Sky Digital system will not only receive the free and scrambled stations from Astra 2 and Eurobird at 28.2°E, it can also be used for free-to-air channels from some other satellites, with a suitable dish.

If you want to go the whole hog and receive all the channels that are available, you'll need a motorised multi-satellite system and think about receiving encrypted channels. These are more versatile, but also much more complicated and expensive than simple free-to-air systems.

Antennas come in a wide range of shapes and sizes, but you'll need a large dish for multi-satellite. A smaller dish is required for Sky Digital

WHAT MODEL?

In the following tables we list all the receivers currently available, separated into categories of fixed dish digital receivers, motorised digital receivers with traditional positioners built-in, and motorised receivers which use DiSEqC 1.2 software.

Mixed into all categories you'll find several combined receivers which can deal with both analogue and digital transmissions.

For each category and model there is a lot of information, much of which many buyers need not worry about. For a fixed dish digital receiver, look for plenty of channels, a Common Interface or built-in conditional access module, and DiSEqC 1.0 LNB switching.

If you want to receive channels on multiple satellites you'll need even more channels, but most importantly you'll need a built-in positioner or DiSEqC 1.2 software, depending on the type of motorisation you go for. One golden rule applies to any satellite system: don't rush out and buy the first model you see. Decide what you really need – both now and for the future – and consult this guide and your dealer for advice.

WHAT ABOUT INSTALLATION?

Whatever model you pick, the dish will have to be installed. You can do this yourself, but it's a task for the DIY-competent only.

Satellite receivers vary from the dirt cheap to all-singing, all-dancing models like the Echostar DVR7000, which has analogue and digital facilities, plus a hard disc drive for recording in digital quality

The installation must be done correctly if you're to receive the proper quality of pictures and sound.

A typical simple Astra installation will cost between £40 and £80 and will take a professional anything from 30 minutes to a couple of hours to install.

A multi-satellite installation is a far more complex task (and therefore much less suitable for trying yourself) and will cost you anything from £200 upwards.

WHAT TO ASK?

Unless you know a fair amount about satellite TV already, it's probably wise to buy your system from a dealer, rather than through mail order. Visit as many satellite dealers as you can, and try to see every possible system in use. Have a go yourself.

If you don't like the way a receiver operates, it's better to find out in the shop than in your lounge after you've bought the wrong model. Don't be afraid to ask questions. Ask about other models, why the system on offer is right for you and why it's better than the others available.

Check the price of the receiver and the installation – some shops appear to offer a bargain on the equipment but cash in on the installation charges.

Make sure you are being offered the right size dish for your area – even though a 60cm dish may work all right in Penzance on a fine day, the picture will suffer when it rains.

If you intend to subscribe to any foreign channels, think about arranging it through the same dealer you buy your system from – you may qualify for a discount.

WHAT NEXT?

Once you've selected your satellite TV system and had it fitted, and the installer has shown you the basics, there's nothing more you have to do.

Watching satellite TV is then as easy as watching the five channels of terrestrial TV you're already used to.

The only difficulty then is choosing which of the tremendous choice of programmes to watch and fighting over who watches what.

FIXED DISH DIGITAL RECEIVERS

Key to fixed dish Sky Digital receivers

Known as the Sky Digibox, these receivers are the only way to pick up both the Sky subscription channels and channels from the BBC, ITV, Channel 4 and Five. All Sky Digiboxes have an integrated Videoguard conditional access module, and support the OpenTV software used for interactive TV and the electronic programme guide. The remote controls are interchangeable for all Digiboxes except Sky Plus, which has extra recording and playback controls

RECEIVER PRICE: Prices are for guidance only. Individual retailers may decide their own price, and What Satellite & Digital TV cannot be held responsible for market prices

MONTHLY SUBSCRIPTION: Sky Plus requires an extra monthly subscription to take advantage of its digital recording features

NUMBER OF LNB INPUTS: Two LNB inputs are useful for watching one channel while recording another, or receiving two different satellites without external switching

LNB LOOPTHROUGH: IF signal from dish can be passed to a second receiver while this unit is in standby

22KHZ SWITCHING: Universal-type LNBs are switched between high and low reception bands with a 22kHz tone from the receiver

POLARISER CONTROL: Polarisers are controlled by pulse (servo motor), current (magnetic), or voltage (combined LNB/polariser used in universal LNBs). Only current and pulse control allow skew adjustment for multi-satellite upgrading SYMBOL RATE: The data rate varies from transponder to transponder, according to the level of compression and number of channels. Low symbol rates are used by news feeds with a single channel (SCPC or Single Channel Per Carrier), but most transponders on Astra, Eurobird and Hot Bird work on 22000 and 27500

FEC: Digital channels use differing Forward Error Correction rates (redundant information signals added to help receivers recognise and correct errors in transmission). Most receivers detect FEC automatically (A), but selectable FEC (S) can be useful for pinning down weak signals

HARD DISC SIZE: Measured in Gigabytes, this does not reflect recording capacity, which depends on the level of compression used for each recording MODEM: Used to inform Sky of any Box Office events purchased, or for registering with some interactive services and downloading extra information. A faster modem will supply faster downloads.

NUMBER AV OUTPUTS: For direct connection via Scart cable to a TV or VCR for superior picture and sound

S-VIDEO OUTPUT: A dedicated S-video mini-DIN output connects to your TV or VCR for superior picture

STEREO AUDIO OUTPUTS: Phono sockets supplying left and right analogue audio channels, along with any Dolby Pro-Logic surround signals

DIGITAL AUDIO OUTPUT: For noise-free audio, either a coaxial link (c) or an optical link (O)

DOLBY DIGITAL: Receivers which can pass the AC-3 encoded signal via their digital audio output will produce superior Dolby Digital surround sound with a suitably-equipped audio amplifier

NUMBER UHF OUTPUTS: Extra outputs can be used to supply TVs in other rooms

UHF TUNING RANGE: Tuning the channel which a receiver 'broadcasts' to via the aerial lead. Larger ranges avoid crowding and interference between several receivers or VCRs

TESTED: Date of the What Satellite & Digital TV issue with a review of the receiver. Most will also be found in the following year's Book Of Tests

Key to digital video recorders

The recording complement to digital TV, DVRs can store video, audio and data on a computer-type hard disc drive, which enables instant access, simultaneous read-and-write, and many other features a VCR can't emulate. DVRs can be combined with a digital satellite receiver, digital terrestrial TV tuner, analogue TV tuner, or even with DVD players/ recorders and VCRs. They're most useful in tandem with an electronic programme guide rather than a VCR-style manual timer – this is known as a personal video recorder, or PVR.

HARD DISC CAPACITY AND RECORDING QUALITY LEVELS: Increasing the level of data compression increases the amount which can be stored on the disc, but reduces picture and sound quality; Sky's compression system changes dynamically to maximise both compression and quality

MP3 PLAYBACK: Audio files or radio channels can be stored in a very small space using MP3 compression, so you can play back audio as well as video

BACKGROUND RECORDING: Watch from the hard disc while your DVR records live TV

LIVE TV CACHE: The DVR continually records (up to a fixed amount), so users can jump back fast to anywhere in the programme

PAUSE RECORDING: The DVR starts recording as soon as you press Pause

TWIN TUNERS: The DVR can record two channels at once or record one channel while another is being watched live

USB PORT: Transfers audio and video files to a PC, or vice-versa

PACE TWIN DIGITAL RECEIVER – £349

A combined personal video recorder (PVR) and digital terrestrial receiver, the Pace Twin is the first of its kind. Twin digital tuners mean you can record one Freeview channel while watching another and the modest 20GB hard disc can store around 10 hours of TV and radio. Recordings can be scheduled using either the EPG or manual timer option and, as with most PVRs, there's also a pause live TV option. Recordings can be rewound and fast-forwarded up to 64 times and, if need be, archived to videotape if you're in danger of maxing out the hard drive. Picture and sound quality are both excellent and a recent software update added support for interactive and digital text services.

FIXED DISH DIGITAL RECEIVERS

Key to fixed dish digital receivers

This category lists digital receivers used for receiving MPEG-2 channels. To watch such channels you require a DVB-compliant system instead of a conventional analogue receiver.

You will also need a dish pointed at one of the satellites broadcasting digital channels (see Channel Check for details) and a universal LNB to receive the high frequencies which digital channels normally use. Digital technology typically presents higher quality pictures and sound comparable to CD quality. Also, due to the nature of compressed digital TV signals, other facilities such as electronic programme guides, audio subchannels and teletext can be offered. While every digital receiver is capable of receiving these signals, it requires both a CAM and viewing card to decrypt scrambled pay-TV channels. Some receivers feature a Common Interface to enable a number of CAMs to be inserted for viewing of a number of different digital bouquets. Digital receivers can be linked to your existing analogue system for ease of use. This can be done using either a twin-output LNB, a priority switching system or a special IF splitter. In the future, interactive services such as home shopping, educational facilities, the Internet and e-mail will also be offered – depending on the compatibility of your receiver and the broadcaster involved.

KEY: A blob in a feature column indicates that the receiver has this feature. Some adjustments are V (variable – they can take any value within a range), S (switchable – they take one of a number of discrete values) or F (fixed – they cannot be altered). Many of the column headings are the same as for the analogue receivers. The additional column headings are explained here.

COMBINED ANALOGUE: Some receivers integrate analogue and digital reception in one box. Digital features are listed under Fixed Dish Analogue Receivers

RECEIVER PRICE: Digital receivers are typically sold without a dish because it is assumed that buyers already have an antenna for analogue TV reception

DISEQC: This facility enables you to control several LNBs (or dishes) from one LNB input. It's ideal for buyers planning to watch digital channels from more than one satellite. The version indicates how many can be connected. Version 1.0 allows up to four, 1.1 allows up to eight

SCPC COMPATIBLE: Some digital channels use a whole transponder's capacity, known as Single Channel Per Carrier, and your digital receiver should ideally have this facility

CAM: The Conditional Access Module provides the crucial conditional access technology required to decode the scrambled signals broadcast by the service provider. The modular approach ensures that the cost of upgrades will be reduced and that the receiver will keep pace with advances in CA technology

NUMBER CARD SLOTS: In addition to a CAM, digital receivers require a suitable DVB viewing card to be inserted before viewing encrypted digital channels

COMMON INTERFACE: A slot that enables a Common Interface module (similar in looks to a PC card) to be inserted in some receivers. Such a slot is desirable as it enables the separation of the proprietary CA technology from the receiver

EPG: Some receivers have access to an electronic programme guide that enables the latest channel listings and programme info to be seen onscreen. EPGs are broadcast as part of the MPEG-2 signal

TELETEXT: You don't need a TV equipped with teletext to access text from digital channels. The teletext signal is broadcast within the MPEG-2 data stream. If the receiver has a text option you should be able to access it

R232 INTERFACE: Links a computer printer or other peripherals to the receiver. May not be operational; available for future services

MODEM OUTPUT: Used to attach a phone modem for accessing interactive services

OPEN TV: Interactive software used by channels in France and Germany

SCSI OUTPUT: High-speed data interface for linking a CD-Rom, CD-player and video CDs in the future

UHF TUNING RANGE: Some digital receivers do not have a UHF modulator (and therefore no tuning range) because the manufacturers consider that using UHF leads is inferior to Scart connections

Key to digital satellite PC cards

These cards can also be used for multimedia-via-satellite, which includes high-speed downloads and 'streaming' video and audio, which can be watched on a computer using appropriate media player software, as well as the ability to surf the Internet at speeds higher than a normal telephone link.

KEY: A blob in the feature column indicates that the receiver has this feature. Some adjustments are V (variable – they can take any value within a range), S (selectable – they take one of a number of discrete values), F (fixed – they cannot be altered) or A (automatic – the receiver detects the correct value). Many of the column headings are the same as for analogue and digital receivers. The additional column headings are explained here.

MAXIMUM RESOLUTION: The greatest resolution at which the card can produce a picture in a window. This is defined as a number of pixels wide, by a number of pixels high. The size this appears onscreen will depend on the resolution at which your monitor operates.

FULL SCREEN VIEWING: Most cards can stretch the maximum resolution picture to fill a larger screen, either by interpolating the missing lines or by spreading the original pixels over a block of several pixels on the monitor. Both of these methods reduce clarity at the expense of a larger picture.

INTERNET-VIA-SATELLITE: A worthwhile satellite receiver card should be compatible with consumer high speed Internet-by-satellite services such as Europe Online, unless it is intended for use with other satellite data services.

VIDEO OUTPUTS: By attaching a TV to an external analogue video output, a larger picture can be obtained from the card without the loss of clarity by expanding to the fill your computer monitor. Also allows satellite TV programmes to be recorded on a normal VCR. PC cards will have either a composite video phono output socket, or a high quality S-video output.

INTERNAL AUDIO CONNECTOR: Connecting your satellite receiver card to your sound card internally is neater, offers higher quality sound, and keeps the line-in port of your soundcard free.

RECORD TO HARD DISC: Software can capture still images from TV, or record in MPEG2 to the PCs hard disc drive

MAC ADDRESSING: Individual MAC addresses are widely used to verify subscriptions to internet and multimedia-by-satellite services and address information

AV INPUTS: With composite video or S-video inputs, your satellite card can be used to watch signals from an external DVD player, VCR, or you can use a videosender to send Sky Digital from the living room to the PC in your home office.

MINIMUM PC PROCESSOR: The slowest Pentium processor recommended for reliable use, in MHz

MINIMUM PC RAM: The minimum memory capacity (in MB) for running under Windows 98, usually double under Windows 2000 and XP

DIGITAL SATELLITE PC CARDS

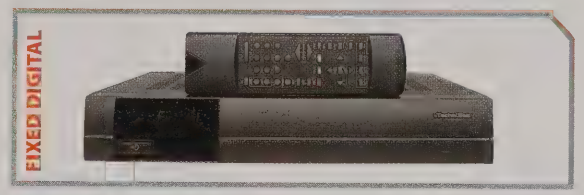
SKY PLUS £199

The ultimate Sky Digibox – at least for now – Sky Plus slickly combines an excellent Pace digital satellite receiver with a cutting edge personal video recorder. The Sky EPG and many interactive services run fast enough to be a pleasure rather than a chore, but you'll have to pay an extra £10 monthly subscription for the PVR features, on top of your Sky subscription (but not if you subscribe to more than two premium channels).



TECHNISAT TECHNIBOX CAM1 PLUS – £199

High-quality German receiver with twin common interface and Dolby Digital audio support. User interface is very straightforward, but flexible enough for enthusiasts' needs, while picture quality and sound quality are excellent. The UHF output isn't UK-compatible, but it would insult this receiver to use anything other than Scart.

HAUPPAUGE WinTV NEXUS-S – £199

The successor to the Win TV DVB-S offers fewer connections but enhanced performance and features. Picture quality is great and it has most features you'd expect from a standalone satellite receiver, and easy-to-use software for internet-via-satellite and streaming media services. It can also turn your PC into a PVR as it can pause live TV and make scheduled recordings. Unlike many PC TV cards, its onboard MPEG processor means it won't hog too much of the system doing it.

Key to DiSEqC 1.2 digital receivers

Many new receivers use Eutelsat's DiSEqC software system to offer a cheap and easy route to a motor-ised dish which can point at different parts of the sky. DiSEqC 1.2 receivers send signals and power along the LNB cable to an 'intelligent' motorised dish mount which is programmed with the satellite positions. Because the cable is carrying control signals and the IF satellite feed from the LNB, the power it can supply without causing interference limits dish size to one metre. However, interfaces are available for larger dishes which interpret the DiSEqC signals for a traditional motorised mount.

KEY: A blob in a feature column indicates that the receiver has this feature. Some adjustments are V (variable – they can take any value within a range), S (switchable – they take one of a number of discrete values), F (fixed – they cannot be altered), or A (automatic)

Many of the column headings are the same as for the analogue and digital fixed dish receivers. The additional column headings are explained here

COMBINED DIGITAL: Some receivers integrate analogue and digital reception in one box. Digital features are listed under the neighbouring table

DISEQC LEVEL: Versions 1.2 provides simple positioning and movement limits. USALS enables receiver to automatically calculate satellite positions. Satscan is competing but similar technology used by Nokia

NUMBER OF SATELLITE POSITIONS: The more the better. Standard DiSEqC 1.2 allows for up to 50 positions, but this is limited by some software.

Key to motorised digital/analogue receivers

To view the programmes from more than one satellite, a motorised dish system is required. This includes a dish able to point at the different parts of the sky where the satellites are situated, and a positioner unit to control the dish motor The range of formats and standards on all the satellites is enormous, so multi-satellite systems must be flexible.

KEY: A blob in a feature column indicates that the receiver has this feature. Some adjustments are V (variable – they can take any value within a range), S (switchable – they take one of a number of discrete values) or F (fixed – they cannot be altered). Some of the column headings are the same as for the analogue and digital fixed dish receivers.

The additional column headings are explained here.

MAKE & MODEL: The models listed are all systems with integrated positioners which are capable of moving automatically to a new satellite on a channel change.

RECEIVER PRICE: The price of the receiver on its own without dish, LNB, mount and so on.

NUMBER OF SATELLITE POSITIONS: Not all receivers can pick up as many satellite positions as are needed for receiving 'everything'. The more the merrier.

VIDEO BANDWIDTH: Reducing the video bandwidth can reduce sparklies on weak signals, although some loss of picture quality is inevitable.

EXTERNAL SWITCH OUTPUT: Programmable 5V or 12V output to trigger an external LNB switch or other equipment.

OPTICAL ACTUATOR DRIVE: Dish actuators using an optional switch for feedback require a continuous 5V supply.

ECHOSTAR DVR-7000 – £900

Not just a very flexible motorised analogue and digital receiver, but a personal video recorder and MP3 player, the DVR-7000 is the first luxury receiver we've seen in some years. It can store 4,700 channels across 100 positions, with automatic satellite locating and searching. Programme information is stored on the 40Gb hard drive, along with around 12 hours of video and hundreds of MP3 files. There's also a twin Common Interface and a Viaccess CAM to enjoy the high-quality audio-visual performance on any channel.

MANHATTAN STARLIGHT 6800 – £299

A high-end motorised receiver needs lots of features to merit the outlay, and the 6800 has them. One of most advanced, easy-to-use receivers we've come across, the 6800 has a twin CI and an integrated CAM, built-in Teletext viewer, timers, S-video and RGB outputs, and digital audio outputs. It's fully motorised for both 36V users or DiSEqC motors and has a capable auto-locating system for traditional actuators as well as the full range of DiSEqC and USALS features. There's memory for 5,000 channels and channel lists can be edited.

FORCE D-MASTER 1145S – £295

The 1145S replaces the highly regarded 1122S. The sleek design is largely unchanged, and it features twin CI slots along with Viaccess and Seca CAMs. The 1145S can auto-locate satellites when used in conjunction with a DiSEqC motor and is preset for use with a four-way DiSEqC switch expandable to two-level DiSEqC 1.1 for use with up to 16 fixed LNBs. There's memory for 3,000 channels and 50 satellites and a symbol rate range of 2,000-45,000. An excellent revision of an old classic.

CONTACT ADDRESSES

A to Z of satellite

AC-3
Flexible audio data compression format designed by Dolby Laboratories to enable transmission of high-quality multi-channel audio such as Dolby Digital 5.1 alongside digital TV signals. A digital TV receiver with the correct hardware recognises the AC-3 signal and passes it to a digital audio output, for decoding by suitable home cinema audio equipment
Actuator
motor and feedback system to drive a motorised multi-satellite antenna Antenna
any device to pick up and deliver satellite microwave signals to the receiver Apex
the highest point (eg. of a motorised dish's arc)
Arc
the imaginary curve connecting the Clarke Belt satellites in the sky Aspect ratio ratio of the width of a TV picture to its height. Conventionally 4:3 (pronounced 4-by-3). See also Widescreen Astra Digital Radio system for digital audio broadcasts by satellite using compressed digital audio occupying the audio subcarrier space AV (audio-visual) equipment for all aspects of TV and audio Azimuth
compass bearing of a satellite or a dish's reception path Bandwidth range of frequencies occupied by a signal or allowed by equipment Baseband
raw satellite TV signal from a receiver before modulation to a signal suitable for a television Beam satellite transmission pattern; may be wide, narrow or spot beam Beamwidth
the acceptance angle of a dish Belling-Lee
plug/socket type used for UHF (aerial) connections and for LNB connections on a few European receivers BER (bit error rate) accuracy of a digital signal. Equivalent to analogue S/N Bird satellite Bit rate
digitised TV signal reduced in size by removing repeated information to allow several TV channels to occupy a single transponder Conditional access technology which prevents unauthorised viewing of TV or other content, usually by scrambling (encrypting) it and issuing a viewing card DBS band portion (11.700-12.500GHz) of the Ku-band frequencies intended for direct broadcast by satellite channels Declination
small offset angle used on a polar mount to tilt the dish towards the horizon and so track the satellite arc Decoder
unit to unscramble a protected TV signal for viewing De-emphasis filtering introduced by a receiver, in conjunction with the opposite 'pre-emphasis' at transmission to reduce audio noise Depolariser device to convert circular polarised signals to linear polarisation for selection by a conventional polariser Digibox
digital satellite receiver for the Sky Digital service incorporating a Videoguard CAM Digital TV
see Compressed digital TV
Digital TV converter (aka DTT converter) low-cost digital terrestrial TV receiver which enables an individual analogue TV or VCR to pick up DTT channels via a reception of Astra 1D signals EPG (electronic programme guide) onscreen guide to the programmes showing at the time, and to come, on a number of channels

Eurocrypt
Smart card scrambling system used with many Mac transmissions Event timer
programmable timer built into a receiver to switch on and change channels for unattended video recording F-connector
a screw-on plug/socket commonly used for LNB-receiver connections FEC (forward error correction) tuning parameter for digital broadcasts. Expressed as a fraction of the data used for correcting data errors introduced in the reception Feedhorn
collects the microwave signals at the focus of a dish and channels them to the LNB Flat-plate antenna
Flat (often square) antenna used instead of a dish. Works by adding together the signal from an array of collectors Focal point position in front of a dish reflector where the reflected signals are gathered Footprint area of the Earth in which a satellite's signal can be received. Also refers to contour map of the received signal strength from a satellite Free-to-air
channel broadcast without any conditional access or scrambling, allowing reception with any suitable receiver FSS (fixed satellite services) band portion (10.700-11.700GHz) of the Ku-band frequencies intended for business use, but now the main analogue satellite TV band Geostationary orbit orbit used by TV satellites at a height of 22,250 miles, in which satellites make an orbit in 24 hours, remaining fixed relative to the Earth's surface Geosynchronous orbit
see Geostationary orbit
GHz (gigahertz)
a billion cycles per second or 1,000MHz Gregorian
design of dish using a concave hyperbolic secondary reflector in addition to the main parabolic reflector Half-transponder mode method of transmitting two TV

10.750GHz for DBS, 11.475GHz for Telecom, 10.600GHz for Astra high band and 5.150GHz for C-band Longitude
the distance east or west of the Prime/Greenwich meridian, expressed in degrees Loopthrough
pair of output and input connections on a receiver that allows external equipment to be inserted in the TV signal path LNB (low-noise block down-converter) amplifies received signals and converts them from microwaves to lower-frequency electrical signal to send down cable to the receiver Luminance part of a TV signal carrying the brightness information of the picture (see also Chrominance) Magnetic polariser
solid-state polariser controlled by current from the receiver Marconi-type LNB
see Voltage-switched LNB Mechanical polariser
servo-actuated polariser controlled by electrical pulses from the receiver MHz (megahertz)
one million cycles per second. 1,000kHz Microwave
radio signal with a frequency of 1-30GHz Modulator device which impresses the TV picture and sound signal onto a radio carrier for broadcast or loopthrough Mount device to hold a satellite antenna and allow aiming adjustments MPEG (moving pictures expert group) international body to agree standards Polarity
property of satellite signals to differentiate between signals of similar frequencies and squeeze more channels into the available space. Signals are either linearly polarised (horizontal and vertical) or circularly polarised (left and right-handed) Polar mount multi-satellite antenna mount aligned so single movement allows the antenna to track the arc of the Clarke Belt Positioner
unit to control the motor of a motorised dish to point the dish at pre-programmed positions. Can be included inside a multi-satellite integrated receiver/positioner PPV (pay-per-view) pay-TV system allowing the purchase of an individual one-time TV event Primary focus focal point corresponding to the signals in the dish's boresight Pro-Logic
surround sound decoder system invented by Dolby Laboratories to reproduce cinema sound in the home PVR (personal video recorder) device using a hard disc drive to record TV in digital format, combined with an EPG to make programmed recordings easier
Quad-band LNB
LNB capable of receiving FSS, DBS and Telecom bands (including the 10.700-10.950GHz band first used by Astra 1D) in two ranges, selected from the receiver by altering the supply voltage (13/18V). See Triple-band LNB
Receiver
indoor unit to take signals from the antenna, tune and convert them for display on a TV Reflector dish-shaped surface of an antenna which collects the signal Secam (sequence à memoire)
a television system used by some French channels. It displays as black and white tuning parameter for digital broadcasts. Measure of the rate of supply of data in the signal Sync

TV signal constituent which synchronises the picture scanning of the TV set with the transmission Telecom band portion (12.500-12.750GHz) of the Ku-band frequencies first used by the French Telecom satellites but more correctly called broadcast satellite services (BSS) band Threshold
minimum C/N required to produce a sparklie-free picture. A measure of the sensitivity of a receiver – the lower the figure, the better Transponder (transmitter/responder) equipment inside a satellite responsible for receiving a single uplinked channel and re-broadcasting it back to Earth
Triple-band LNB
LNB which is capable of receiving FSS, DBS and Telecom bands in two ranges, selected from the receiver by altering the supply voltage (13/18V)
UHF (ultra high frequency)
300-3,000MHz. UK terrestrial TV uses 470-890MHz
Universal LNB voltage-switched type LNB with two reception frequency bands of 10.700-11.700GHz and 11.700-12.750GHz using local oscillator frequencies of 9.75GHz and 10.60GHz, selected by a 22kHz tone on the LNB power supply Uplink
the signal's path from Earth to the satellite USALS (universal satellite location speed of digital transmission, usually expressed in Mb/s. About 5Mb/s is considered equivalent to a broadcast PAL picture, while about 2.5Mb/s is equivalent to VHS direction along the principal reception path of an antenna; where it is 'looking'

CAM (conditional access module) electronics used to unscramble a protected digital broadcast

Cassegrain
design of dish using a convex hyperbolic secondary reflector in addition to the main parabolic reflector

C-band signal frequency range (3.700-4.200GHz) used for satellite TV, particularly in the US

Centre-feed dish dish with the focal point and feedhorn at the centre. See Offset

Chrominance
part of a television signal carrying the colour information of the picture

CI (Common interface) connection standard for adding equipment to a digital receiver. Uses the same connector and card format as the PCMCIA computer standard

Clarke Belt
see Geostationary orbit

C/N (carrier-to-noise ratio)
a measure of the performance of an antenna. Ratio of the received power to the noise power, expressed in dB

co-axial cable and connectors used for aerial and antenna cables

Co-located
Satellites in the same apparent orbital position (within 0.2° of one another)

Composite Video
TV signal containing chrominance, luminance and sync information. Used in Scart connectors

Compressed digital TV
Scart or analogue UHF input

DiSEqC (Digital Satellite Equipment Control) control system for antenna peripherals such as LNBs and switches using digital codes formed from 22kHz pulses on the LNB power supply

Dish
antenna using a parabolic reflector to collect microwave signals

Downlink
the signal's path from the satellite to the receiving antenna

DTH (direct-to-home) satellite TV intended for domestic reception

DTT (digital terrestrial television) channels broadcast by ground-based transmitter masts and received by a standard rooftop or indoor aerial through a DTT converter or IDTV, using a version of DVB standard optimised for terrestrial TV

Dual-feed
see Multi-feed

DVB (digital video broadcasting) standard for digital broadcasting established in Europe but used worldwide with the exception of the US

EIRP (effective isotropic radiated power) measure of a satellite's signal strength received on the ground

El-az (elevation-azimuth) mount Simple fixed dish mount allowing adjustments in horizontal and vertical planes

Elevation
vertical angle between an antenna's reception path and the horizontal

Enhanced
LNB (9.750GHz local oscillator) or receiver (extended IF) designed for the channels on one transponder by sharing the bandwidth between them (usually two 36MHz channels on a 72MHz transponder). Reduces the EIRP of each channel by about 4dB

Horizon-to-horizon compact polar mount allowing extremely wide range of movement and accurate tracking

Horn
antenna using an enlarged feedhorn and no reflector

HDTV (high-definition television)
TV system using an increased number of screen lines for a sharper picture

HEMT (high electron mobility transistor) type of low noise LNB

IDTV (integrated digital TV)
TV set with a built-in DTT or digital satellite TV receiver, removing the need for an external converter or receiver

IF (intermediate frequency) signal in cable between LNB and receiver. Also receiver's tuning frequency. 950-2050MHz

IF shifter device inserted in the LNB cable to enable reception of frequency bands not intended for the LNB

Inclined orbit
orbit inclined relative to the Equator. Produces apparent motion of the satellite above and below the arc

Inclinometer
device to measure a vertical angle

Interference
picture (or sound) distortion caused by an additional unwanted signal

Jack
see Actuator

kHz (kilohertz)
one thousand cycles per second

Ka-band
signal frequency range (approximately 21-25GHz) now used for two-way broadband satellite services with small user terminals and dishes of less than a metre diameter signal frequency range (10.700-18.000GHz) used for most satellite TV in Europe

Ku-band

Latitude
the distance north or south of the Equator, expressed in degrees

Local oscillator
Device inside the LNB which determines which received frequency band is converted to within the receiver's tuning frequency: 10.000GHz for standard FSS, 9.750GHz for 'enhanced' FSS, for compressed digital TV. MPEG-1: compression standard on VHS quality used in CD-video. MPEG-2: transmission-quality standard used for digital TV broadcasts

MHEG-5 (Multimedia and Hypermedia information coding Expert Group) international open standard of software for operating interactive TV applications, used for British DTT

Multi-feed
antenna system with two or more LNBs on a fixed dish to view more than one satellite

Noise unwanted constituent of a signal

Noise figure measure of the performance (noise contribution) of an LNB, in dB – the lower, the better

NTSC (national television standards committee)
TV broadcast standard used in North America and Japan

NVOD (near video-on-demand) multi-channel system broadcasting many editions of a film with staggered start times so a complete film is always available to a viewer after a short wait

Offset
type of dish antenna with the focus and feedhorn below the centre of the dish

OMT (orthogonal mode transducer) waveguide splitter to allow two LNBs to receive horizontal and vertical polarised signals simultaneously

OpenTV
proprietary software for operating interactive TV applications used by Sky Digital in the UK and the FUN alliance of channels in Germany

Orbit
path of satellite round the Earth

PAL (phase alternate line)
TV system used by terrestrial TV in the UK and on most European satellite channels

Parental lock receiver's PIN-operated lock that allows you to block out a specified channel

Phono
plug/socket type used for receiver connections for audio, video and baseband signals

PIN (Personal Identification Number) user-set security code number which must be entered to watch certain channels, order goods, access menus, etc

Polariser device fitted on the dish to separate one polarity signal from the other on UK PAL television

Skew fine-tuning of polarity to account for different angles of signals from different satellites

Scart
European 21-pin plug and socket standard to link audio-visual equipment

Secondary focus focal point of a signal off the boresight of a dish. Used by multi-feed antennas

Slot satellite position in the Clarke Belt, expressed as degrees east or west of South (the orbital position above 0° longitude)

Smart card
credit card-sized electronic key put in a decoder to unscramble a protected channel

SMATV (satellite master antenna television) satellite TV distribution system for blocks of flats with single antenna

S/N (signal-to-noise) ratio ratio of a signal's power to the noise power in a specific bandwidth, expressed in dB

SNG (satellite news-gathering) use of satellite TV technology to send news material from portable uplink stations

Sound-in-sync broadcast format in which audio data is placed in the picture's sync pulses, producing an unstable silent picture without a decoder

Sparklies
impulse noise seen as black and white speckles in the picture caused by too low a S/N ratio (too weak a signal)

S/PDIF (Sony/Philips digital interface)
Standard for digital audio transmission using both fibre optic and coaxial connections, between a digital TV receiver and a home cinema audio system

technique to increase the number of digital compressed channels broadcast in a given bandwidth by dynamically varying the compression ratio for each channel according to programme content

Subcarrier
auxiliary signal associated with an analogue satellite TV signal used for carrying the audio soundtrack or additional radio stations

S-video video format which maintains separate chrominance and luminance signals

Symbol rate

enhancement of DiSEqC 1.2 motor control software enabling a motor to calculate the site of any satellite based on the user's latitude and longitude

USB (universal serial bus) high-speed data interface for connecting peripherals, such as cameras, PCs, hard disc drives and printers to satellite receivers, DTT converters and PVR

Videocrypt
smart card-operated encryption system used by Sky analogue subscription channels

Videoguard
smart card-operated encryption system used by Sky digital subscription services

VOD (video-on-demand) multi-channel system allowing a film to be broadcast immediately it is requested by an individual viewer

Voltage-switched LNB combined LNB/polariser used on Astra systems with polarity selected by changing the voltage (13/18V) supplied to the LNB

Waveguide accurately engineered channel for a microwave signal

Widescreen
TV picture with an aspect ratio greater than the standard 4:3. Usually 16:9, but 14:9, 23:3 and others also seen very extended receiver's IF tuning, allowing reception of Astra 1D with a 'standard' LNB (with 10.000GHz local oscillator). 700-2,050MHz at least

Wideband

22kHz tones
control system for LNBs. Conceived to select reception bands on universal LNBs, also used for LNB switches and as basis for the DiSEqC control system

YOUR GUIDE TO LOCAL CAI QUALIFIED SATELLITE INSTALLER

You've bought your new satellite and now you want to install it. Who do you go to? Look no further than your local CAI installer.
The CAI (Confederation of Aerial Industries Limited) is THE recognised trade body for the aerial and satellite industry. The CAI is committed to raising standards within the industry and whilst the criteria for membership is extremely high, the consurer is assured of A QUALITY INSTALLATION AT A FAIR PRICE.

What is so special about a member of the CAI?

* CAI Members only employ qualified personnel whose work is monitored by an inspector.
* All CAI Members are required to work to the exacting standards laid down in the CAI's Codes of Practice.
* All CAI Members guarantee their installations for a minimum of twelve months. In addition, the CAI undertakes to back-up this guarantee with its own twelve months guarantee, for domestic installations only.
* CAI Members should carry identity cards that clearly state their name and company details together with a photograph.
* All CAI Members are required to have full insurance cover. This gives the consumer total peace of mind before the work commences.
* If a customer is unhappy with any aspect of the installation, the CAI has a formal complaints procedure.

Motorised Systems

The 14 Kg 1224 Supermount

(We can program a receiver for you) (1.5 magic CAMs at only £79.95 avail. with systems)

Advice. Our systems from Technomate & Echostar include internal 36 volt positioners and heavy duty "bolt-on" motors. (Or a V Box is included with the Xtreme.) This avoids the use of lightweight universal fit (i.e does not fit anything properley) diseqc motors. All our dish motors are 36V and up to 5A.)

Here are a number of examples from our web site.

Technomate CIP, Triax 78cm, Triax motor, LNB £319.95

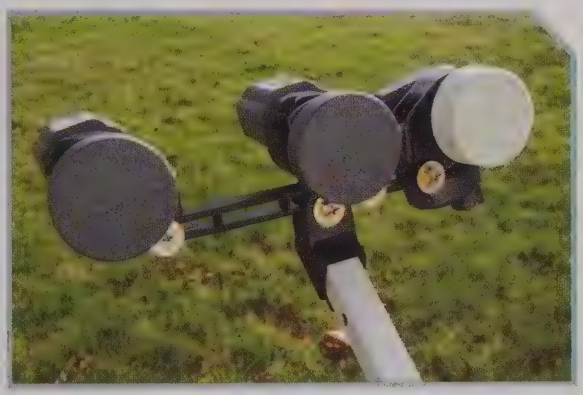
TWO FOR ONE

I live in a flat and share a big 60cm dish. I do receive Sky Digital and enjoy it. I just wondered if I can have another LNB fitted on a dish to receive another satellite?

I was thinking of 16°E as well as my Sky Digital at 28.2°E. None of my neighbours has Sky Digital but it's not going to bother them too much if I have another LNB fitted so I can have the choice of two satellites.

– BARRY ANDERSON, REDHILL, SURREY



Although it is possible for a dish to receive signals from Eutelsat W2 at 16°E and Astra2/Eurobird 1 at 28°E, this is not going to be practical in your case. Your 60cm dish is not all that big. It is larger than the 'normal' 45cm because it is feeding a communal dish system. Although a 60cm dish would get at least some signals aimed directly at W2 (at least 70cm is really needed), it is not big enough to use for W2 with a secondary offset LNB. So you would have to re-align the dish on W2 and move the communal LNB to the secondary focus for 28°E. This your neighbours would not appreciate!

You would also have to run additional cable from the dish to your flat, and your landlord would probably not like that much.

You need to leave the Sky Digital dish alone and either add an additional 80cm dish for W2 with cabling to your flat, or persuade the neighbours and the landlord of the value of expanding the communal system to include W2.

A large dish is needed to get 28°E and 16°E with motor LNBs

MODULATED DVD

I want to get a DVD player but my TV is so old that it only has an aerial socket on the back. Is there any cheap way of connecting the two? Would it work if I got the budget RF modulator that I've seen advertised, and using an aerial lead from this to my TV, with a Scart-to-Scart cable connecting the modulator to the DVD player?

– NICHOLAS TATCHELL, BY E-MAIL

This will work fine but you will not get as good a picture as you would via a direct Scart connection (although if your TV is so old, you may not get a very good picture anyway). Be sure to connect the DVD audio output through a hi-fi or surround sound system – a connection via a UHF modulator will only give mono sound on the TV.

CAM CONFUSION

I have a question about free-to-air satellite TV satellite receivers. Can we add an external CAM (as an external device) to them, like an external device in a PC?

– HESHAM KHATAB, WORTHING

A conditional access module (CAM) in a satellite receiver needs certain signals fed to it and taken from it so if the right connections are all presented to the CAM outside the receiver then it will operate correctly.

A CAM need a common interface slot to work

Many FTA receivers are fitted with a common interface (CI) socket. This has all the necessary connections and is used to connect a CAM to a receiver. A CAM is then effectively as much an external device as any PC add-on, although actually sited in a slot inside the casing. It would theoretically be possible to fit an extension lead so that the CAM was physically outside the receiver – but there would be no point.

COUNTING CABLES

I am having a new house built and, as such, it will come with certain cabling installed. I am told that I will have a TV and a satellite point in my living room. From this I assume that the cables will be/need to be different. My question is, if I wish to loop back to a TV upstairs and watch Sky via their own small device and extra handset, will I need a third cable from the living room which will terminate in the loft for ongoing connection to the bedroom, and will the cable be standard TV cable or specialist satellite cable?

I am looking at having the Sky Plus system and subscribing to one of the packages. However, I would also like to pick up programmes from other satellites like the Hot Bird and Eutelsat, so do I need a Sky Plus box and a second motorised equipment set up for the others, or is there something that will allow me to pick up everything from one set of kit? I live in the north-east of England, by the way.

– KEVIN GREAVES, BY E-MAIL

If you can specify what cabling is going into your new home then get as many runs of satellite cable as you can from loft to living room and elsewhere. The satellite cable will do for UHF terrestrial aerial use too, so standardise on that.

Make sure that double-shielded cable, such as RG6, is used.

For a Sky Plus receiver you will need two cables from the dish (via the loft) to the living room and another for the UHF aerial. You will then need another to return the second UHF output from the receiver to the loft for distribution to one or more secondary TV sets.

And you may want to install other equipment such as a security camera, so the more the merrier!

Your Sky Plus receiver will only conveniently and realistically receive transmissions from the Astra 2 and Eurobird 1 satellites at 28°E. If you want other channels from other satellites it is best to invest in a separate system to look after those. This doesn't have to mean a motorised system – if you want just one or two other satellites, a larger fixed dish with a second offset LNB will do the trick (and that could also handle the 28°E reception too).

However, you will require another cable for the second receiver!

NOTHING FOR NOTHING

We have this sort of small box beside our gas meter and it says on the cover of the box 'Cable and Wireless'. My husband thought it was a box for cable channels so he connects the TV to this box and apparently we had cable channels provided free by NTL. Our problem is that is there any chance that we can be detected by this company?

Some of the programmes are clear but a few of them are bit fuzzy. Is there any other way that we can use to increase the signal of the reception? My husband has already tried a Freeview box and a plug-in amplifier but the reception doesn't change.

– JENNEVIEVE SORIANO, BY E-MAIL

Hmm, you have a resourceful husband. You are probably receiving analogue cable TV (there's still plenty of the UK not yet upgraded to digital), subscribed to by a previous owner of the house and forgotten about by C&W (not least, because it was taken over by NTL).

It is unlikely that anyone will notice that you have started to use the channels that have been piped into your home all this time.

However, you will not be able to improve on the quality of reception. Using an amplifier will not help – the quality is not down to the weakness of the signal entering your home but the poor quality much farther upstream. A Freeview box won't help either and, frankly, it's beyond us how your husband used this at all!

The Digibox's UHF loopthrough [illegible] installations simpler

SPLITTING AERIALS

I need to buy a three-way splitter from you for the TV in my bedroom so I can attach another TV and also attach an NTL cable box. There is no Scart socket, just an ordinary aerial socket. We have Sky Digital downstairs and this can be watched in the bedroom, but not a different channel to downstairs, this is why we want to attach the cable box so that we have more choice. What three-way splitter should I buy?

– JOAN COULTON, BY E-MAIL

You are making it too complicated. You need to loop the aerial connection through the cable box so it adds its bit to the mass of signals through the UHF cable. This means you will have a cable from the TV aerial to your Digibox in the living room. Output 1 of this should connect to your TV (via your VCR if applicable). Output 2 will go up to the bedroom, to the cable box 'aerial in' socket, from the 'aerial out' or 'TV' socket to your bedroom TV. Then in the bedroom you will be able to watch TV from the aerial, cable and whichever Sky channel is selected downstairs.

SATELLITE HEADACHES

I have a motorised satellite dish. A neighbour has contacted me saying that him and his wife are getting a lot of headaches and that seeing my satellite dish pointing towards their house could be the problem and can I move the dish.

I have now moved the dish but would like to know if you know of any information concerning this subject, as other neighbours may complain now I have moved the dish.

– PAUL TINDELL, BY E-MAIL

Your dish was never 'pointing at their house' (if it was, you would not have received any programmes – unless they have a TV satellite in their front room – which would explain the headaches). An offset dish can appear to be pointed horizontally because it is designed to keep the reflector roughly vertical to help rain and snow run off, but in fact it is aimed at an angle up into the sky (where the satellites are).

A satellite dish is designed to focus the extremely weak signals from the satellites (24,000 miles away in space) on to the LNB. Even focused (by the dish), these signals are still only just strong enough to be detected by the sensitive electronics in the LNB (the signal is much weaker than the TV signal picked up by a TV aerial).

To be hair-splitting, the LNB itself employs an internal oscillator, but it's fully enclosed in metal and it's unlikely that the signal from this could be detected more than a few metres away.

In fact, the dish is no more dangerous than a dustbin lid bolted to your wall.

In contrast, the mains electrical wiring in a house can generate a signal at 50Hz and some people have suggested that this can be dangerous, even to the extent of causing cancer. Also, the signals generated by a TV set are quite strong. Try putting a transistor radio tuned to medium or long wave near to a TV set.

You are right to be kind to your neighbours, but you may have set a dangerous precedent by moving your dish. As you say, your other uneducated neighbours may now demand that you move your dish again.

Your neighbours' headaches are certainly not down to your satellite dish but they would be wise to investigate their true cause. This is a common symptom of a faulty gas flue. They may be suffering from mild carbon monoxide poisoning, which could easily get worse. You might like to suggest this as the cause of their problem as it can be fatal. Show them this if it helps.

DOLBY TEASER

Some time ago you printed a review of a 'new' product that plugged in the back of a Sky Digibox that gave a Dolby Digital output via an optical lead. Can you remind me what this was and who the manufacturer is, as so far I have been unable to find it.

– JOHN BAILEY, BY E-MAIL

Unfortunately, there has been no such product released. It is technically possible to do this and Pace did demonstrate a prototype a few years ago (it was probably the report on this that you remember). However, Sky needs to approve any such device as it would require considerable modification to the software inside the Digibox, and so far Sky has shown no interest. At the moment, the only way to produce a Dolby Digital 5.1 signal from a Digibox is to make it a Sky Plus unit that you're using.

FILI-PINING FOR HOME

I want to be able to receive the Filipino channels that ABS-CBN is offering on Atlantic Bird 3 as my wife from the Philippines is a little home-sick and is desperate to have these channels here in her new home. The four channels are listed in the Channel Check and are called TFC-Middle East, ABS-CBN news, Cinema One, and Pinoy Central TV.

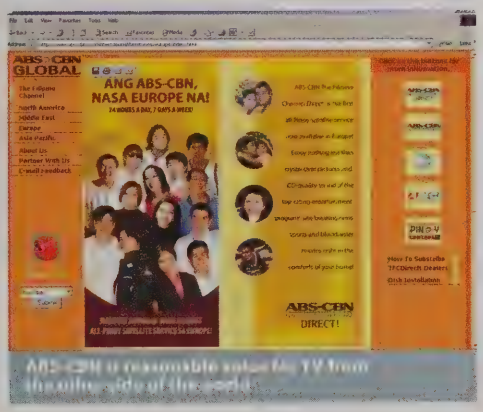
What kind of receiver will I need? Does it need to be a subscription-based one, or can I receive these channels free with a free-to-air box?

I wrote to the ABS-CBN company direct and it replied with some answers, but I want to be sure before I spend lots of money on a receiver as I was told I would need a Nagravision decoder to be able to pick up the correct frequency and, of course, the company was expecting me to purchase the receiver from them, and quoted it at €200, which made me start to think it's ABS-CBN's ploy to encourage me to buy its receiver and everything. So I wondered if a substitute box from somewhere else, and at a much cheaper price, might do the trick.

ABS-CBN also quoted me a £300-a-year subscription fee, which I would be prepared to pay if there is no alternative, but I think I read somewhere on the internet that the batch of channels in question is free-to-air.

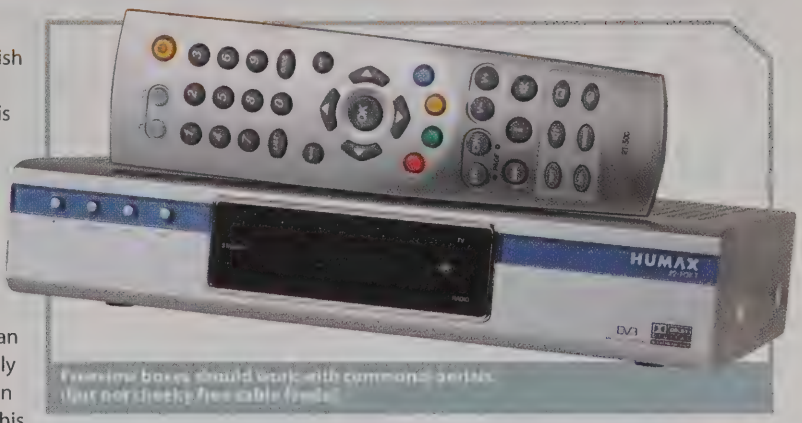
According to ABS-CBN, an 80cm dish would do for where I am – well, that's fine because I have a 90cm dish spare. I also noticed in the magazine that a 70cm dish is quoted for use in London, and that's only up the road from me as satellites go, isn't it?
– DAVID KNIGHT, ST AUSTELL, CORNWALL



ABS-CBN is reasonable value for TV from the other side of the media

The Filipino channels you refer to are encrypted in Nagravision so you will not be able to receiver them using any kind of free-to-air receiver. You will need a DVB receiver with a suitable Nagravision CAM and the correct viewing card to pick up these channels. As far as we know, there is no 'alternative' source of suitable receivers or viewing cards in the UK so you need to get the official ones. To be honest, £200 for the receiver doesn't strike us as very expensive, and £300 for a year's subscription is on the dear side but not unheard of.

Your 90cm dish will do OK for this satellite. Although we quote a 70cm dish size needed in London (which is not 'only up the road' from you in satellite terms – the dish size required depends on the satellite's footprint and that can vary considerably between London and St Austell) this is the minimum size required for reception. You will not actually find many dishes 70cm across; 80cm and 90cm are the standard sizes and as you have a 90cm dish, use it!



Freeview boxes should work with communal aerials that not thickly free cable feeds

LIFE IN OLD ONNET

I read in Troubleshooter (November 2003) the question from Brian McCallister regarding his old ONnet box. Assuming the modem still functions, this box can be upgraded with new software provided by ONmail.co.uk. Simply type this address in the URL bar and click 'software upgrade' on the displayed page. However, if the box fails to connect it will be necessary to reset it.
– PHILIP ODELL, BY E-MAIL

Thanks for that. It is good to know that ONnet systems are not being made entirely redundant with the demise of ONdigital. We have not been able to check out the upgrading process and the new service because … er .. we have already thrown out our ONnet box!

COMMUNAL CONUNDRUM

Just a quick question. I live in London and have perfect analogue reception via a communal aerial in a block of flats. Should I encounter reception difficulties using a Freeview box plugged into this aerial?
– ROD GREEN, LONDON

The question was quick but the answer may be less so. Freeview reception will depend on two things – your location and the nature and state of your communal aerial system.

First, go to http://www.dtg.org.uk/retailer/coverage.html and use the postcode checker there. It will list the programmes that should be available to you at your address.

If this tells you that all the programmes should be available at your location from a particular transmitter, then check with your management company that the communal aerial is aligned on that transmitter, that the aerial system is providing you with a signal equivalent to a 12dB wideband aerial, and that the system is wired with double-shielded cable that is not routed alongside any mains cables.

If all these criteria are met, your reception should be fine. Even if they are not all met, you might get acceptable reception with maybe occasional break-up or some channels missing. The only way to find out for sure is to borrow a Freeview receiver and try it for a full day. Interference is usually worst around teatime, when kettles are being switched on and traffic is at a maximum.

AUDIO ONLY

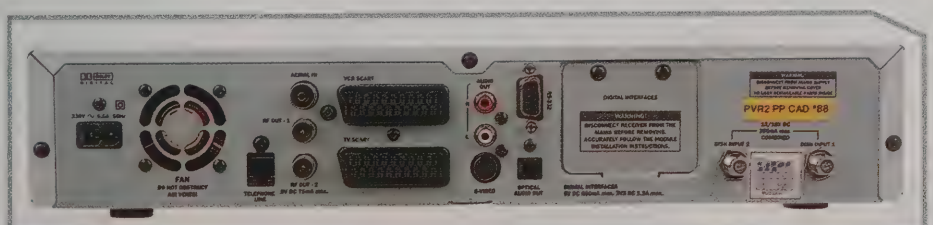
Are there any receivers out there with a built-in amp and speaker so I can listen to the radio stations only?
– JOE BIELAWSKI, BY E-MAIL

As far as we are aware, nobody produces such a satellite receiver (although something similar was once available for the radio stations broadcasting alongside analogue satellite TV). With so many radio stations using Astra 2/Eurobird 1, and broadcasting in high quality, it would seem that there would be a market for such a machine.

One problem would be setting up the receiver and selecting the right channel without any kind of onscreen help.

However, many receivers these days have quite extensive front panel displays so it's not beyond the wit of man.

However, at the moment the only satellite receivers with built-in amplifier and speakers are with a built-in TV screen too! The AMT Satcruiser tested in the November 2003 issue would do the trick, but this is probably not what you're looking for ■



Many receivers have digital audio outputs, but not a built-in amp and speaker

BLASTS FROM THE PAST

Over the years What Satellite & Digital TV has tested more satellite receivers, decoders, dishes and home cinema gear than you can shake a stick at.

If you've missed that vital test, or want to upgrade your system, our Test Reprint service can provide you with a photocopy of any article from What Satellite & Digital TV since its inception.

The date of testing for current equipment can be found in the Buyer's Guide.

To order, fill in the coupon, adding details of your requirements, enclose a cheque or postal order for £3 per reprint (made payable to Highbury-WV) and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and send it to What Satellite & Digital TV Reprints, Highbury-WV, 53-79 Highgate Road, London NW5 1TW (please allow 28 days for delivery).

For orders outside the UK, the price is £4.00 (sterling cheque), which includes the return postage.

WIN a year of satellite broadband from BeyonDSL

BeyonDSL is the first company to take advantage of Eutelsat's latest satellite, Ebird, to supply high-speed internet into the UK.

Ebird orbits at 33°E, where it can be picked up simultaneously with Sky Digital using a 60cm dish equipped with a special LNB.

Internet by satellite is the ideal solution to the dial-up bottleneck for anyone living beyond the reach of DSL or cable internet links.

You send your browsing and downloading instructions by a conventional phone or ISDN connection, and the information is returned at high speed via satellite.

BeyonDSL uses Eutelsat's tried-and-tested Opensky software to provide high-speed internet, offline e-mail alerts, best-of-the-net offline file downloads and TV channels.

At its most basic level, the service guarantees an average speed of 400kb/s for the first 150MB each month, followed by 200kb/s for the second 150MB, and a best possible speed after that – with burst speeds possible of up to 2Gb/s.

Power users can sign up to more expensive accounts giving guaranteed speeds for the first 800MB, 1GB, 2GB or 4GB a month.

BeyonDSL is offering one lucky reader the chance to win a complete high-speed internet installation and free downloads for a year.

The winner will get a Sky-compatible dish with a dual LNB to receive both Sky from 28°E and Opensky from 33°E.

They will also get a Sky Digibox and a Manhattan DVB-IP1000 USB sat-internet PC adapter.

Add to this a BDSL300 account for a year with 300MB download capacity a month, and access to an 0845 local call-rate dial-up internet account if you don't have one already.

Entrants must have a PC running Microsoft Windows ME, Windows 2000 Professional or Windows XP, and must live in the United Kingdom.

SPLASHING INSTALLATION

Just thought your readers would like to see one of our recent installs on the inside of a bathroom window. This building is in sheltered accommodation and the customer was desperate to to get Sky Sports, but could not have a dish fitted on the outside.

So we did tests in the bathroom and it worked a treat, with nearly full signal quality and half signal strength in heavy rain on a Panasonic TU-DSB40 and zone 2 60cm dish. The customer was very happy, even though they have a dish mounted in the bathroom.

–KEITH OWEN, CLYWD AERIALS, FLINTSHIRE

SCORCHING PLASMA

What delicious irony that Sky should choose to base its latest, greatest offer around a 42in plasma screen TV, while still persisting in defacing programmes with a nasty logo – like most other satellite broadcasters. Plasma screens are, of course, the most likely to be damaged by onscreen logos.

–RICHARD YOULDEN, BY E-MAIL

■ We can only hope with a good deal of schadenfreude that the thousands of top-tier subscribers who sign up for Sky's plasma offer rise up (or sign off) in protest when the see little logos burned into the top corners of their new screens.

Seriously, it's not such a great deal anyway – if you shop around you'll probably pick up a cheaper, better plasma screen a nice home cinema system, and have change for the 'free' Sky Plus left over.

Onscreen logos have served their time, and there's no need for them when Sky Digital owners see an information banner every time they change channels.

SOLUS IS TOO MUCH

I am one of the many who do not subscribe to Sky, and now have lost UTV, Channel 4 and Five. I complained to our local ITV about losing these channels, but they were not interested and tried to pass the buck to Sky.

As a person who cares for disabled parents, this is the only way they receive these channels, and on a low income £24 is too much. Maybe if they had priced the card at about £5, it would have been reasonable. You magazine is brill.

–STEVEN LINDSAY, BY E-MAIL

I fully agree with your editorials about the need for ITV, Channel 4 and Five to also be available free on Astra 2D.

Also, as the BBC has moved all its channels across to Astra 2D, why has this not included UK History?. I thought this was also a BBC channel.

–D PEIRCE, LONDON

■ Many people will be disenfranchised by the £24 charge for Solus cards – if Ofcom has the strength of will to bring them back at all – and there will have to be an exemption for the disabled and others who already find the blanket £125 TV Licence Fee a difficult burden. It is about time that the commercial channels discovered that there is more to public service than just making popular programmes; they have to be accessible too.

That doesn't apply to UK History, which is produced by UKTV with archive BBC shows (like UK Gold).

PIDS, PLEASE

Whereas the listing of the radio channels on satellite happily includes the PID numbers, these are absent from the listings of TV channels in Wotsat, including the free-to-air programmes.

The BBC website is of little help – although it gives what it claims to be the PID codes (all seem to begin with the digit 6) my receiver, for one, does not recognise them.

Perhaps I'm missing something, but I cannot see how it is possible to programme an FTA receiver to select between the various channels in a particular bouquet (all with the same frequency, same polarisation, same FEC and symbol rate) without the sole unique identifier which is provided by the PID. Continental journals on digital satellite reception do give these.

It seems as though Wotsat has fallen into the sad misunderstanding that all satellite broadcasting is destined for Sky Digibox receivers. Give the Sky numeric address and that is enough. It's not! Spare a thought, please, for those who prefer not to pay Mr Murdoch substantial fees each month for what are pretty non-descript channels, and enjoy the freedom to explore using their FTA receivers. There's good stuff out there!

–DR HAMISH LAW, BY E-MAIL

■ Readers with long memories will remember that we once carried PIDs for every channel, but we soon realised that trying to produce reliable PIDs was a fruitless exercise.

The PIDs change on a regular basis even when channels stay on the same transponder (as radio listeners will know), and because What Satellite & Digital TV is produced several weeks before it appears in the shops, our PIDs were often very inaccurate. The foreign magazines may print them, but we don't promise something we can't deliver.

The number of digital channels has grown enormously, and we currently list more than 5,000 channels, and just keeping up with the transponder and channel details on a monthly basis is a huge task. Adding PIDs to that would be overwhelming.

We appreciate some readers won't want every channel from a transponder, but rather than enter the PIDs in advance, why not search the transponder and then use the channel management menu which can be found on every receiver (except the very limited Sky Digibox) to delete those you don't want, or put those you do want into a favourites list? ■
